PAY—LINKED PENSIONS TO BE SCRAPPED

Painful Whitehall curbs ahead

THE Government has decided to scrap the State Earnings-Related Pensions Scheme. Under proposed legislation the task of providing pensions geared to pay will be left to private schemes and companies, with the State providing "safety net" basic pensions.

But more than 25,000 married women over 65 will qualify for a pension averaging £1,000 a year under an amendment which the Government intends to make to a Bill already before Parliament.

Meanwhile Cabinet ministers have been warned that painful decisions will have to be taken in this year's public spending review which is just starting.

Pensions for 25,000

By FRANCES WILLIAMS Economics Correspondent

THE Government has decided to abolish the State Earnings-Related Pension Scheme, which was introduced with all-party support in 1978.

The controversial decision will be announced in the forthcoming Green Paper report on the wide-ranging review of the social security system initiated a year ago by Mr Fowler, Social Services Secretary.

The Green Paper is due to be published early next month.

The task of providing pensions related to earnings will become the exclusive province of the private sector, with the State's role confined to providing a "safety net" basic pension.

Ministers have been worried for some time that the State earnings-related scheme (SERPS) could impose intolerable costs on future generations of taxpayers. The 1984 Green Paper on spending and taxation identified the scheme as "the major source of future pressures on social security expenditure."

SERPS, which tops up the basic pension with one based on an individual's best 20 earning years, will come to maturity at the turn of the century.

Burden on people at work

Demographic changes, however, mean that the heaviest burden on the working population will fall between the year 2015 and 2030 when a static workforce will have to support a growing number of pensioners.

The number of National Insurance contributors is expected to edge up from 21,800,000 now to 22 million in 2025, while the number of pensioners will jump from 9,300,000 to 12,600,000.

On some estimates workers could be paying a quarter of their incomes to meet the cost of State pensions in 2025, nearly double existing contributions. Abolition of SERPS could save the Government up to £20 billion a year, at present prices, by the year 2030.

Besides cost worries, however, ministers take the view that, in principle, the State should target its resources on the most needy rather than provide income-related pensions for all.

The proposed abolition of SERPS is certain to cause a major political row. The thinking behind the 1975 Labour legislation, which brought in the scheme, was to provide all workers, whether or not they belonged to an occupational scheme, with an earnings-linked pension on retirement.

The Opposition will argue that the private sector cannot adequately fill the gap for many workers, especially the low-paid, who will have to rely on an inadequate basic flat-rate pension.

The Government's own Social Security Advisory Committee argued in a report last month that SERPS should continue because it was necessary to ensure pensioners' living standards did not slip behind.

The Government's decision marks an explicit abandonment of the consensus approach to pensions enshrined in the 1975 legislation.

In November 1983, Mr Fowler told the Commons: "My aim in setting up an inquiry (into pensions) is not to call into question the fundamental pensions structure that was established in the 1970's with all-party agreement and to which I was a party."

Under the Government's proposals the existing rights of the 11,400,000 people now contracted in to the State earnings-related scheme will be protected. But after abolition, people would have to enter occupational schemes or make private arrangements to top up the basic pension.

Immediate savings on pension payments will be small, but

Pensions for 25,000

By DAVID FLETCHER Health Services Correspondent

MORE THAN 25,000 married women will qualify for a pension averaging £1,000 a year under a proposed change in pension laws announced by Mr Fowler, Social Services Secretary.

The change abolishes what is known as the "half test" which has prevented many women over the age of 65 from receiving a pension in their own right.

The "half test" is a requirement that married women must have paid full-rate National Insurance contributions for at least half the number of years between their marriage and their 60th birthday. This requirement was abolished in 1979 for married women reaching the age of 60 after April 5, 1979 but has continued to affect those who are already 60 by that date.

The Government has now decided to abolish the test completely and is tabling an amendment to the Social Security Bill now before Parliament.

Mr Fowler said: "I estimate there are currently about 25,000 maried women who may gain from this step, mainly married women whose husbands have not yet reached the age of 65."

Mr Fowler also announced that the £10 Christmas bonus will again be paid his year to about 11 million retired, widowed or disabled people. It is tax free.

Whitehall squeeze on salaries

By JAMES WIGHTMAN Political Correspondent

CABINET ministers have been warned that further painful decisions on departmental budgets will have to be taken in this year's public expenditure review whihc is just starting.

The Prime Minister and Mr Lawson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, want greater downward pressure on Government spending to improve the prospects for lowering inflation and making bigger tax cuts than were possible in last month's Budget.

Ministers have begun drawing up their bids for extra sending in the coming financial year. There will again be particular focus on the budgets of the largest-spending ministries, Health and Social Services and Defence.

Squeeze on pay

Another squeeze on public sector pay is also being planned.

The review is an annual exercise which has caused the Cabinet considerable anguish over cuts in services and programmes since the Conservatives returned to office in 1979.

Once the individual ministries have completed their bids, the Cabinet will study the figures in June. There will then be the usual conflict between the Treasury and ministries, culminating in a statement by the Chancellor to the Commons in the autumn.

Months of haggling went on between the Treasury and ministries last year over attempts to adhere to the Cabinet's target of keeping spending to £131·47 billion for 1985-86.

The expectation in Whitehall last night was that the latest spending round would be at least as difficult as last year's.

Emphasis was put on the need for lower pay settlements. Ministers are expected to receive soon recommendations from the independent pay review bodies covering professional groups in the public sector.

The groups are doctors and senior civil servants, judges, dentists, nurses and midwives, and the Armed Services.

The aim is to keep the so-called "top people's" salary increases below the annual inflation rate, possibly with a ceiling of three per cent.

ITALIAN LINK TO FIGHT TERROR

By Our Crime Correspondent

The British and Italian Governments are to set up a joint working party to help fight international terrorism, Mr Brittan, Home Secretary, said yesterday following talks in London with Signor Oscar Luigi Scalfaro, Italy's Minister for the Interior.

By an exchange of ideas and intelligence it is hoped the new deal will help thwart the liaison built up between the IRA, the Red Brigades and Libyans.

Meacher mortgage plan is ditched

By NICHOLAS COMFORT Political Staff

AN embarrassed Shadow Cabinet last night repudiated the proposal made by Mr Michael Meacher, Shadow social services secretary, that a future Labour government should abolish tax relief on mortgage interest payments.

A statement by Labour's principal Front Bench spokesmen after their weekly meeting declared that the idea had "no official status within the Labour party" and condemned the Press for making "prejudiced comments" about it.

It had been widely predicted within the party that Mr Meacher, a leading Left-winger, would have his knuckles rapped for putting forward a policy Mrs Thatcher had abandoned on the grounds that it was politically suicidal.

When the Shadow Cabinet actually convened under Mr Roy Hattersley's chairmanship, it was accepted from the outset that a gaffe had been made and that steps hd to be taken without argument to recover from it.

Kinnock dismayed

Earlier yesterday Mr Meacher had heard a string of Labour backbenchers attack him for having raised the idea when he attended the weekly meeting of the parliamentary party.

Cultivation of skilled and professional workers with mortgages has been a cornerstone of Mr Kinnock's strategy for rebuilding Labour's support. Mr Meacher's suggestion of cutting off their tax relief is understood to have dismayed the party leader.

The Shadow social services secretary put it forward as a means of financing an improved ystem of social security payments.

Mr Meacher's action delighted the Conservatives, who have toyed with abolition as a logical consequence of their economic philosophy, only to reject it as electorally counter-productive.

The Prime Minister gave a pledge in the Comons on Tuesday that as long as she remained in office, the present system of tax relief would be maintained.

Conservative researchers have costed Mr Meacher's proposal as meaning an extra £12 a week on the tax bill of a householder with a £15,000 mortgage.

Mr John Cartwright, SDP Chief Whip said last night that while Mr Meacher believed mortgage tax relief only bene-

ENGINE FALLS OFF PLANE

By Our Los Angeles Correspondent

A tail engine fell off an American Airlines Boeing 727 with 90 people aboard without the crew being aware of the loss. The pilot, who thought the engine had only "seized," discovered it on making a safe landing at San Diego, California.

A spokesman for Boeing said the 727s engines were designed to fall off if they stopped suddenly. This was to prevent airframe damage. The engine fell over an arid expanse of New Mexico.

NACODS TO BALLOT ON OVERTIME

By JAMES O'BRIEN

PIT deputies are to be balloted on May 10 on an overtime ban following the Coal Board's refusal to keep the future of seven pits within the modified colliery closure procedure.

The decision was taken yesterday at a delegate conference in Nottingham of the National Association of Colliery Overmen, Deputies and Shotfirers representing 17,000 members responsible for underground supervision and safety.

Mr Kenneth Sampey, union president, said it was seeking a meeting with the Prime Minister who had "waived the board's agreement with Nacods in the Commons and had maintained it was secure."

Ministers had also said on numerous occasions that it was "sacrosanct." Mr Sampey added: "I do not know how this will go down in the moderate areas."

The delegates discussed a postal ballot and this was not ruled out by the leadership.

The board said last month that in its assessment about the practical state of individual collieries following the strike the immediate post-strike strategy should not be regarded as action within "the industry's normal joint procedures."

LEBANON PREMIER RESIGNS

By Our Beirut Correspondent

LEBANON'S Prime Minister Karami, angered by Beirut's bloodiest inter-Moslem war in more than a year, resigned yesterday, plunging an already divided nation deeper into crisis.

The battles, which lasted more than 15 hours and ended wiht the victory of the Shi'ite Amal militias of Justice Minister Berri and defeat of the pro-Libyan Sunni Moslem Mourabitoun, left at least 20 dead and 155 wounded, according to hospitals.

Prime Minister Karami was said to have agreed to stay on temporarily as head of a caretaker team, after consultations with President Gemayel.

Political sources said it was now up to Syria, Lebanon's key power broker, to intervene not only to solve the conflict between Gemayel and Karami, but between Warami and Berri.

President Karami's resignation could signal the start of an open-ended conflict for a nation which has already endured a 10-year Christian-Moslem struggle.

CID SEEK TWO IN BRIGHTON BOMB HUNT

Police said last night that they were trying to trace two people—one of them possibly a woman—who were at the Grand Hotel, Brighton, a month before the IRA bomb attack during last October's Conservative party conference.

Det. Chief Supt Jack Reece said she had already appealed for a man who had registered at the hotel on Sept. 15 under the name of Roy Walsh to come forward. He was now appealing for another person, known to have been with him at the time to get in touch with police.

He said that Mr Walsh was the only person who had registered at the hotel in the period before the bombing who had not been traced. He occupied Room 629 where the delayed action bomb was planted. A meal sent to the room "was for two people and it is possible his companion was a woman."

Papers clearing Princess's father arrive

By GUY RAIS

DOCUMENTS proving that Princess Michael of Kent's father, who was a member of Hitler's SS was exonerated by an Allied denazification court after the 1939-45 War, have arrived in London.

They are in German and they will be made available when they have all been translated—in a day or two a Buckingham Palace spokesman said.

They were sent by members of the Princess's family in Australia.

The Princess spoke in an interview of her "deep shame" when she discovered that the father she hero-worshipped had been an officer in the SS

But she asserted that papers "state quite clearly that his position with the SS was an honorary one. He never served for the SS, and never wore the uniform."

The Princess, who is 40, spoke on TV-am in an interview recorded at Kensington Palace before she met the Queen and other members of the Royal Family at a banquet at Windsor Castle for President Banda of Malawi.

She looked pale and tired during the interview, but sat composedly in the corner of a long orange sofa surrounded by cushions.

Telling of her shock at first learning that her father, who died two years ago, was a member of the SS, the Princess said her brother explained to her about the documents which exonerated him.

No evidence

"So I am relieved . . . Fortunately the proof is available and will be made available the moment it arrives here," she added.

Special courts dealing with denazification were convened between 1945 and 1950 under Allied control. All records were handed over to the local legal authorities, and copies of documents given to Germans who were cleared.

The West German Centre for the Investigation of Nazi War Crimes said it had no incriminating evidence against Baron von Reibnitz, whose rank at the end of the war was an SS major.

But Dr Simon Wiesenthal, the veteran Nazi-hunter, dismissed as "absolutely unbelievable" the Princess's claim that her father held an honorary rank in the SS, and never wore its uniform.

"His rise through the ranks to major could not have been achieved by being an honorary member of the SS," he said. But he did not think he could have been involved in any concentration camp atrocities.

"It was not Hitler's policy to have aristocracy involved in the camps," Dr Wiesenthal added.

SHUTTLE FLY-SWAT FAILS

By IAN BALL in New York

AN ATTEMPT by the crew of the space shuttle Discovery to use improvised tools to salvage a dead communications satellite ended yesterday in failure.

With the shuttle parked alongside the crippled £64-million satellite, astronaut Margaret Rhea Seddon swung out the 50ft remote-controlled mechanical arm to which two other astronauts had attached a plastic-and-metal "space flyswatter" during a space walk on Tuesday.

She was able to manoeuvre the device against the side of the spinning satellite and snag a four-inch power lever thought to be jammed in the "off" position.

Live television pictures showed the lever being caught twice in the holes cut in the flyswatter's plastic flap. But each time the snagging tool passed over the lever without budging it. Part of the plastic broke under the pressure.

Later, analysis of the television pictures by engineers of Hughes Communications, builders of the satellite, showed the switch was not at fault. However they had not identified the cause of the satellite power loss.

FRUSTRATION OVER LOST EXPORT ORDERS

By ROLAND GRIBBEN Business Correspondent

BUSINESSMEN criticised the Government yesterday for lack of aggression in helping them win export orders only four days after the Prime Minister's Far East tour aimed at aiding firms gain foreign contracts.

Mr R. J. R. Owen, a director of Lloyds Bank International, said German, Japanese, French and other governments were giving more all-round support and sometimes using different rules. "We are playing cricket and the others American football," he said.

He was speaking after the publication of the Overseas Project Board's annual report showing a sharp fall in the number of big contracts won by British firms in highly competitive world markets.

Senior businessmen on the board, set up in 1977 by the British Overseas Trade Board, advise the Government on issues affecting industry's ability to compete effectively for orders.

Cheap loans

They say there is mounting frustration among exporters about the Government's ambivalent attitude towards supporting British bids for large overseas contracts.

The board, headed by Mr Roy Withers, deputy chairman of the Davy Corporation, the engineering and construction group, have told ministers that the extra support and aid being provided by other governments, with cheap loans, means British firms are losing contracts to foreign rivals.

He wants to see a doubling in the £66 million a year being provided by the Government to overseas countries in return for export orders.

The biggest criticism is being directed at the Treasury, where businessmen say continued questioning of aid for exports is providing a severe handicap in their business planning and overseas tenders.

Officials from the Department of Trade and Industry admitted afterwards that there was an element of "muddling through," and said they would be preparing a report to Mr Tebbit, Trade and Industry Secretary, on the complaints.

Shell and Esso to keep N. Sea contract British

By Our Business Correspondent

PRESSURE from the Energy Department resulted yesterday in Shell and Esso placing the first stage of £2 billion contracts for a new North Sea oilfield complex with British rather than foreign-owned firms.

The department is understood to have told the two oil firms that they could lose out in the allocation of exploration awards if they did not provide more encouragement to British technology.

New conditions lay emphasis on the need to give British firms the chance to improve their research and development expertise to help them in North Sea and world markets.

Shell UK Exploration and Production, the operator for the joint venture with Esso, has placed contracts with mainly British firms totalling £13 million for design work for the Gannet complex of fields in the central North Sea.

Shell initially favoured foreign firms for the work because in contracts involving conceptual designs for production platforms they have considerably more experience than their British counterparts, but has done an about-turn under pressure from the department's Offshore Supplies Office.

The British firms are Worley Engineering, John Brown Offshore, Atkins Oil and Gas, and Wimpey, which has the majority share in a joint contract with the only foreign firm in the list, Bechtel, of the United States.

CONTRACTS 'SAVING MILLIONS'

By FRANCES WILLIAMS Economics Correspondent

THE Government has saved £18 million a year and 20,000 staff by contracting out work to Rees, Chief Secretary to private firms, Mr Peter the Treasury, said yesterday.

The National Health Service had saved a further £8,200,000 a year by putting hospital cleaning, catering and laundry services out to contract.

Mr Rees, who was addressing the Public Finance Foundation in London, said that even where hiving off activities to the private sector was not an option, considerable improvements were being made in public sector efficiency.

Staff cut

The Civil Service had shrunk by over 112,000 since 1979, with a saving to the taxpayer of £750 million a year.

While some of the reduction came from privatisation, about 70,000 of the jobs saved came from greater efficiency productivity had improved by 10 per cent, or more over the past five years.

TUC treads water on union democracy law

By MAURICE WEAVER Industrial Staff

SENIOR T U C policy-makers, on the eve of today's crucial Transport Union meeting about the ballot-rigging scandal, backed off from immediate decisions on their future attitude to the Government's industrial laws.

Members of the employment policy committee had been expected to reject moderates' calls for greater T U C acquiescence to union democracy legislation.

But with the issue now in the public eye as a result of the Transport Union scandal, the movement's leadership took a political decision to "tread water."

Yesterday's meeting was called to debate a policy document, prepared by Congress House officials, which favours continuing opposition to the industrial laws.

By coincidence, Transport and General Workers' Union officials meet today to discuss accusation of ballot-rigging in their general secretaryship election — a possibility which the Government says its legislation would prevent.

T U C attitudes to the industrial laws were decided at the movement's special Wembley Conference in 1982. Unions were urged not to co-operate and to reject Government offers of financial assistance for postal ballots.

But the latest policy document, discussed at length in private session yesterday, concedes that it is in the sphere of ballet legislation that strategy is causing most difficulty.

Some moderate unions, among them the electricians (E E P T U) and the engineers (A U E W) have said they will take the Government's ballot money

JENKIN FIRM ON RATE-CAP

By JOHN GRIGSBY Local Government Correspondent

MR JENKIN, Environment Secretary, last night refused to discuss with the leaders of the rate-capped councils the limits imposed on their budgets by the Government.

The Labour leaders had hoped that after Tuesday's judgment in the High Court, when Hackney was given until the end of next month to set a legal rate, that Mr Jenkin might be willing to negotiate.

But at a stormy meeting of the join otonsultative council between central and local government, Mr Jenkin said that the councils had the chance to negotiate before Parliament set the rate limit but chose not to do so.

He said: "I have no intention of going back to Parliament to seek a change in either the rate support grant settlement or the rat e limits; consequently there is nothing to negotiate about.

"I repeat, there will be no negotiation."

The Minister said there was no excuse for any authority to delay discharging its duty to set a rate for this year.

Britannia sell jets and cut staff after slump

By DAVID MILLWARD

SUBSTANTIAL cutbacks were announced yesterday by Britannia Airways in the wake of this year's slump in the charter holiday market and alleged unfair competition by British Airways.

The airline, which carried 4,500,000 passengers last year, is to employ 550 fewer staff this year, a reduction of over 13 per cent. in its workforce.

The reductions will be achieved by natural wastage, early retirement and voluntary and compulsory redundancies.

It also announced plans to sell off five Boeing 737s at the end of the year, bringing its fleet down to 22 Boeing 737s and four Boeing 767s.

Britannia, which depends on its sister company, Thomson Holidays, for half of its passengers, braced itself for an anticipated slump in the charter market this summer by taking on 165 fewer cabin staff and leasing out five 130-seater 737s.

Spanish bookings down

A spokesman for Thomson Holidays said yesterday that demand for Spanish holidays, the most popular destination, was down 30 per cent. on last year, although bookings for Yugoslavia, Portugal and Greece had increased.

A Britannia spokesman blamed British Airways for uncertainty in the market. Britannia, in common with other independent airlines, has complained repeatedly of predatory pricing by British Airways.

According to Britannia, British Airways enjoys a dominant position in the charter market because of its flexibility in switching aircraft from charter to scheduled use and their use of Heathrow.

British Airways rivals also allege that it is able to subsidise its charter operations from its more profitable scheduled ro^tes.

Britannia has called for way's charter company, to be hived off when the State airline is privatised.

INSURANCE CHANGE 'CAN BE ABSORBED'

By Our Business Correspondent

THE increased cost of employing higher-paid staff caused by National Insurance contribution changes in the Budget can be absorbed easily by lower salary rises, Mr Moore, Treasury Financial Secretary, said yesterday.

He made it clear in a letter to Sir John Hoskyns, director-general of the Institute of Directors, that the Government has no intention of making changes in the face of growing pressure from some business leaders.

The institute said that the resturucturing, involving cuts in employees contributions for lower-paid workers and increases for the higher-paid, could mean the loss of 100,000 jobs.

Job prospects

Mr Moore said that the changes were made to improve the job prospects for the low-paid, particularly the young and unskilled unemployed. Employers' contributions would be cut by £880 million.

Employers of about 1,750,000 people will be affected by the decision to abolish the upper earnings limit on contributions and introduce a flate rate of 10·45 per cent. on their earnings.

Mr Moore says that, in the majority of cases, the extra employers' contribution will amount, at worst, to only two to three per cent. of gross salary.

Throughout London, hundreds of local organisations believe that they will suffer if the GLC is abolished, that the services they provide will be severely reduced, and that many of them will disappear.

They all do vital work within their communities. That is why the GLC and the London Boroughs give them grants. Abolition of the GLC will remove the largest source of community funding in the capital.

Local organisations, like many Londoners, made their views known to Whitehall, but, so far, to little effect.

These organisations believe that they are in jeopardy. If you are concerned about this, you can ask your M.P. to raise the issue in Parliament. London cannot afford to say goodbye to all this.

PRINCESS'S 'DEEP SHAME' AT FATHER'S SS PAST

By GUY RAIS

PRINCESS MICHAEL OF KENT spoke on television yesterday of her "deep shame" when she discovered that the father she hero-worshipped, had been a member of Hitler's S S.

She said that although she knew her father, Baron Gunther von Reibnitz, had been a member of the Nazi party, she had not known he was in the S S until it was disclosed in Tuesday's newspapers.

"It was a total shock to everything I had been taught to believe . . . it is a dreadful thing, and I shall have to live with it," she said.

The interview was recorded at Kensington Palace on Tuesday afternoon for TV-am, a few hours before she joined the Queen and other members of the Royal family at Windsor for a State banquet for Malawi's President, Dr Hastings Banda.

"I was desperately ashamed at first," she said. "I had no idea he joined the S S. It was sufficiently shocking to me that he had been in the Nazi party, but I did not think to look further. It came as a very great blow to me."

'Things like that always come out'

Asked if it was true that she had known about her father's Nazi activities and had kept quiet about it, the Princess answered firmly, gesticulating with her hands.

"Well, I don't consider myself a stupid person, to be quite frank with you, because things like that always come out.

"And for me to live trembling, fearing that such a knowledge would come out, would be very stupid."

Saying that evidence was on its way from Germany which would prove that her father was completely exonerated after the war by the Allies, she said: "The document, which exonerated him, states quite clearly that his position with the S S was an honorary position.

"He never served for the S S, he never wore the uniform which it is true he was entitled to wear. If I had known, I would have had this exonerating information to hand.

'Why didn't my mother tell me?'

"As it is, I immediately telephoned my mother when I was told this report was coming out, and I said, more or less to the effect: 'Guess what they are trying to pin on me now?'

"She said: 'I am afraid it is true!' So I said: 'How is it possible?' — and she told me what I have told you."

The Princess said she had asked her mother: "Why on Earth didn't you tell me," adding "because if I had known I would have made it known not only to my husband, not only to his family, but I would have been in a position to put the news out then and there so that it is not something that comes as a blow later on.

"I mean, these things must be aired before one marries somebody who is obviously through his position, going to have investigation about a wife.

"She felt honestly, but now in retrospect, I think foolishly, that it served no useful purpose."

'I shall have to carry it'

Asked for her reaction to her mother's confirmation of the story, the Princess, wearing an all-white dress, her long blonde hair loosely over her shoulders, paused briefly before replying: "Well, it was a total shock to everything I had been taught to believe, but my shoulders are broad, and I shall have to carry it."

To the question: "Are you ashamed, embarrassed, upset, devastated?" she replied: "I was desperately ashamed at first, and then when I spoke to my brother and he explained to me the document which exonerated my father from any activity, I have now discovered he was not involved in anything like that at all. So I am relieved to have discovered that. But it is a deep shame for me.

"I have been brought up to believe that the S S meant one thing basically—concentration camps for Jews and so on."

"And fortunately the proof is available, and will be made available the moment it arrives here, that his role was nothing along those lines because it was the Allies that conducted those investigations.

Asked if she could understand the horror reaction of people in this country "that someone in the Royal family is the daughter of an officer in the S S," the Princess said: "Yes, I can understand it.

"I think from what I have read there is a great deal of false speculation about what his role was, and I hope as soon as I get the documents to prove that his role was in fact virtually negligible. But nonetheless it is a dreadful thing and I shall have to live with it."

Reminded of speculation from an Australian source that her father "had the say-so on whether people went in or came out of concentraiton camps," the Princess answered: "Well that I think is one of the many fairy stories that I find written about me constantly in the Press.

Asked if other members of the Royal family knew about her father, Princess Michael replied: "I don't know. I mean I presume that one was investigated. I always took it for granted that I was investigated."

She did not know what the reaction of the Royal family was. "I have not spoken to any members of my husband's family personally, but I have had messages of support."

Asked for her husband's reaction, she said: "Extremely supportive of me, and as devastated as I am."

As for other members of her family, she said: "My half-sister didn't know either. I immediately rang her in America and she said she had been crying since Saturday. She is a great deal older than I am, and from my father's first marriage.

'In a state of shell-shock'

"I then rang my stepmother, my father's widow, and she said she simply did not believe it. You see, when people as close as that didn't know . . . I rang my uncle, my mother's brother, who was my guardian, and his wife was there. She said we always knew he was, you know in the Nazi party, because you had to be more or less at that time."

They had also asked if it was true, "and I said I was afraid it was."

Asked what it had been like for her since the disclosure, the Princess replied with a wan smile: "I think I have been in a sort of state of shell-shock. But it is something I will have to come to terms with. And I know I shall. I don't like it, but I have to live with it."

Asked if she resented that people "are visiting the sins of a father on a daughter," the Princess answered: "No. I think it is perfectly natural. Maybe that would be my reaction too. No, I don't feel resentment. I understand. I don't like it, but I understand it."

Would she feel uncomfortable in carrying out her public engagements in the future, "presumably because the public's perception of you will have changed to some extent"?

"I don't know what I shall feel. I just think that when dreadful things come to you out of the blue you have to live with them. I mean, it is like suddenly discovering that you are adopted.

"You know, here I am 40 years old, and I suddenly discover something that is really quite unpleasant, and I shall just simply have to live with it.

"What the public's perception of me will be I don't know. I wasn't alive when all this happened. So I hope that they will judge me on my own performance . . . on what I am, and what I stand for."

Advice 'from the top' not to go on TV

The television interviewer, Nick Owen, said before the interview began that he chatted with the Princess, who said she "felt rotten."

"She was very bright and extremely courteous. She did not beat about the bush. It was very pleasant considering the difficult circumstances she was in.

"She was clearly most upset." From his own observations, he felt that there had been advice from "the very top," telling the Princess that if she wanted to give an interview she should do it.

"But I think in general the Royal feeling was that she should not do it. There was tremendous opposition.

"At the end of the day she made the decision. I know Prince Michael was extremely supportive and was delighted how she handled the interview."

Col Michael Farmer, the Princess's private secretary, explaining why she chose to appear on TV-am, said: "The Princess felt, like many people, that there was so much speculation going on that she really ought to say something.

"This happened to be an approach that appealed to her."

Ban on BBC re-use of pirated interview

By ROBIN STRINGER TV and Radio Correspondent

THE BBC was banned by the High Court yesterday from further broadcasting its "pirated" copy of TV-am's exclusive interview with Princess Michael of Kent, which it taped and used on its own "Breakfast Time" programme.

Mr Justice WALTON said that on the evidence before him the broadcasts were the "most scandalous" breach of TV-am copyright. "It is not something one expects of a corporation of the standing of the BBC," he said.

The BBC immediately challenged the decision but this was rejected by two Appeal Court judges, Mr Justice SLADE and Mr Justice HARRIS.

A BBC spokesman said yesterday: "On Tuesday evening, the Queen's Press Secretary, Mr Michael Shea, told BBC television news and TV-am that it was Princess Michael's wish that news access to the interview should be made available.

"When we asked TV-am, they refused to give permission so what we did was to tape the interview off the air and use extracts on 'Breakfast Time' and on the lunchtime news."

Serious damage

The BBC said that TV-am was credited six times out of the seven occasions on which its material was used. The only omission was by accident. The decision to use the material was taken by Mr Ron Neil, new head of BBC television news.

In his judement yesterday, Mr Justice Walton said that during negotiations with Princess Michael, the evidence was that nothing was said about the BBC or any other broadcasting organisation having the right to show the film.

It was obvious that very serious damages were likely to be caused by BBC broadcasts of the interview because TV-am was a commercial organisation relying very much on "prestige and scoops" to attract advertisers.

The injunctions granted to TV-am will remain in force until Tuesday when it is expected that the BBC will produce evidence to support an application to vary or discharge the order.

The BBC said yesterday that it would abide by the court's decision. On later news bulletns last night it used written quotations from Princess Michael's interview rather than a film clip.

The interview, which lasted seven minutes 40 seconds, was recorded at Kensington Palace at 5 p.m. on Tuesday. TV-am got the interview through a personal approach after it and other organisations had failed to be granted one through Buckingham Palace officials.

Prince Michael of Kent is a board member of Aitken Hume, which is connected to TV-am indirectly through Aitken Telecommunications and the Aitken family interests.

FIRE SUICIDE

Brian Shawcross, 49, a council driver who received 90 per cent. burns when he set himself alight with petrol on Tuesday outside his home in Kent Avenue, Stockport, died in hospital yesterday. He had failed to appear in court to answer charges of failing to provide a breath specimen and reckless driving.

PRINCESS VISITS HUNGARY

By JENNY SHIELDS

Princess Margaret arrives in Budapest today at the start of a four-day visit to Hungary, her first overseas tour since convalescing after her lung operation in January.

As patron of the Royla Ballet, the Princess has been invited to attend the opening night of its three-week run of "Manon" at the State Opera House on Saturday evening.

Freed lifer's attack on girl, four

By COLIN RANDALL

A MAN who attacked a young girl 15 months after being paroled from a life sentence had been freed too soon, Mr Justice PETER PAIN said at Bristol Crown Court yesterday.

He told the previously convicted rapist: "It is quite clear you were released at a time when you were not fit to be released.

"But I am making no criticism at all of the Parole Board because there are bound to be times when it goes wrong and yours is such a case."

KENNETH CLARK, 53, of Snowberry Walk, St George, Bristol, admitted indecent assault and unlawful wounding. In 1968 he was jailed for life for rape and indecent assault on young women.

The judge yesterday jailed Clark for four years concurrently on each offence and ordered that his parole licence be revoked. It was "as bad a case of indecent assault" as one might find.

Door forced

Mr IAN DIXEY, prosecuting, said two men forced open a public lavatory door last October to rescue a girl, four, from Clark. They were called by the child's mother who found her daughter locked inside and screaming: "Get the nasty man away from me."

The mother let her child go into the lavatory because she was busy dealing with her baby. When the girl failed to return she went in and heard scuffles, but her hammering on the door produced no response.

Mr NICHOLAS O'BRIEN, defending, said Clark had been diagnosed a paedophile by a psychiatrist. In the past he had been able to control his desires to some extent but drink had overcome his inhibitions.

BARKING DOG CAUSED MAN TO SNAP

A man who was driven to distraction by the barking of his neighbour's Alsatian dog finally snapped and attacked it with a machete. Sidney Jamieson, 49, a telephone engineer of Fair Oak, Hampshire, compared the barking to "a Chinese water torture" when he appeared before Eastleigh magistrates yesterday.

He said the barking of the £150 pedigree dog, called Sheba, had put his, and his wife's nerves "at breaking point." And he attacked the dog when he went to release it and it bit him. It was later put down.

Afterwards he buried the machete in his garden before his wife phoned the police. Jamieson admitted damaging and ill treating the dog and the case was adjourned for a social inquiry.

WOMAN STABBED

Factory worker wins £937,807 on pools

A MACHINE operator who was refused early redundancy last year from the Michelin tyre factory in Stoke collected a record £937,807 pools jackpot yesterday, from a 36p stake.

Mr Dennis Turner, 51, picked his matches at random. "I tried using the same numbers each week for several years but never came near to winning, and after 25 years of doing the pools this is the first time I've ever won," he said.

Mr Turner, of Neflan Crescent, Smallthorne, Burslem, Staffordshire, plans to buy a new house with a snooker room. Next on the shopping list is a long holiday in America. He will retire from Michelin's.

The former miner also wants a new car, although he has not driven for eight years. "It won't be a Rolls-Royce or anything flash like that. I fancy a Mini."

He said he will buy new houses for his daughters Ann, 24, and Angela, 21, who was due to move into a council house this week. Mr. Turner has three grandchildren.

1984-TWO MILLION NEW INVESTMENT ACCOUNTS

- Growth of 18.7% pushing total assets up close to £17bn
- Reserves up £86m at £618m
- 2 million new investment accounts opened
- Lending 21% up even on the record year in 1983
- Net receipts from investors of £1.5bn
- Liquidity at a level which will provide healthy support for 1985 lending activity
- More than £1 bn of all advances was on pre-1919 property
- Further advances were up 29% at £317m

Among the points made by the Chairman, Sir Campbell Adamson, at the Abbey National Annual General Meeting held on the 17th April, 1985 were:

"Overall, a year of success in attracting investments and a major increase in mortgage lending. All this was achieved against an increasingly volatile interest rate background in the latter part of the year."

"Government moves towards deregulation and fiscal neutrality are also becoming increasingly felt. Recent measures have served to remove many of the differences between banks and building society operations in the personal financial sector, with the result that the intense competition will increase."

"The Green Paper provides a framework for Abbey National to play a greater role in the developing financial scene. But, and I cannot emphasise this too forcefully, our prime aim is to ensure that the needs of our nine million investment account holders and one million borrowers are fully met and additional services will be added with this in mind."

Current Interest Rates

"We are committed to ensuring that our investing members receive as good a deal as with any other financial institution. Because of the general rise in competitive rates recently we have increased our interest rates twice in 1985. Real investment returns from Abbey National are the best ever. We regret that the circumstances have inevitably lead to higher mortgage rates."

Investment Limits Removed

"Previous investment limits imposed by the Revenue have been removed. The Society will now accept any amount. In addition to the personal account range, a money market account is available."

Service

"In June, we will introduce the first in a new network of automated teller machines which will provide additional free facilities, day and night. By the end of 1985 we expect to have more than 200 units throughout the country. Not only in our branches but also in other retail outlets. Abbey National is part of a major consortium which will soon have a network of 1,000 machines throughout the country, each of which will be available to our members."

Housing and Mortgage Finance

"Almost £4 bn was advanced to 180,000 borrowers, half of whom were buying for the first time. 93,000 borrowers received further advances to improve their homes. Management and financial resources have been directed into urban renewal and by the end of 1984, over 1,000 housing units had been completed or were under construction by Abbey Housing Association."

"The adoption, by the EEC commission of the draft directive aimed at liberalising mortgage credit, brings us closer to a position whereby we might operate in other European countries as we have been planning to do since the opening of our Brussels office in 1979."

The Green Paper

"While the final shape of the legislation is yet to be decided upon, some of these permissible activities indicate a level of risk somewhat higher than has previously been the case. Involvement in them will depend on the strength of our financial reserves. This will place a premium on establishing realistic operating margins and containing all costs.

Our firm belief is that legislation should recognise the greater capabilities and interests of the major societies by treating them less restrictively than the smaller ones. What we want is the freedom to provide the wide range of personal financial services we think you, our members, have a right to expect. What we shall not lose sight of is that our greatest strength is our membership base and our main task must always be to preserve it."

Killers joined Legion, court told

By HEATHER MILLS
Old Bailey Correspondent

TWO killers fled to the French Foreign Legion after battering to death their second victim, Mr Angus Cochrane, a solicitor, in St James's Park, Miss ANNE CURNOW, Q.C, prosecuting, said at the Old Bailey yesterday.

Mr Cochrane, 29, of Cringley-on-the-Hill, near Doncaster, who worked for the Coal Board and was in London on business, received multiple head wounds and died four days later in hospital when his life-support machine was switched off, said Miss Curnow.

Three months earlier, in September, 1982, the pair had strangled Mr Greville Hallam, a theatrical agent, leaving him bound and naked in his Chalk Farm maisonette, she said.

JAMES MONAHAN, 27, and WILLIAM ROSS, 25, both of Old Market Square, Bethnal Green, deny murdering the two men, and Monahan also denies robbing them.

Ross has admited two counts of manslaughter and two of robbery.

Rough trade

Miss CURNOW said that Mr Hallam, whose clients included female impersonators Hinge and Brackett, was a homosexual with "a peculiar proclivity for the rough trade." "He was attracted to men aged between 25 and 35, large and tattooed and fairly rough in appearance.

"To satisfy this peculiar proclivity he frequented a pub in Soho called the Golden Lion which is a fairly well-known meeting-place for such persons," she said.

Police believed Mr Hallam met Monahan at the public house, and invited him into the home he shared with Mr Kenneth Waller, an actor who starred in the television series "Are You Being Served?" The court was told Mr Waller is not a homosexual.

Miss Curnow claimed that after strangling Mr Hallam, Monahan and Ross stole televisions and videos and stereo equipment.

Two years later a stereo system stolen from the maisonette was discovered by police, who were then put on the scent of Monhan and Ross.

By then Monahan was well-established in the Foreign Legion and serving in Corsica. Ross had been thrown out after three weeks and was back in England.

When Monahan learned that the police were seeking him he deserted from the Legion but was later arrested by French police in the South of France and extradited to England, said Miss Curnow.

The trial was adjourned until today.

ALL-BLACK TRIP SHAMEFUL, SAYS LANGE

By JOHN ANDREWS in Auckland

THE decision by the New Zealand Rugby Football Union to press ahead with an All-Black tour of South Africa in July was condemned yesterday by New Zealand's Labour Prime Minister and Deputy Prime Minister.

Mr David Lange, Prime Minister, said in Canberra, on his way home after a five-nation African tour: "They knew what the score was, and it's to their eternal shame that they are going."

In Wellington, New Zealand, a few hours later Mr Lange was in a terse mood and refused to comment further on the tour decision, which is expected to cause demonstrations.

Mr Geoffrey Palmer, Deputy Prime Minister, said it was a sad day for New Zealand and a day of shame for the union.

Regardless of the Government's strong and unambiguous messages opposing the tour, the "men of rugby"—the union's 18-man council — had stubbornly decided to go ahead with the tour, said Mr Palmer.

'They stand alone'

"They stand alone, and they will reap the consequences of the decision, for which they alone are responsible," he said. "The recent violent and brutal acts in South Africa are not a good omen for this tour."

The rugby men had learned nothing from the effects of the Springbok tour of New Zealand in 1981, which lingered on. There was still time for the Rugby Union councillors to reverse their decision. He hoped rugby players would opt against touring South Africa.

Mr Palmer added that the Government would re-assess the tour issue during its caucus meeting today. It was possible, he said, that the councillors would change their minds when they saw the force of public opinion.

The Leader of the Opposition, Mr Jim McLay, said the decision was entirely legal. Now it had been made, the Government should get off the Rugby Union's back. The union should not be commanded or intimidated by the Government to change its mind.

There is speculation that the union's council approved the tour by 12 votes to six. One councillor, who did not to be identified, believes the Government will use emergency powers to stop the tour proceeding.

Announcing the tour decision in Wellington, the council chairman, Mr Ces Blazsy, said: "Having carefully considered all the relevant factors, the council has decided to accept the invitation and will advise the South African Rugby Board accordingly."

He could not foresee anything to make the union change its mind. Opposition to the tour was based mainly on the fear that violent confrontations such as those during the 1981 Springbok tour would be repeated.

The Rugby Union accepted the right of peaceful and lawful protest, but it did not believe that most New Zealanders would think that a tour decision should be made on the basis of threats, blackmail or intimidation.

Union members did not think the All Blacks would be exposed to off-field violence once they were in South Africa, said Mr Blazey.

'Elite' claim

The leader of New Zealand's anti-apartheid movement, HART (Halt All Racist Tours), Mr John Minto, labelled the tour decision as "appalling." He claimed it had been made by a "power-crazed elite" who would drag New Zealand through the mud.

He believed large numbers of people would take part in a nationwide day of protest on May 3. The HART organisation would discuss tactics at a meeting in Wellington this weekend.

A former All-Black captain, Mr John Graham, who opposed the 1981 Springbok tour, came out in support of yesterday's tour decision. He said he had changed his mind because of the social and political manipulation of the rugby code that had occurred.

Jubilant South Africa whites hail decision

By Our Johannesburg Correspondent

JUBILANT South African whites yesterday hailed the decision by the New Zealand Rugby Union to defy Mr Lange's Government and send the All Blacks on an official tour of South Africa this year.

Dr Danie Craven, president of the South African Rugby Board, said: "I expected the verdict. It might be a bitter pill for politicians to swallow, but the rugby world is elated."

Now all that South African sports chiefs are waiting for is confirmation that an Australian "rebel" cricket side will arrive next season.

Details of when the All Blacks will arrive in South Africa are still secret, but it is expected the tour will include three official Tests.

For South Africa's rugby Springboks it means another home tour. They have not played away since 1981 when they lost to New Zealand in a series plagued by violent demonstrations. During the last Test a light aircraft bombed the Wellington stadium with flour bags. Last year they beat England 2-0.

South Africa's main anti-apartheid group, the United Democratic Front (UDF), has said it will rally mass demonstrations against the tour, while the black consciousness Azanian People's Organisation has said it will do its best to make the All Blacks' stay uncomfortable.

Dr Craven said that UDF members had told him the demonstrations would be peaceful. "They certainly do not want violence," he commented.

The South African Council on Sport which opposes any South African sporting links while apartheid exists, described the go-ahead decision as "tragic."

Mr Frank van der Horst, the council's president, said the tour would generate immense anger and bitterness.

THREAT TO GAME WITH AUSTRALIA

By DENIS WARNER in Melbourne

MR HAWKE, Australian Prime Minister, joined Mr Lange in criticising the New Zealand Rugby Union.

"I can't understand how those responsible for the administration of the rugby code can do something that is going to cause very considerable dissension in New Zealand itself and possibly cause adverse repercussions for themselves in other areas when they want to compete internationally."

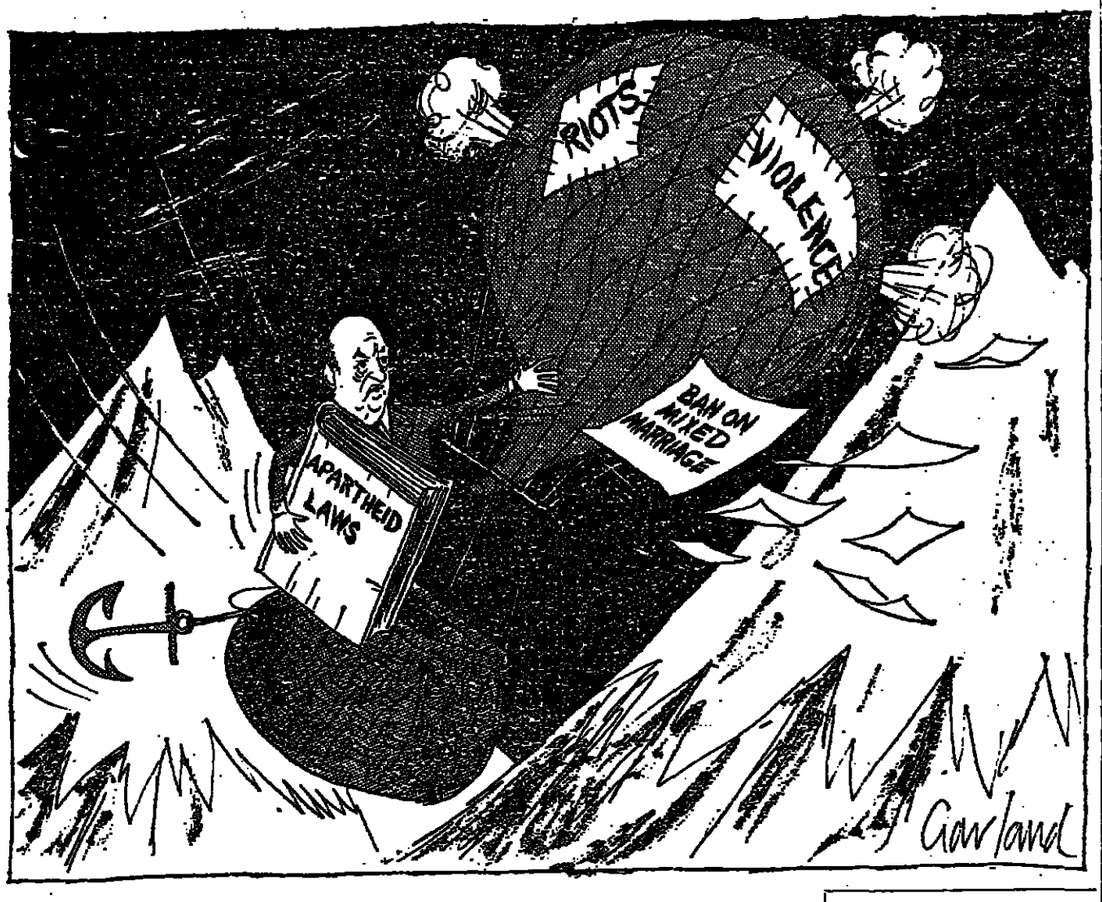
This has been interpreted by the Rugby Union as a threat by Mr Hawke to prevent a match in Australia in June between Australia and New Zealand.

This has been billed as the world's championship.

Australian cricketers, responding to generous offers, also appeared to be on the verge of following New Zealand's Rugby Union in deciding to visit South Africa.

Mr Hawke has said that cricketers who accept the invitation and think they will escape paying Australian income tax will face the closest scrutiny by the taxation authorities.

All Australian cricketers chosen to tour England this year have been asked to submit affidavits immediately that they do not inten dto accept the South African offer, which is said to include payment of un to 200,000 Australian dollars (£105,250) for each player.



Pretoria troops stage colourful farewell from Angola

By CHRISTOPHER MUNION in Oshikango on the Angolan-Namibia border

WITH flags flying, a band playing and all the pomp of a medals parade, the last of the South African military contingent in southern Angola withdrew to the border with Namibia (South-West Africa) yesterday.

A column of 100 armoured vehicles and about 500 men, most of them black soldiers, crossed the remote, rubble-strewn border post at Oshikango in ceremonial order to fulfil the undertaking by Mr Pik Botha, Foreign Minister, to have all South African troops out of Angola by the end of this week.

The elaborately stage-managed march-past was clearly designed to give force to Mr Botha's assertion that the unilateral withdrawal was a calculated risk designed to create maximum political advantage.

Angolans present

Swapo guerrillas still lurk in the endless tracts of bush and if they re-establish bases in the areas vacated by the South African forces Gen Constand Viljoen, chief of the defence force, promised yesterday: "We shall go back into Angola."

Gen Viljoen took the salute at the disengagement ceremony, flanked by Mr Ray Killen, Director-General of Foreign Affairs, and Lt-Gen. Jannie Geldenhuys, chief of the Army.

Four officers of the Angolan Army, members of the joint monitoring commission that has been supervising South Africa's withdrawal and monitoring Swapo movements for the past year, were guests at the parade.

They declined to comment to reporters but cheerfully accepted the general's invitation to lunch in the tented restaurant erected for the occasion.

Foreign and South African reporters, flown to the area, were also given a canvas grandstand as the withdrawing column emerged from Angola through the rubble of the old border post reduced by numerous battles during the past nine years.

The band of the Cape Coloured Corps played a medley of South African, German and Australian marches at the head of a column of Coloured troops. Then came a mile-long column of armoured cars, armoured personnel carriers and heavy trucks.

New opportunity

After half an hour, the column disappeared in the dust on the road to Oshakati, 40 miles southwards and the headquarters of the South African Defence Force in Ovamboland.

At a Press conference, Gen Viljoen said he regarded the disengagement as the beginning of a new opportunity for both countries to learn from their mistakes and ensure they were not repeated.

"By giving up a military area, we do have to give up a certain amount of military area, we do have to give up a certain amount of military advantage," he said. "But the military is part of the South African system and does not stand divorced from diplomatic and political efforts."

The general also saw the event as an opportunity to advance the issue of a Cuban troop withdrawal from Angola and to promote the solutions of internal problems in Angola and Namibia.

'Useful relationships'

But he said that if Swapo forces re-established bases near the border the South African military would have no hesitation in crossing the border again "to defend the people of South West Africa-Namibia.

"I sincerely hope it will not be necessary again," Gen. Viljoen said. "We must be positive and accept the new challenge."

Mr Killen said "useful relationships" between South Africa and Angola had been established since the Lusaka agreement in February last year, not least through the close contact between military officers of the two countries serving on the joint monitoring commission.

'NEEDLESS $73m' FOR ETHIOPIA

By MICHAEL KALLENBACH at the United Nations in New York

THE United Nations staff union has protested to the secretary-general, Senor Perez de Cuellar, about General Assembly plans to spend more than $73 million (£56,600,000) on a new conference centre in Ethiopia.

Mr George Irving, an American, who is president of the staff union, told the secretary-general the staff were "appalled" at the timing when the region is experiencing such a severe economic crisis.

Altogether, 1,300 staff signatures were collected to a statement that it is "shameful indeed to know" that the money is being spent "on needless conference facilities when so many people are facing starvation and death."

The statement added: "People of goodwill throughout the world hav mad valiant efforts to collect funds for Ethiopian drought relief while the United Nations system has pledged itself instead to build a lavish conference facility."

Five in prison

The staff union has also protested at the Ethiopian Government's detention of five United Nations staff in prison, some since 1979.

Last December, despite strong objections from Britain and the United States, the General Assembly voted overwhelmingly to spend $73,501,000 on the expanded conference facilities of the Economic Commission for Africa in Addis Ababa.

Islamic groups seeking control in Sudan

By CON COUGHLIN in Khartoum

LEADERS of Islamic fundamentalist groups in Sudan are mounting a strong campaign to turn the country into a fully Islamic state when new elections are eventually held.

They are already playing a leading role in negotiations to form a new government and believe they can capitalise in the coming months on the "Islamic rennaissance" that has swept many parts of the Arab world in recent years.

Deposed President Numeiry turned Sudan into a quasi-Islamic state in 1983, which caused many Sudanese to be executed, have limbs amputated and undergo flogeings for transgressions of the strict Sharia Islamic code.

But the Islamic regime introduced by Numeiry was disowned by most Islamic leaders because many areas of life in the country still functioned under a civilian code.

Now that Numeiry has been deposed and a new start is to be made in Sudan, Islamic fundamentalist groups plan to set up a regime in Sudan similar to the one in Pakistan.

The most powerful party in Sudan is the Moslem Brotherhood, an elitist grouping of scholars and academics who dedicate their lives to the teachings and disciplines of the Koran, the Islamic equivalent of the Bible.

Arab contacts

The Moslem Brotherhood was instrumental in establishing Islamic law in Sudan under Numeiry. The party claims to represent a contemporary interpretation of Islam that enables Moslems to cope with the pressures of the modern world while adhering to the Koran.

The party has contacts all over the Arab world including Egypt and is totally committed to the principle that the political structure of the country should be dominated by the religious framework.

The Moslem Brotherhood in Sudan was formed in 1956 at the time negotiations were underway for independence. It has remained a strong force in Sudanese politics ever since.

But the Moslem Brothers had never succeeded in dominating Sudanese politics until they began to enjoy the patronage of President Numeiry.

In spite of the overthrow of Numeiry, the indications in Sudan now are that Sharia law, complete with its range of brutal punishments, will remain for the foreseeable future with the firm prospect of it becoming fully established when the elections are held.

Simple adjustments

The new Sudanese leader, Gen. Abdul-Rahman Swareddahab, a devout and strict Moslem, has already indicated he intends to abide by Sharia law during the transitional period.

His promise to revise Sharia law will in effect be to make a few simple adjustments to the Islamic judicial process without tampering with the laws themselves.

The Moslem Brotherhood meanwhile has formed the National Islamic Front to broaden its appeal to Sudan's 15 million Moslems.

'COOL IT' ON JAPAN, U.S. URGED

By HUGH DAVIES in Tokyo

THE flamboyant Mr Lee Iacocca, chairman of Chrysler, launched himself into the fray yesterday over fears of a trade war with Japan, calling on United States politicians to calm down and "cool the rhetoric."

Seemingly on his best full-blooded form, he described himself as no shrinking violet.

"I'm not a milk-toast man," he said. "But these guys (United States congressmen) were over my head.

"I think we are playing with dynamite. We'd better watch our step."

Bent on sanctions

The House of Representatives and the Senate have overwhelmingly passed resolutions calling on President Reagan to retaliate against Japan unless it reduces import restrictions to cut a $37 billion (£29 billion) trade surplus with America.

A market-opening package announced by Mr Nakasone, Japanese Prime Minister, seemed to have failed to catch the imagination of many United States politicians, who appear to be still bent on protectionist sanctions.

The Chrysler chief executive said he had examined Mr Nakasone's new plan. "I was pretty impressed with it myself."

He thought it presumptuous for outsiders to be telling the Japanese "how to fix it."

His remarks followed a speech in Tokyo by Mr Tebbit, Trade and Industry Secretary, who called the trade imbalance situation "a desperate problem."

Mr Tebbit said: "I have no doubt at all that, unless the problems we face today, and the problems of Japanese success not least, are resolved rapidly, there is a grave risk that the free trade system will come under such stress that it may collapse."

The ministers said there had been too much talk and too little action.

PAPANDREOU TO CALL ELECTIONS

Mr Papandreou, Greek Prime Minister, said yesterday he would ask for general elections in June, four months before his Socialist Government's term expires.

New Democracy, the Conservative opposition party, has intensified demands for an immediate poll since the Left-wing nominated President Sartzetakis was elected, under a procedure which the Conservatives termed invalid, replacing the veteran statesman Constantine Karamanlis. —Reuter.

LIBYAN EXPELLED FROM BELGIUM

A Libyan diplomat, Omar Ebmeida, 31, expelled from Britain after last year's siege outside the Libyan embassy in London, was sent back to Libya from Brussels yesterday.

Belgian Justice Ministry officials said he was being expelled for using false papers for financial transactions. They said he had no links with terrorist activities in Belgium. — Reuter.

U.S. secret paper tells of Nicaragua 'military option'

By FRANK TAYLOR in Washington

PRESIDENT REAGAN has told Congress for the first time that the United States must be prepared to take direct military action in Central America "if other policy alternatives fail."

Such a course "must be recognised as an eventual option," according to a secret document on White House policy.

The document was sent to two Congressional committees considering Mr Reagan's request for a resumption of aid to guerrillas fighting the Marxist-led Sandanista Government in Nicaragua.

A sanitised version of the document, released to the Press, did not include parts which referred to the possibility of eventual American military intervention nor another passage in which Mr Reagan says his intention is to use the aid to expand the guerrilla force by up to 15,000 men.

The two main Right-wing guerrilla group are estimated to have a total strength of 20,000.

The document goes on to tell Congressmen that while the Administration had ruled out for now direct American military force, such a course "must realistically be recognised as an eventual option, given our stakes in the region if other policy alternatives fail."

Régime's removal

This goes far beyond previous official statements on the issue, which is frequently raised by those who fear the United States may be getting into "another Vietnam."

Mr Reagan has usually responded to questions by saying there were "no plans" for direct military intervention in Central America.

The secret document also suggests for the first time that the White House has abandoned any attempt simply to "contain" the Sandistas by strengthening the defensive capabilities of Nicaragua's neighbours.

"Only major direct pressure can induce change," the paper says. Mr Reagan has made clear that the "change" he seeks is the removal of the Sandinista régime and its replacement by a government system acceptable to Washington.

The debate over whether Congress should agree to Mr Reagan's request for $14 million (£10·8 million) in funds for the "Contras" continues to rage both on and off Capitol Hill.

'Illegal' charge

In Congress, several committees are hearing from present and former Government officials, film actors and priests.

At one hearing yesterday Bishop James Hickey, a spokesman for a group of Roman Catholic bishops, declared it was illegal for the United States directly to support the attempted overthrow of a Government with which it was not at war.

Opposition to the proposal appeared to be hardening in Congress yesterday, with Democrats in the House of Representatives maintaining they would easily defeat the measure when it comes to a vote, probably next week.

In the Republican-controlled Senate, the vote would be "very close," an informant said.

Mr Reagan, in a speech to business leaders, put Congress on notice that it would be to blame if Nicaragua was allowed to spread Communist subversion in the Western hemisphere.

ENVOY RECALLED

Pre-vote consultations

OUR GUATEMALIAN CORRESPONDENT writes: The United States yesterday recalled Ambassador Hamy Bengold from Nicaragua for consultations because of the expected intense Congressional manoeuvrings on the vote for assistance to the guerrillas, according to Embassy sources.

Congress last June cut off all funding to the guerrillas, organised and armed by the CIA.

Shooting compensation 'referred to Moscow'

By DAVID SHEARS in Washington

RUSSIA and America seem to be cooling their angry dispute over last month's fatal shooting of an American Army major by a Russian sentry in East Germany.

Congress has shelved for the time being a resolution condemning the killing.

This follows a State Department announcement that Russia had told the United States that Soviet troops had been ordered not to use "force or weapons" against American military patrols in East Germany.

Still unsettled are American demands for an apology for the death of Major Arthur Nicholson, and for compensation to his family.

The State Department said that Soviet generals who had discussed the matter with American military commanders in West Germany had agreed to refer these demands to "higher authority" in Moscow.

Discussions are continuing and meanwhile Congress is holding off on voting to condemn the Soviet action.

The State Department announcement was the first disclosure of what transpired at a secret meeting of the top United States and Soviet military officers in West Germany on Friday.

'Legal espionage'

It came as a House of Representatives delegaiton headed by Mr Thomas O'Neill, the Speaker, reported to President Reagan on its four-hour meeting in Moscow yesterday week with Mr Gorbachev, the Soviet leader.

Mr O'Neill quoted Mr Gorbachev as calling the major's killing "regrettable" but denying Russia was to blame.

"Gorbachev was very distinct in accusing our man (Major Nicholson) of being at the wrong place" when he was shot, Mr O'Neill said.

American commentators note there are still conflicting reports on the circumstances. The Soviet version claimed the major, a member of the Allied military liaison teams who engage in what has been called "legalised espionage" in East Germany, had been taking pictures of Soviet tanks through the window of a military depot that was clearly marked out of bounds.

ARMS TALKS DEADLOCK RULED OUT

By THOMAS NETTER in Geneva

AN American senator, one of 12 observing the Geneva arms talks, gave an optimistic report yesterday on their progress so far, and discounted reports of an early stalemate.

Senator Ted Stevens, a Republican from Alaska, made the assessment after two days of briefings from United States negotiators at the Geneva talks.

When asked about the possibility of a deadlock over disputed issues, Senator Stevens said: "On the contrary. I haven't heard one single inference of a threatened walkout, or any kind of breakdown in the negotiations.

"It seems there's been some very serious explorations of viewpoints by each side, and we're seeing greater flexibility given to the negotiators on each side than ever before."

Space plan opponents

The comments by Senator Stevens, co-chairman of the Senate observer group established when the talks began on March 12, were the first of any substance by a United States official in Geneva since the opening days of the negotiations.

He said he believed talk of deadlock at the arms talks came from "some people who really don't support the Strategic Defence Initiative concept at home to begin with.

"And what they are saying is that, as long as SDI is part of the negotiations, there can't be any progress and therefore they're predicting an early failure."

LEBANON IN CHAOS FACES FIEFDOMS WAR

By JOHN BULLOCH Diplomatic Staff

THE final collapse of the Lebanese State seemed likely yesterday after the resignation of Mr Karami and his Syrian-backed "National Unity Government."

The last remaining symbol of nationhood was President Gemayel, who became Head of State following the assassination of his brother in 1982. But Gemayel was facing a revolt by a large section of the Maronite Christian militia which his father founded.

His authority went no further than the gates of the Presidential Palace at Baabda.

In West Beirut, traditionally the stronghold of the prosperous middle-class Sunni establishment, the Shia Moslem militia Amal (Hope) seized control in a bloody shoot-out with the Mourabitoun (Sentinels). The Shia were backed by Druze fighters from the mountains, and both had Syrian support.

Mr Karami, a Sunni Moslem from the northern town of Tripoli, last week boycotted meetings of his own Cabinet in an effort to concentrate the minds of fellow Ministers. He failed, and so resigned.

Karami's Government of National Unity, formed 12 months ago, never ruled Lebanon. It became no more than a forum in which the leaders of rival militia groups and political factions could meet to discuss their differences.

Competing warlords

Now diplomats believe Lebanon has finally torn itself apart, after more than 10 years of civil war. They expect a period of chaos to be followed by the emergence of a cantonal system in which each area will run its own affairs.

For all its smiling face as "the Switzerland of the Middle East" a decade ago, Lebanon was always a system of fiefdoms run by competing warlords, with Beirut the neutral ground on which they could meet.

Now that same system will re-emerge, but without the veneer of statehood which so attracted the West in the past.

The catalyst for Lebanon's latest troubles has been the Israeli withdrawal from the south of the country. In 1982 Israeli forces stormed into the near-defenceless Lebanon to eradicate the Palestinian presence there.

In the process, the Israelis radically upset the delicate balance between Christians and Moslems, and between the rival groups in the two camps.

Iran's example

Now those rival groups are seeking once again to establish who will control what, and whose writ will run in each area. They are doing so with bombs and shells in a way the Lebanese have come to expect.

Left to themselves, Maronite Christians and Sunni Moslems, both more concerned with making money than fomenting social change, would probably have reached an accommodation.

But the Shi'ites, the largest Moslem group and once the most deprived, have been heartened by the example of Iran, armed by Libya and Syria, and made militant by the excesses of the Israeli occupiers. They will not accept a return to the situation as it was.

In the Christian heartlands north of Beirut, the failed doctor and self-professed extremist Samir Geaga has rebelled against the moderate policies of Amin Gemayel to fight for the establishment of a Christian State in a hostile Moslem sea.

And throughout Lebanon, former presidents and prime ministers, priests and sheikhs jockey for position.

The long agony of a once-fair country has far from ended, and many more seem bound to join the 40,000 who have so far died in 10 years of horrific civil strife.

Khomeini Guards put down unrest

By JOHN BULLOCH Diplomatic Staff

SEASONED units from the Pasdaran, Iran's Revolutionary Guards, have withdrawn from the front facing Iraq to deal with anti-Khomeini demonstrations, according to reports in London.

Iranian dissidents in touch with their homeland said yesterday that southern Teheran had seen six days of demonstrations.

Mobs from these poor, densely-populated districts had played the biggest part in the fall of the Shah and the installation of Ayatollah Khomeini.

The 1,600-strong Mousva ben Jaafar Brigade of the Pasdaran has been moved from the front to deal with the unrest in the capital, according to the reports from Iran.

Men from this unit have gone on rampages through the poor areas to intimidate people.

Foreigners visiting Teheran said much of the unrest appeared to stem from Iran's unsuccessful offensive three weeks ago. They believed at least 30,000 Iranians were killed then, with a similar number wounded.

Morale cracked

"In addition, Iraqi planes bombed dozens of Iranian cities, causing at least 5,000 casualties according to announcements in Teheran," one visitor reported.

All that, after almost five years of war with no end in sight, appeared to have cracked Iranian morale, he said.

The main opposition groups, with their headquarters in Paris, have been urging Iranians to rise against Khomeini. "It was people taking to the streets who got rid of the Shah," said one Mujahideen official. "Those same people will soon sweep Khomeini away."

Eight public executions in the northern town of Roodsar, plus reports of other hangings in Teheran's Evin prison, have increased tension. At the same time, Iraq, once clearly desperate for peace at almost any price, has shown itself in militant mood.

Tanker hit

Yesterday the Cyprus-owned tanker Kypros, 125,000 tons, was under tow after being hit by an Iraqi-fired Exocet missile as it headed for the Iranian oil terminal of Kharg Island.

With consumer goods difficult to find and essentials appearing at irregular intervals, this demonstration of Iraqi determination to maintain its blockade and thus cripple Iran economically has been noted by the people of Teheran.

"A mass anti-war movement will come next," one dissident predicted. "When that happens, Khomeini will disappear."

Pull-out to continue Israel makes clear

By MAIER ASHER in Jerusalem

THE resignation of the Karami Government in Lebanon will not affect the withdrawal of Israeli troops, which will continue as planned, it was made clear in Jerusalem yesterday.

Israel's only aim was to ensure peace on its northern border through deployment of its forces on the Israeli side, the sources said.

Mr Rabin, Defence Minister, confirmed that the pull-out of Israeli forces from Lebanon was speeding up and Israeli troops would shortly evacuate the port and region of Tyre, wherethey have been sustaining casualties from Shi'ite guerrillas.

Most heavy equipment, including the vital electronic installations on Jebel Baruch mountain, used to survey Lebanese and Syrian army activities, had either been brought out or would be evacuated in the next few weeks, according to military sources.

The end of the second stage of the three-phase withdrawal should be complete by the end of this month. Israel will then be left in control of an area in south Lebanon roughly the size of the area controlled by the Christian militia before the outbreak of the Lebanese war in June 1982.

Guerrilla threat

This is a strip some six miles wide by 30 miles long, mostly along the Litani river.

Israeli forces are expected to be completely out of Lebanon by the end of May.

The security zone in south Lebanon would then be left in the control of local Druze Christians and Shi'ite militias in the respective villages, and known as the South Lebanese Army, Mr Rabin said.

In principle Israeli troops will then not cross into south Lebanon. They will go across the border only if "events dictate so," Mr Rabin said, referring to the possibilty of guerrilas entering the Israeli security zone and the local militias being unable to deal with them.

PERES AND MUBARAK 'TO MEET'

MR PERES, the Israeli Prime Minister, and President Mubarak of Egypt will meet next month at a place yet to be chosen, a senior Israeli official said yesterday.

The official also told a group of reporters in Jerusalem that he believed the two leaders would conduct negotiations personally, and not merely confirm agreements already reached by subordinates.

National unity

The official said Mr Peres and the Israeli Foreign Minister Mr Shamir, who lead their country's government of national unity, agreed last week on a three-member team to set up arrangements for the summit meeting. The Minister without Portfolio, Mr Ezer Weizman, is in Cairo.

The official, who spoke on condition he would not be identified, said speculation in Israeli newspapers about a May meeting was "no mistake."

"He would not mind if it be in Jerusalem, Cairo, Tel Aviv or any other place," he added. UPI.

CRIMES CUT BY TENG'S DRIVE

China's sweeping anti-crime drive, in which at least 10,000 people are reported to have been executed, had brought the nation's crime rate to its lowest level in 36 years, Liu Fuzhi, Minister of Public Security, said in Peking yesterday in an interview with the English-language CHINA DAILY.

He said there were 510,000 criminal cases in 1984, a 15·7 per cent. decline from 1983—the year in which China's strongman, Teng Hsiao-ping, launched the anti-crime drive and the kinds of offence punishable by death went up from 10 to 29.—UPI.

HU'S WARNING ON CHINA TRADE

By Our Melbourne Correspondent

Hu Yaobang, general secretary of the Chinese Communist party, said yesterday in the concluding stage of his visit to Australia that he expected trade between China and Australia to quadruple by the end of the century.

He also said that because of China's lack of funds and expertise in many fields some projects between the two countries might not be very profitable for Australia in the short term.

LIFE FOR ROCKET ATTACK ISRAELI

A Jerusalem tribunal sentenced a teenage Israeli soldier to life imprisonment yesterday for firing an anti-tank missile into a busload of Palestinians last year, killing one.

GERMAN-TYPE SCHOOLS URGED IN PLACE OF COMPREHENSIVES

By MARGOT NORMAN Education Staff

THE Russians realised 20 years ago that comprehensive schools could not work, the Americans started abandoning them a decade ago, the West Germans never made the mistake of adopting them in the first place, and it is high time Britain admitted that the comprehensive idea has been discredited, according to a new report.

West Germany's flourisinhg technical schools (Realschulen), which have long been regarded as a major factor in the country's economic success, should be the model for a new type of British school, says the report by the Centre for Policy Studies, the Right-wing think-tank.

"Comprehensivisation" should stop now, and the Government and industry together should set up experimental technical schools.

The author, Mr Fred Naylor, looks at the Soviet Union, the United States, Germany and Britain, in "Technical Schools: a tale of four countries," and concludes that the Germans, with their tripartite system of Gymnasien (grammar schools), Realschulen (technical schools) and Hauptschulen (general but vocationally-orientated schools), have got it right.

Britain attempted a three-tier system and set up some technical schools, like the City of Bath Technical School, of which Mr Naylor was headmaster for six years. But they had hardly got going before they were swallowed up in the comprehensive movement.

In West Germany, by contrast, the Realschulen have gone from strength to strength.

Now 30 per cent. of German 16-year-olds manage four "core" O-level passes, compared with 12 per cent. in England, and Germany has never suffered the lack of able technicians and skilled manpower that has bedevilled Britain.

Even the lower ability group of German 16-year-olds are two years ahead of their English counterparts in maths.

The Russians, says the author, have been in retreat from a fully comprehensive schooling system since the 1960s. Once the idea of "socialist competition" became acceptable, there sprang up several types of school for different elites, often with selection starting at the age of seven.

Apart from the specialist "hot house" boarding schools for a single subject such as maths or languages, there are "mass schools with special profile" which resemble technical schools. By 1968 there were 100 of them in Moscow alone.

Similarly, in the United States, "magnet" schools have developed as an alternative to comprehensives. By the mid-70s, parents were horrified by the collapse of order in schools, there were 70,000 serious physical attacks on teachers a year, 9,000 forcible rapes in schools, and teacher unions debated whether head teachers should carry guns.

The appeal of the new magnet schools was their clear individual identity—a school might have a science theme and a special interest in preparing pupils for work in hospitals and health centres, for example.

Short life

During the short life of his own technical school in Bath, pupils achieved six O-Level passes apiece and did especially well in maths and physics. Yet half of them were not bright enough to get into grammar school.

Mr Naylor gives two reasons for their success—"first, the schools were small and their staff devoted to the aims of a technical education, with a bias towards science and technology. The pupils appreciated this special ethos.

"Next—and most important—they benefited from the sheer relief from concentrated academic studies that they experienced in various manual activities."

Teachers' unions apply new pressure

By SARAH THOMPSON Education Staff

TEACHERS' unions yesterday shelved an offer of intervention by the independent conciliation body Acas and decided instead to put new pressure on local authorities to raise their pay offer of 4 per cent.

After a two and a quarter hour meeting in London, the largest of the six teachers' unions, the National Union of Teachers, prevailed over the others to adopt a "wait and see" policy until the employer's side of the negotiating team has met tomorrow.

'Totally unacceptable'

Mr Fred Jarvis, NUT general secretary, said the teachers hoped that the employers would reconvene another meeting of the Burnham Committee on pay, to bring both sides together again after weeks of school disruption by strikes.

Mr Jarvis added: "We will also expect the employers to show a readiness to make a better offer than their current four per cent., which is totally unacceptable to all concerned."

No decision, he said, had been taken on the offer from Acas.

DEAD WOMAN NAMED

News Round-up

Britain branded as 'bad neighbour' on environment

By ROBERT BEDLOW Estates Correspondent

BRITAIN has become Europe's "bad neighbour" in environmental matters, Dr David Clark, Opposition Front Bench spokesman on "green affairs, claimed yesterday.

He was launching a campaign to force the Government to join other European countries and sign up for the so-called "30 per cent. Club."

The club commits countries to reduce acidic emissions by 30 per cent. by 1993.

"The Government's policy of inaction not only threatens the environment of our neighbours, but also the fabric of Britain's own natural environment," he said.

"Britain is now widely regarded as the bad neighbour in Europe on environmental matters. The result is that we are losing goodwill and also potential export orders, with the consequent job losses."

First step

More than 100 MPs, from all parties, have signed an Early Day Motion which calls on the Government to join the "30 per cent Club" as recommended by the Commons Environment Committee "as a first step in reducing the air pollution responsible for acid deposition."

The launch of Acid Rain Week, supported by the majority of the country's conservation groups, coincided with the results of a poll carried out by NOP and commissioned by the Greater London Council.

It shows that people are willing to pay the bill to reduce the causes of air pollution and acid rain from power stations and vehicles.

By-pass route recommended

The Countryside Commission has urged the Government to accept the recent recommendation of the joint committee of Peers and MPs and give urgent priority to building a by-pass to the north of Okehampton. This would protect the National Park from development.

Last month the committee voted by four votes to two to reject the southern route approved by the Government after conservation groups exercised therarely used right to petition a joint committee of both Houses against implementing the compulsory purchase orders. A public inquiry had found in favour of the southern route.

Peers favour PR vote for ILEA

An all-party group of peers has tabled an amendment to the Government's Local Government (Abolition) Bill calling for all elections to the Inner London Education Authority to be decided by proportional representation following the demise of the Greater London Council.

This last-ditch amendment could prove an embarrassment to the Government and could result in the abolition Bill going back to the Commons for further debate.

'Legal reasons' halt spy trial

The Old Bailey spy trial involving eight Servicemen came to a halt — only one day after the start.

Irish Primate to retire

The Church of Ireland Archbishop of Dublin, Dr Henry McAdoo, 69, is to retire on medical advice in view of a heart condition. The Archbishop is one of the best known and most widely respected leaders throughout the Anglican Communion.

As a tribute to his bravery the B M A has entered his name in its Book of Valour.

Artificial tees for golfers

Golfers will anxiously await the results of an experiment with synthetic grass to be launched at Stirling University.

Approved by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St Andrew's, the ultimate ruling golf body, the university has spent £8,500 on artificial tees to be used on seven of the nine holes on the university course.

Sacking appeal

A bus driver who was sacked for opting out of a Transport Union closed shop because he objected to the union's Labour Party affiliation, has been given the right to take his case to the Court of Appeal. Mr Jim Sakals, 58, who worked for United Counties, was dismissed after 22 years' service.

'Prove your cash' law faces drug runners

By JOHN WEEKS Crime Staff

A PLAN to make suspected drug traffickers prove how they acquired money found in bank accounts or at their homes instead of leaving police to prove it came from selling hard drugs is being considered by the Home Office.

The reversal of the usual stand of proof is one of a range of options being considered against racketeers dealing in heroin and cocaine.

Other schemes include the examination of bank accounts in the Cayman Islands and other tax havens to prevent the "laundering" of drugs money.

Also convicted traffickers would be made bankrupt so that they did not come out of prison to a life of luxury.

Mr David Mellor, Home Office minister, said yesterday that the Government was determined to do all it could to stop criminals making huge sums of money through drugs.

He recently returned from an eight-day American tour to assess what was being done to curb drugs there and in particular to prevent the spectacular rise in cocaine sniffing in America from reaching Britain.

ARAB SHOPLIFTER SENT TO JAIL

An Egyptian woman who was caught shoplifting twice within three days of arriving in London began a 14-day prison sentence yesterday because she was unable to pay a £1,000 fine imposed at Marlborough Street.

Mrs Shadia Ismail, 35, arrived on Sunday, stole clothes worth £175 from C & A in Oxford Street on Monday and was fined £500 at Marlborough Street on Tuesday. That same day she went to Marks & Spencer in Oxford Street and stole clothes worth £28.

8 YEARS FOR WOMAN DRUG SMUGGLER

An attractive American blonde drug smuggler caught with £240,000 worth of cocaine at Heathrow was jailed for eight years at Reading Crown Court yesterday.

CAROLE HAMNER, 29 of Lake Geneva, Florida, admitted smuggling the drug from Caracas, Venezuela.

Mr Justice KENNETH JONES told her: "It had better be known as widely as possible that people who are prepared to bring these terrible drugs into this country will receive very severe sentences. Let yours be an example."

Cocaine inside

Mr DAVID BARNARD, prosecuting, said a Customs officer became suspicious of her radio casette player. The cocaine, found inide, was packed so well that the machine was still capable of operating.

Mr HENRY SETRIGHT, for Hamner, said she was simply a courier. She came from a respectable family, but had travelled the world and spent some time crewing luxury yachts.

In another case at Reading the judge jailed a building worker for seven years for smuggling £65,000 worth of heroin into Heathrow.

Vinod Malhotra, 27, who had arrived from New Delhi, where he lived pleaded guilty.

How to save £3,000 on accountants.

Your accounting package is the most important piece of software you will ever buy.

And probably the finest range of accounting software for business computers is made by BOS.

So in theory you simply buy BOS software and shop around for the hardware. Correct?

Well, not quite.

An offer you can't refute.

Only Logica has a business computer: the Kennet, capable of running BOS software to its full potential.

Only a company of Logica's size and reputation can afford to offer BOS software free.

Order a Kennet/BOS network by May 31st 1985 and we'll make you this unique offer:

We'll give you three BOS multi-user programs, Nominal, Purchase, and Sales Ledger, worth £3,000 absolutely Free.

Top accounting partnership.

The Kennet/BOS package covers all your accounting needs, consisting of Sales, Purchase, and Nominal Ledgers, Invoicing, Sales Order Processing, Payroll, Inventory Control, and Fixed Assets.

Unlike some other ready-made packages you are not expected to alter your procedures to suit the programs.

For instance, the Nominal Ledger can prepare financial statements in exactly the same format as manual methods.

Yet it can also look after up to 99 companies and provide totally integrated spreadsheets for each one.

The computer that enables you to achieve all this is a remarkable piece of hardware by any standard.

(Its predecessor, Logica's VTS 2200 word processor received the Queen's Award for Technological Achievement).

The Kennet's processing speed is about twice as fast as IBM's PC or ACT's Apricot.

There is no limit to its potential, from single screen configurations to complete networks.

Growth without growing pains.

Whether your business grows by fits and starts or quantum leaps the Kennet/BOS network will grow with it.

Up to 150 screens can be accommodated on one network to completely revolutionise your company procedures.

Vital business and accounting information is secure, controlled and above all, available to every user.

The resources of the company are on a simple, smooth upgrade path.

'FRANCHISE' PLAN FOR NAVY YARDS IS CONDEMNED

By PETER PRYKE Parliamentary Correspondent

THE prospect of the Royal dockyards being operated by commercial managements, which was opened up by a Government statement in the Commons yesterday, was condemned by Mr DENZIL DAVIES, Shadow Defence Secretary, as unworkable.

"These privatisation proposals will be bad for the Royal Navy, for its ships and those who sail in them, and for the loyal workforce," he said.

He pledged Labour to fight privatisation by "all legitimate means inside and outside the House."

Mr Davies described as harebrained the Government's preferred option of each dockyard, while remaining in Government ownership, being operated for a period of years by a company chosen by the Government following an open competitive process.

"Franchise may be suitable for a fast food burger bar, but it is totally unsuitable to refit and repair the ships and submarines of the Royal Navy," he declared.

'Harsh reality'

Mr HESELTINE, Defence Secretary, who had announced in a statement a two to three-month consultation period on changes in the dockyards, said the Government was determined to end "significant inefficiencies and significant overmanning" in them.

He praised their performance during he Faiklands war, but added that many people in the private sector had responded in the same way.

"While we admire the dockyards, we cannot escape the harsh reality that absenteeism in the dockyards now accounts on average for every person employed there are four working weeks in a year—40 per cent. above the national average."

Mr Heseltine's announcement that redundancies totalling about 2,000 would be needed at Devonport and Rosyth upset some Conservative MPs.

He told Miss Janet Fookes (C., Plymouth Drake), who had expressed her "dismay," that he hoped that over a two-year period a relatively small proportion of the redundancies would be compulsory.

In his statement, Mr Heseltine said he he intended to announce his decision on the future of the dockyards before the summer recess.

While he was opening a period of consultation, he made plain his preference for the option of commercial management.

This seemed "the best way forward" to the Government since it secured continuing competition while maintaining control over the national strategic assets involved. It offered the prospect of "a tauter, more flourishing enterprise."

He accepted that the strategy of a trading fund within the public sector, put forward by the Conservative MP Mr Keith Speed when he was a junior Defence Minister, would achieve some improvements.

But it would not give the enterprise sufficient freedom from Civil Service constraints for it to operate efficiently in a competitive environment, Mr Heseltine said.

Labour MPs were severely critical of the part played by Mr Peter Levene, an adviser to Mr Heseltine, in framing the proposals for change.

Mr GORDON BROWN (Lab. Dunfermline E.), describing the proposals as "seeking to subordinate the interests of national security to commercial gain," said: "They are the disreputable plans of a discredited adviser, who spent much of last year hawking the Royal dockyards round to his friends in the private sector."

Deploring the "scurrilous language," Mr HESELTINE replied: "It is an extraordinary thing about this country that everybody knows there is an urgent need to get more industrial experience into the management of public affairs, but the moment we do so the Labour party tries to sabotage the endeavour."

Mr DAVIES: Bad for the Navy and for the loyal workforce.

He declared in his statement that whatever option was chosen the Government would insist that control remained in British hands, but Mr DALE CAMPBELL-SAVOURS (Lab., Workington) asked if this meant that as much as 49 per cent. of equity could be owned by foreign interests.

Mr HESELTINE replied that he had not yet worked out the precise mechanism for securing control of the company. "There is a quite clear commitment that the control of this company remains firmly in British hands."

Dr DAVID OWEN, Leader of the SDP, said that after the tributes on their Falklands performance, the dockyards would have a deep sense of betrayal.

He asked for an extension of the consultation period to six months, and said that the franchise proposal seemed to be total nonsense, offering no job security.

Pentagon 'difficulties'

Rejecting an extended period, Mr HESELTINE said that the original idea had been leaked out of his department a year ago and since then had been extensively discussed.

The franchise proposal was defended by Mr Heseltine on the grounds that it had been successful in the United States, but Mr SPEED (C., Ashford) suggested there had been difficulties between the Pentagon and a private company recently.

The first priority had to be the standard of service to the Navy, Mr Speed said.

Heffer rises to defence of Princess

By WILLIAM WEEKES Parliamentary Staff

A LEADING Labour Left-winger came to the defence of Princess Michael of Kent in the Commons yesterday in the controversy over her father's membership of the Nazi party and the SS.

Mr ERIC HEFFER (Walton), a former Front Bench spokesman, argued that the Princess was no more responsible for her father's past than he had been responsible for his own father becoming a Regimental Sergeant Major.

He accused some newspapers, particularly the "so-called Labour party paper called the MIRROR," of acting disgracefully towards the Princess.

It was the DAILY MIRROR which disclosed on Tuesday that her father, Baron Gunther von Reibnitz, had belonged to the SS.

"I do not know her and I have never met her," Mr Heffer said during a speech on the Interception of Communications Bill.

"I do not know her politics and I am sure they are completely different to everything I believe in. But nobody can be responsible for their parents."

'Not responsible'

When Mr Heffer said that, luckily, his father was not a murderer but happened to have been a Regimental Sergeant Major, one Labour colleague shouted: "That's worse."

"I did not become a Regimental Sergeant Major and had no intention of becoming one," Mr Heffer went on. "None of us are responsible."

Accusing some newspapers of "disgraceful" behaviour, Mr Heffer added: "If there has been a cover-up, concentrate on the cover-up and not on the actual princess herself.

"It is of no importance and does not advance our political arguments one iota."

When Mr Heffer was reminded by the chair that these issues were not within the scope of the Bill, he replied: "It is important that someone, particularly on the Left of the Labour party should make it quite clear we are not against people because their parents might have been Nazis or, in this country, Mosleyites or anything else.

"We are opposed to what these people (the parents) stood for."

Clause defeated

On the report stage of the Bill, a Labour new clause to give a Commons Select Committee responsibility for overseeing the work of those involved in interception was defeated by 212 votes to 143, Government majority 69.

Mr CLIVE SOLEY, from the Labour Front Bench, said the protection of democratic and civil rights should have a high priority in Parliament. One way of doing that was to set up a Select Committee to oversee the work of the security forces.

Mr WADDINGTON, Home Office Minister, said that for the first time the clause would give a Commons Select Committee power to scrutinise matters involving the day-to-day operation of police work. That was not the task of such a committee.

BURDEN ON FIRMS TO BE EASED

By WALTER ABURN Parliamentary Staff

A PROMISE to examine ways to reduce the burdens on business was made by Lord YOUNG, Minister without Portfolio, in the Lords yesterday.

He was taking part in a debate in which Lord BOARDMAN (C) complaeind of bars to the creation of wealth and jobs resulting from old, dead legislation and the Government's own administrative acts.

Lord YOUNG said: "I shall aim with colleagues to make progress by reducing the cost to industry in compliance with Government rules.

"I believe there is a great opportunity today to achieve decisive progress in creating the climate in which enterprise can flourish. We intend to make the most of this opportunity.

"Let us say on this afternoon—perhaps the firm warm day of spring—that this is the opportunity for a real spring-clean."

In opening the debate Lord BOARDMAN, former Industry Minister and an ex-Chief Secretary to the Treasury, commended steps to ease the bureaucracy and added that there was much still to do.

It was better to have a job without assurance of long-term employment than no job at all.

Government regulations and trade union restrictions had played a major part in preventing young people from acquiring the skills and experience which would give them proper jobs.

Severe penalties were imposed on industry and commerce which had to foot the bill for local authorities who all to often pandered to the non-ratepaying electorate.

Complying with so many Government regulations was a vast expensive operation.

Massive indictment

Lord Boardman called for a joint all-party select committee of both Lords and Commons to review the working of old laws which were a bar to investment and employment

Lord BRUCE of DONINGTON (Lab.) said that while he had his reservations as to the truth of what had been said, it was a massive indictment of a Government. For five years they had said there was no alternative to their policies.

Now they stood indicted for not taking effective action when the solution to a large part of our unemployment was in their hands all the time.

If VAT collection was a grievous burden to industry why were 28 pages of the current Finance Bill putting even more stringent requirements on small business?

Lord YOUNG said that all too often instead of giving enterprise room to flourish governments had smothered it. Legislation on the Statute Book had doubled over the past 30 years.

Governments of both parties were equally to blame that it was now a major drain on industry and on small firms in particular.

But some regulations must always be necessary to protect employees, consumers and the public and it was important to see the balance was right.

In a maiden speech Lord VINSON (C) said our primary need was for a healthy manufacturing sector. Much depended on our "sunrise" industries and the midway and sunset ones too.

At the heart of the wealth producing process the ability, inventiveness and enterprise of the British people—our most important asset.

Mr STEEL: Twenty years in Parliament.

Steel sees no hope for Labour

By VALERIE ELLIOTT Political Staff

MR STEEL, Liberal Leader, said yesterday that he did not believe there would again be a majority Labour government in Britain.

The decline of Labour had been persistent and long-term since the 1966 General Election, and in half the country Labour was the third party, said Mr Steel.

"They have been gradually driven back to the lagers of the traditional old industrial areas, and even there in many places lively local Liberals have successfully attacked what has become an elderly and complacent Labour establishment.

"Whatever short-term perking up there may be in the opinion polls for Labour, I do not believe we shall ever again see a majority Labour government in Britain."

'Bleak' cities

Mr Steel, who was reflecting on his 20 years as an MP, said how struck he was by the widening class divisions, particularly during Mrs Thatcher's administration.

"What do we see in Thatcher Britain?" he asked. "The rich getting richer, with Hooray Henries and Sloane Rangers finding new ways of spending daddy's money exclusively, and the poor getting poorer, with parts of the northern cities beginning to look as bleak as the paintings by L. S. Lowry."

Mr Steel said he had always believed that the class system in Britain would be swept away.

He also spoke out against the behaviour of MPs. He lamented: "The decline in civility in the House itself.

Tories fight polls as 'thrifty' party

By JOHN CRIGSBY Local Government Correspondent

CONSERVATIVE councillors will tell the electors that they give far better value for money, Tory leaders said yesterday at the launch of the campaign for the county council elections on May 2.

They said that they expected to win from Labour control of Avon, Cheshire, Lancashire, Cumbria, Humberside and South Glamorgan.

At present, the Tories control 19 of the 47 non-metropolitan counties in England and Wales, Labour 14, the Liberals one and Independents three.

Mr Kenneth Baker, Local Government Minister, said that the average rate poundage in Labour areas was 178p, in councils controlled by a coalition 156p, and in Tory areas 148p.

"Labour likes high spending and high rates. Conservatives like low spending and low rates," he said.

Limited life

Mr Jenkin, Environment Secretary, said that the 62 per cent. rate increases in Labour areas overthe past four years were exactly double those in Tory authorities.

He said the Government did not regard the present rating system as having more than a limited life but the Cabinet had not yet decided whether to introduce legislation before or after the next General Election.

Labour is fielding a record number of 2,000 candidates. The party believes it could win outright control of Cheshire, Northamptonshire, Leicestershire and Warwickshire.

It is to campaign on what it sees as the inconsistencies shown by the Prime Minister o nthe reform of the rating system, the abolition of the Greater London Council and the shire counties and alleged harsh cuts carried out by Conservative County administrations.

Dr John Cunningham, Shadow Environment Secretary, said that Mrs Thatcher had twice promised to abolish rates. But during her term of office they had doubled from an average of £128 to £345.

Labour blames the cut in rate support grant—the money the Government gives local councils towards their costs—from £12,226 million in 1978-79 to £8,489 million this year—as the major cause of the increases.

It disputes the Tory argument that it does not provide value for money, pointing out that the average weekly rate bill in Labour shire counties is 50p below that in Tory counties.

Candidates from the Social Democratic Liberal Alliance expect to hold the balance in a number of county councils after the elections—the first in which they have worked together.

Mr Steel, Liberal leader, said they hoped to gain about 200 seats to add to the 340 they had at present.

Mr Simon Hughes, the party's local government spokesman believed that 20 of the 47 counties could be "hung"—with no party in overall control.

The Alliance is fielding record 2,000 candidates.

In a joint statement Mr Steel and Dr Owen, SDP leader supported a local income tax which would gradually replace rates as a means with proportional representation, of making councils more accountable to local people.

The Ecology party is fielding just over 250 candidates, mainly in Kent, Hereford and Worcester, Bristol and Peterborough.

Move to save car jobs

By Our Political Staff

A LABOUR MP yesterday introduced a Bill in the Commons to ensure that all cars sold in the country contained at least 50 per cent. of components made in Britain.

Mr DOUGLAS HOYLE (Warrington N), vice president of the white-collar union ASTMS, introduced his Bill yesterday under the 10-minute Rule.

He said: "The object is to create and protect jobs in the United Kingdom motor vehicle and components industry. I believe this Bill is of vital importance to stop further job losses in the car and associated industries.

"The numbers employed have dropped from 1,200,000 in the early 1970s to under half a million today."

The main reason was not the recession or consumer preference for foreign cars.

It was that the major United Kingdom producers were siting capacity elsewhere; these new places acting as the source of British production and sales.

CLASH OVER RACE ROW HEADMASTER

By Our Parliamentary Staff

A debate about the suspension from duty of Mr Ray Honeyford, a Bradford headmaster, after a race relations row, ended in angry exchanges in the Commons as reported in later editions of The DAILY TELEGRAPH yesterday.

After Mr Honeyford had been strongly defended by Mr MARCUS FOX (C, Shipley), who described him as the victim of persecution by "Trots and Marxists," Mr MAX MADDEN (Lab, Bradford, W.) complained that he had been denied a chance to speak on behalf of the parents who "have lost confidence in Mr Honeyford."

The row took up so much of the half-hour adjournment debate that Mr Robert Dunn, Education Under-Secretary, was prevented from making his speech in reply.

Information and network security

-the engineering challenge

Up to £15,300 — Ipswich

With data transmission now set to become one of the most important elements of telecommunications, information security offers a wide range of specialist interests to Electrical Engineers – from data privacy and financial services to message loss and network design.

As a world leader in the telecommunications business, British Telecom is advancing developments in this field, under the leadership of its Information Security Section – a specialist centre of excellence within its Technology Executive. This provides a consultancy to British Telecom operational divisions on the protection of customer information while in transit through its networks and on a wide range of custom-built services.

The Section now has a number of opportunities for engineers who seek the challenge of working on new technology and ground work for future systems. Vacancies are in the following areas: Standards and Liaison • Strategy and Products • System Design and Application • Secure Techniques

Candidates will ideally be experienced honours graduates with a degree in Electrical Engineering or related disciplines, thoroughly acquainted with the leading-edge techniques of communications and computer security and their incorporation in telecommunications systems.

Starting salaries will be up to £15,300 depending on qualifications and experience – with excellent prospects for promotion.

Ipswich, in the picturesque county of Suffolk, is within easy access of the cities of Cambridge and Norwich and yet hardly more than an hour away from London by rail. Nearby is the East Anglian Heritage Coast of Orford and Aldeburgh and the Continent is only a short boat trip away.

CONFIDENTIAL APPLICANT RESPONSE & EVALUATION

AN AD INTERNATIONAL (UK) LTD.

TECH. SALES MANAGER — c.£24000 p.a. Tax free

A major international paint manufacturer needs to appoint a Sales Manager with at least three years experience of selling powder coatings, and with a formal training in the coatings industry.
Based in Bangkok on a 2–3 year contract, bachelor status is essential.
You will be responsible for maintaining and increasing market share of a range of specialised coatings in the Far East, New Zealand and Australia.
In-depth knowledge of powder coatings and their application is therefore vital.
The benefits package is most generous, and includes a car, free accommodation and four weeks paid home leave. Ref: 4/5047.

SALES DEVELOPMENT MANAGER (EUROPE) — c.£18000 p.a.

A major manufacturer of high technology products applied to health care and medical research needs a well trained, skilled leader for a key development role in Western Europe.
Operating from Head Office in the Home Counties you will be responsible for running sales training programmes for product launches, ensuring that sales personnel maintain overall technical knowledge of the product range, and preparing feature benefit analyses to ensure effective sales communication.
Essential ingredients in your background are a degree in a life science, a second language (preferably Scandinavian based), at least five years selling experience in the medical/pharmaceutical fields and a detailed knowledge of the health care business in Europe. Benefits include a car, pension and relocation if necessary. Ref: 4/5048

SENIOR ANALYST/PROGRAMMER — c.£16000 p.a.

Our client is in the process of launching Europe's most advanced communications system. A Senior Analyst with well developed management and leadership skills is needed to lead a team in the design and development of a billing system comprising on-line and batch facilities.
Vital components in your background are a proven record of systems design achievement, sound experience of COBOL programming in an IBM environment and the management of tight deadlines and schedules preferably involving financial applications. A knowledge of VM and DOS/VSE operating systems will be most useful.
The package includes outstanding pension arrangements and the usual blue chip benefits. Ref: 4/5049

WORKS SERVICE ENGINEER — c.£14000 p.a.

A major British high technology corporation needs an experienced engineer for a key role at their West London Office.
Within multi-million pound developments, you will be responsible, as part of a team, for projects from inception to handover, co-ordinating and implementing all day to day aspects of works service.
You should have a degree or HNC in Mechanical or Electrical Engineering together with substantial building services experience. This should encompass preparation of functional briefs and technical specifications, contract and project management and site control.
The package offers an excellent pension scheme and the usual large company benefits. Ref: 4/5050

SOFTWARE ENGINEERS — c.£14000 p.a.

A major force in telecommunications has embarked on an extensive development programme and needs several highly skilled Software Engineers.
Based in rural Berkshire you will be working as a member of a small, professional team in a high pressure environment with extremely tight deadlines. . .
The language requirement is CORAL, PASCAL, 'C', PLAN and Assembler, and it is essential that you have experience of large real time systems, preferably related to telephony. In your early to mid-twenties you should be qualified to at least HNC level, but preferably, you should have a Computer Sciences degree.
The benefits package is most attractive and reflects the stature of the organisation. Ref: 4/5051

SYSTEMS ANALYST — c.£12500 p.a.

A highly profitable subsidiary of a major British Group, now in its tenth year and growing at a rate of 30% per annum, needs an enthusiastic, self-motivated young Analyst for a vital development role.
Reporting to the Systems Manager, you will be responsible for Reality and VAX financial systems running under Adabas, which therefore calls for at least five years industry experience with Adabas, together with project experience in Natural and BASIC. IBM PC experience will be useful. You should be in your mid twenties and ready for career development in a growth industry.
Benefits include a car, subsidised BUPA, life cover and profit related bonus, and where appropriate, relocation assistance to South London. Ref: 4/5052

Two Outstanding Sales Management Opportunities

Office Automation Equipment

A £multi-million investment is at the heart of this totally British company. Established in 1982 with the aim of marketing a range of low-cost, high quality office automation equipment, it has recently launched its first product which is already receiving a high level of praise and recognition from customers and competitors alike. The system offers a blend of versatility, ease of operation and value for money unique in the text-processing marketplace.

Now, to capitalise on the initial success of the product and expand the reach of the company's sales drive, two high-calibre, senior sales managers, male or female, will be appointed to develop business further in two specific areas:

Dealer Manager

c.£20,000 + car + benefits — North Midlands/Manchester

With the success of the product very much dependent upon the calibre of the dealer network, your role will be to identify, support and develop dealers in the northern half of the UK. The ability to motivate and adopt a disciplined approach towards and influence over dealers will be key attributes. Your brief will extend to setting dealer sales and revenue objectives and ensuring their achievement. Experience in training salesmen in sales techniques and product knowledge, monitoring competitive activities, and formulating sales campaigns would be advantageous.

Aged 30-40 you must have five years' sales experience with a major supplier of office equipment, preferably electronic typewriters, screen add-ons or word processors. At least two years' responsibility for territory sales with demonstrably successful results is a prerequisite. Your experience will also encompass dealer manager, recruitment and support. Ref: ABD 9195.

Major Accounts Manager

c.£20,000 + car + benefits

Reporting to the UK Sales Manager, you will establish high-level contacts in major national accounts, both in the public and private sector, providing product expertise and knowledge of applications for the equipment. You will spearhead and stimulate business and will ensure that opportunities opened up by dealers themselves are fully exploited nationwide.

You must have at least five years' experience in electronic equipment with a measure of communications expertise and be able to demonstrate two years' successful sales to major accounts in the UK. Aged in your 30's, you should be willing to travel extensively in the UK. Ref: ABM 9196.

To apply, please send CV, including current salary, quoting the appropriate reference, or telephone for an application form to Zita Kelly, Austin Knight Selection, 20 Soho Square, London W1A 1DS. Telephone: 01-437 9261.

Applications are forwarded to the client concerned, therefore companies in which you are not interested should be listed in a covering letter to the Confidential Reply Supervisor.

Austin Knight Selection — LONDON

Contracts Personnel

Up to £17,000 — South Coast

Our client, who operates in an expanding hi-tech electronics environment, is seeking to appoint a number of contracts/commercial personnel at various levels of responsibility.

The work will cover the range of commercial activities including estimating, pricing, purchasing and negotiation of £multi-million contracts.

There will be the opportunity to travel both in the UK and abroad. Experience of dealing with UK and foreign Government agencies is essential for the senior posts.

An autonomous company operating within a large multi-national organisation, the client is situated in an attractive part of the South Coast. The environment offers considerable scope for career development at all levels.

Interested men and women should write with brief career details to the Confidential Reply Service, Ref: AJC 0708, Austin Knight Advertising UK Limited, New Oxford House, 114-118 Above Bar, Southampton SO1 0DU.

Autocatalyst Applications

c.£16,000 + car — South East

Control of environmental pollution is now of worldwide concern, particularly in relation to automotive emissions. The USA, Japan and Australia have already adopted strict standards aimed at reducing exhaust pollution. With new legislation planned throughout the EEC, the future market for anti-pollution catalysts is substantial including new opportunities resulting from developments in lean-burn engine technology.

Our client is already well established in the field of anti-pollution catalysts and in order to take full advantage of the tremendous potential which exists for further development has greatly expanded its development activities. It is now looking for a man or woman, aged 30-45, to be responsible for all aspects of autocatalyst development covering both existing and new applications.

It's a role calling for several years' industrial experience coupled with a post graduate degree in the area of heterogeneous catalysis and sound experience in the development of practical base metal systems. A knowledge of platinum group metals would also be an advantage as would experience of colloid chemistry and rheology, gas phase catalysis and catalysis design, characterisation, evaluation and test procedures.

This is a key appointment demanding a high level of technical skills, well developed commercial awareness and man management ability as well as the drive, enthusiasm, personality and credibility necessary to lead and motivate an existing development team.

The role is such as to provide exceptional scope for making a substantial personal contribution and ensuring that developments are of sufficiently high calibre to enable publication of data having scientific and technological significance, thereby maintaining the Company's international standing in the catalyst industry.

Salary will be around £16,000 pa plus car and an attractive benefits package in line with the seniority of the position and standing of the Company.

Austin Knight Selection have been retained to advise on this appointment. Please telephone Barrie Witt for an application form on 021-455 6255 (office hours) or 06845 66477 (evenings) or write to him quoting reference 934 at Austin Knight Selection, Tricorn House, 51-53 Hagley Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham B16 8TP.

Production Manager

Mechanical Engineering

East Sussex — c£14,000

Our client, which is part of a larger engineering group, is a growing and profitable batch engineering manufacturer, whose products are sold to a wide range of industrial customers.

They are now seeking to strengthen their manufacturing operation by the appointment of a Production Manager, reporting to the Works Director. The responsibilities will encompass all aspects of the production manager's role with the key targets of output, quality and budgetted costs. The company is part way through the implementation of a full MRP system and the appointed candidate will of course be heavily involved in its operation.

The position calls for an experienced production manager, probably aged 30-40, with a background in batch engineering manufacture. Candidates should be qualified to at least HNC level and should in addition have experience of the application of MRP systems.

We will be seeking candidates who have the potential to progress to Works Director since the current job holder is approaching retirement. The role therefore offers very specific opportunities for career development.

Applicants of either sex should apply in confidence to Bob Wilson on (0962) 53319 (24 hour service) or write to Johnson Wilson & Partners, Clarendon House, Hyde Street, Winchester, Hampshire SO23 7DX quoting ref. 590.

SOFTWARE AND CAD/CAM ENGINEERS

Advanced Software Systems in the West Country

One of the most important reasons for Westland continuing to lead international competition in the design and manufacture of helicopters, has been the Company's determination in developing advanced software systems throughout its operation.

Our Programmers and Systems Specialists work at the leading edge of current technology and gain experience which is second to none. Add to that our superb location in Somerset and you'll see that these opportunities, at the heart of our software teams, are definitely not to be missed.

ENGINEERING DATABASE MANAGER

For the first time, we are ready to pool together the prodigious quantity of documented and graphic engineering manufacturing information from an abundance of sources onto a major database. This postholder will mastermind the design of the database and direct its development, implementation and maintenance. Initial projects will lead towards the creation of an integrated database of engineering knowledge and the adoption of common classification and coding systems for the Company. Several years post graduate DP experience in an engineering environment should be coupled to proven project management ability. (Ref: 100).

ENGINEERING DATABASE TEAM

Posts for Engineering or Computer Science graduates with 2-6 years experience of design and programming, are available in this new [illegible]. A background in hierarchical and relational database technology is necessary. (Ref: 101).

CAD SOFTWARE ENGINEERS

Posts are available for CAD Analyst/Programmers with at least two years experience and a good knowledge of FORTRAN, to concentrate on Electrical or Mechanical/Structural work. Electrical specialists need a good VAX background. Mechanical/Structural specialists must have good IBM experience. Each post demands the ability to control complex projects, coupled to a total familiarity with the application and potential of CAD/CAM in engineering design and manufacture.

The jobs offer real variety in handling a very diverse range of problems from design concepts right through to production. (Ref: 102).

CAM SOFTWARE ENGINEERS

Variety and responsibility are the key elements of these posts together with IBM or DEC experience. Work involves the design and implementation of interface systems for all CAD/CAM packages and requires a good CAM background with a knowledge of DNC and NC applications, systems and programming. (Ref: 103).

SCIENTIFIC COMPUTING PROGRAMMERS

Thorough IBM or DEC experience and systems analysis are essential—and should be combined with real initiative and the capacity to make decisions relating to software selection and development. (Ref: 104).

Westland's career structure can help you achieve your full potential, whilst rewarding you with attractive benefits – including (where applicable) assistance towards relocating to our pleasant West Country location.

Interested? Then telephone for an application form or write with full CV to Steven Marsh, Westland Helicopters, Yeovil, Somerset. Tel. (0935) 75222.

Work Study Engineer

Take on a challenging role with a high technology leader

Feltham

At THORN EMI Datatech, we're building steadily on our reputation as one of the UK's most successful manufacturers of high technology products. Our impressive rate of expansion is emphasized by a dramatic increase in turnover during the last three years with further growth and development planned for the future.

As an important part of these plans we now wish to appoint a well-qualified Work Study Engineer to be based at Feltham to instigate a thorough programme of work study investigations from commencement to completion of major projects. This will involve motion economy methods, standards and standard data. You will also be expected to submit final reports on methods correction as determined by MTM.

An additional feature of your responsibilities is being able to use computerised performance reporting systems.

You are unlikely to be aged under 25 and preferably, you will possess MTM 2 and IMS Membership. MTM 1 and a background in volume electro-mechanical production would be an advantage. The qualities we particularly seek are confident communication skills which you will be using at every level and the ability to work under minimal supervision.

You will receive all the major benefits you'd expect from one of the UK's leading companies.

It is hoped to make an early appointment so please write enclosing your CV to Trevor Davies, THORN EMI Datatech, North Feltham Trading Estate, Spur Road, Feltham, Middlesex TW14 0TD. Alternatively, telephone him for an application form on 01-890 1477.

Move into Training as a Senior Lecturer

Electronics Engineer in Transmission Telecommunications Systems

STC Telecommunications is acknowledged as one of the world's leading names in advanced communications technology. Our Transmission Products Division, which is responsible for the design, development and detailed engineering of transmission networks and equipment, operates a Training Centre in Basildon where our Customer's Engineers are trained in the use of the Division's digital and optical systems.

We are now looking for an Electronics Engineer to join us as a Senior Lecturer running training programmes both at the Centre and occasionally at overseas Customer's sites.

This is a challenging and rewarding role with responsibility for all aspects of training – including designing and preparing courses and examinations, delivering lectures, leading practical product demonstrations and generally looking after the welfare of the trainees.

Our need is for an Electronics Engineer with a degree in engineering science or similar discipline and with a good technical knowledge of transmission systems. Previous lecturing experience is necessary, but training in the divisions products would be available. It is however, important that your technical knowledge will enable you to contribute quickly and fully as part of a professional team.

We are offering an attractive salary and first class fringe benefits – including assistance with relocation if required.

Please write with a full CV or telephone for an application form to: Mrs. Pam Prosser, Personnel Department, STC Telecommunications Limited, Chester Hall Lane, Basildon, Essex. Tel: Basildon (0268) 3040 ext. 261.

OFFSHORE PLATFORM PRODUCTION AND MAINTENANCE

SUPERINTENDENT

Excellent Remuneration, Car & Benefits AUSTRALIA

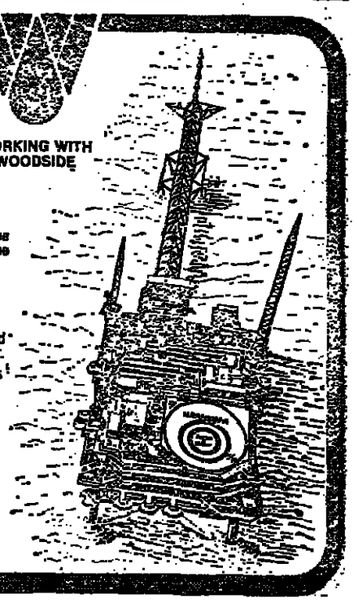
WORKING WITH WOODSIDE



In 1984, North Rankin A, the world's largest gas platform came on stream. Situated 130 km off the North West coast of Western Australia in 125 metres of water, the platform development is a part of a major energy project involving domestic and liquid natural gas.

We have been engaged by Woodside Offshore Petroleum Pty. Ltd. to recruit a key member of the offshore supervisory team. The position is a permanent one and necessitates a family move to Perth. This beautiful, modern city with a population of around one million enjoys an excellent climate, provides good schooling and an extensive range of outdoor sports and leisure activities to suit all family tastes.

The position is the most senior technical post on the platform reporting to the OIM. Major responsibilities are to direct and co-ordinate production supervisors, oversee maintenance activities, ensure safe and efficient operating practices and assist with training. We are seeking a high calibre professional with extensive technical and man management experience who will ensure that production targets are achieved. An engineering qualification would be an advantage, however, fifteen years production and maintenance experience and five years in a senior supervisory position offshore is essential.

An attractive salary together with offshore allowance, market equalisation factor, car, immediate superannuation, health benefits and relocation assistance is offered. The package is well above average in our experience for a permanent staff rotational position.

Working with WOODSIDE means enjoying the challenges and excitement of a go ahead company in a country of opportunity. Call Paul Sweet on (0493) 851611 or 851612 after 5.30 p.m. if you would like to discuss the position or benefits further; or apply immediately in writing quoting ref. 621P, enclosing full details of work experience to:

Technical Sales Development

Plastic coatings — Cheshire

The company, part of a profitable and growing UK group, is the leader in its field of specialist applications of high quality paper and laminates. Exciting new technology in plastic coatings will shortly be introduced which will require the full-time attention and efforts of a Technical Sales Development Executive. He or she will be responsible for researching existing and future markets and then leading the sales effort within them. This is a real opportunity for somebody in their early thirties who is keen to take a larger role in the development of a business.

Candidates must be salesmen/women who have a background in the field of plastics generally. They should have some knowledge of films and film coating and be technically minded, ideally with an appropriate qualification. The job demands a person who is very much a self-starter with a commercial outlook.

Salary will be negotiated to attract the right applicant and will be dependent upon experience offered. A car is provided and help will be given on any house move necessary. For the right person there are possible future career paths within the group. Please write, in confidence, with full career details to: A. D. Percival.

THEATRE / Hamlet

Cold and calculated

IF WE didn't already have the ghost's word for it and the confession in an aside by the King, we could be forgiven for wondering at the Barbican who actually did it in the Royal Shakespeare Company's "Hamlet." Might it have been the Prince himself? This is not as frivolous a response as it may sound because the actor playing Hamlet, Roger Rees delves into the neurotic side of the character in such startling depth.

Too deep perhaps to engage those traditional sympathies for the troubled Prince, but the conception of the "antic disposition" makes unusually compelling theatre. As we listen again to the familiar text we realise anew how frequently the madness is mentioned and that, for once, all the references to it seem reasonable.

Mr Rees of the hollow eyes, sunken cheeks and jutting chin is calm enough at first. His encounter with the ghost on the battlements hardly stirs him, which is surprising considering how loudly and powerfully Richard Easton plays him. When the murderer is named, Hamlet says "My Uncle" with no more than polite surprise.

But Mr Easton's acting is so authoritative and interesting (with its echoes of Donald Wolfit) that he must have given the Prince a delayed shock, for although he is advised to guard against his mind being tainted by the news, his pretence at madness soon brings about the real thing.

"Now I am alone," he says and begins to fling himself about the marbled palace as he curses the King for his lechery and treachery. It is a beguiling performance but if the character is so much more than north north west in his lunacy, his problems seem to be more medical than political. When the "play scene" comes, it isn't the conscience of the King that looks touched but young Hamlet himself with his violent larkings about. It is enough to earn anyone deportation.

The new Claudius since the production opened at Stratford-upon-Avon last year is John Stride — a likeable actor who suggests with Mr Easton that Denmark chose its kings in those days for their voices. Mr Stride does all he can to imply wickedness but I cannot honestly believe him. The new Polonius (Christopher Benjamin) is pompous without being very amusing: and the cool beauty of Virginia McKenna is always lovely to look at without suggesting the warmth or passion of Gertrude.

Other performances worth noting come from Kenneth Branagh (Laertes), Bernard Horsfall (First Player) and Sebastian Shaw (Gravedigger): Maria Bjornson's designs in black and silver are always impressive.

A cold, calculated evening, clearly conceived and often effective but, to my mind, misconceived. Mr Rees will live to give us a better Hamlet in better circumstances.

The Cenci

Shelley wrestles in vain

"YOU might as well go to a gin shop for a leg of mutton," said the poet Shelley, "as expect anything human or earthly from me." A good joke, from the most ethereal of poets, but unfair to himself. A stage play has to be both human and earthly, and in his only attempt, "The Cenci," Shelley is both — though not until the close. Mostly, he wrestles in vain to bring the thing to life. Then the last scenes contain the best pseudo-Shakespeare ever written.

This rare piece, efficiently revived at Bristol's New Vic Studio, tells a true story of the downfall of a noble 16th-century Italian family. The dastardly father maltreats and eventually rapes his pure-hearted daughter, whereupon she conspires with her relatives to have him killed, and is executed with them by a Pope avid to grab the Cenci wealth.

Writing in blank verse, and cribbing shamelessly from "Macbeth," "Measure for Measure" and "Othello," Shelley devises a plot with only a beginning and an end and little but vituperative or lachrymose speeches in between.

The poet probably intended the actor playing the father to out-Herod Herod, and rear delightedly at the sight of agony and the sound of little children's groans. When his two sons are killed he gives a lip-smacking party to celebrate.

But William Hoyland, with a modern awareness of this psychological type, rightly plays him as a sleek intellectual pervert, as cool and refined as de Sade. Even when threatening to drag his daughter through infamies unheard of among men, he never goes over the top.

As the daughter, however, Leonie Mellinger never reaches a top. A baby-faced brunette ingénue (Beatrice was a golden-haired beauty with the darkest of secret corners in her heart), this well-spoken young actress discovers none of the pride, grandeur or tragic intensity in Beatrice.

The mad scene, packed with blood and scaly reptiles, would tax a mature artist. So would the heroine's final sublime denial of all guilt. But not to make more of the poet's atheistic vision of "the wide, grey, lampless, deep, unpeopled world," or of the great death speech—"Mother . . . bind up this hair in any simple knot"—was to deny Shelley the earthly humanity he attained at last. Debbie Shewell, the director, touched in the incestuous moments with admirable restraint.

Schubert Festival

By Our Arts Staff

A Schubert Festival in Sheffield will feature 52 concerts, workshops and readings over 16 days at the Crucible Studio. Six concerts will be given by the native Lindsay String Quartet.

The festival, from May 11-28, springs from a successful Beethoven celebration last year. Future years will be devoted to other composers.

ROCK / Howard Jones

Howard Jones

IN AN image-conscious business Howard Jones is almost unique: he hasn't really got one. Yet he must be doing something right.

Eighteen months ago this pallid youth with a haystack haircut was entertaining the regulars of the Nag's Head, High Wycombe. On Tuesday night he came to Wembley Arena after a European tour and the release of his second album, to be greeted by a chorus of screams from the 7,000-odd assembled teenies and others.

Perhaps Mr Jones comes over better heard on the radio than he does in the flesh. The songs, like "Pearl in the Shell" with which he opened, are synthesiser-based, with attractive hook lines.

The visual shortcomings of Mr Jones, in blue satin suit, only accompanied by percussion and bass, were compensated for by an elegant dancer who opened the proceedings as a Japanese actor and mimed to the songs in a most strikingly designed series of outfits.

Most of the new songs, like "Automaton," were in the by now familiar mould of flimsy fantasy-fables, sung to synthesiser, electric bass and a dance beat made up of echoing electronic drums. A head microphone made Mr Jones's voice nasal and the lyrics all but indistinguishable but the audience did not seem to mind. Signs of hitherto hidden depths to his songwriting ability came with two Elton John-like ballads, "Hide and Seek" and "No One Is To Blame," sung at the piano in an altogether older style.

TELEVISION / Bleak House

Going by the book

ON EVERY domestic bookshelf sit books begun but never finished with the bookmark years later still recording accusingly the reader's point of desertion. Despite the commendations of many whose opinions I respect, Dickens's "Bleak House" or most of its 858 pages, has so far been one such book for me.

The B B C's dramatisation of Dickens's tirade against the self-seeking inhumanity of the law, where lawyers are nothing but leeches, will not meet such a fate.

Even though last night's second episode of Bleak Rouse (B B C-2) seemed at times to lose its momentum in the cross-currents of the complex plot, which is perhaps why Dickens lost me on the page in the first place, the television version has all the richness of character and atmosphere to be expected.

A touching and prime example was the proposal scene between Guppy and Esther so sensitively played by Jonathan Moore and Suzanne Burden.

Casting, so crucial to credibility, is almost perfect in reflecting the subtleties of the Victoian pecking-order from Diana Rigg's haughty Lady Dedlock through Peter Vaughan's commanding and sinister Tulkinghorn to Sam Kelly's obsequious Snagsby and the poor little Joe of Chris Pitt at the grubby bottom of the heap.

Even cameos such as Arthur Hewlett's knowing waggoner sent by John Jarndyce to deliver welcoming messages to the arriving wards become commentaries on the social order, so heavy are they with unspoken personal assessments.

If on occasion the search for atmosphere, whether in the soft-focus Arcadia of the English countryside or the brutal lighting and close-ups of crowded, fog-bound London, might seem too overt, it is the television equivalent of Dickens's highly-charged emotive prose.

Above all, the series seems set to prove that the B B C has not entirely lost its sense of direction, purpose and values as its critics would maintain

The B B C's "Bleak House" has already made me re-open the novel and made me wonder why I ever deserted it. But Burnley council must be wishing the corporation had never opened the book on its mismanagement of its ill-named Bleak House Council Estate.

Open Space's Bleak House (BBC-2) that followed immediately after the serial showed that nothing much changes. Families still live in houses riddled with damp where, in John Jarndyce's words, "rain falls through the broken roofs and wind whistles through cracked walls."

Council officials, given rope, only hung themselves and Jessee Bradshaw, the mild-looking housing committee chairman, was rendered speechless in a memorable confrontation with an irate lady tenant of a toughness that only Burnley could breed.

Mr Bradshaw did point out that Burnley was spending the national annual average of £287 a house on repairs which, if my experience of what a builder will do for so modest a sum, explains why so many council houses are in such bad repair.

MUSIC / Bean-Feast, LS

THE London Sinfonietta's "Bean-Feast," which is occupying the Queen Elizabeth Hall this week, is far more than just a sequence of evening concerts. Rather it ought to be seen as a single, invigoratingly devised concept, running virtually all day and every day from Monday to Saturday, mixing music and theatre, and exploiting the foyer as well as the main auditorium.

If you arrived early enough for Tuesday night's events it was possible to take in a diverting little programme of music for hurdy-gurdy and various kinds of wind instruments played by two members of the group Blowzabella, followed by Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf" presented by the DaSilva Puppet Theatre.

And it was an indication of the cunningly integrated vitality with which the entire week has been thought out, that both Mozart's B flat Serenade for 13 wind instruments, in an enticingly relaxed yet adroitly pointed performance, and the Brecht-Weill "Mahagonny Songspiel" in the evenings more formal programme, fitted so convincingly into the scheme, without creating the slightest feeling of discrepancy.

As if taking its cue from a note provided for the original 1927 production stating that the "Mahagonny Songspiel" merely draws conclusions from the irreversible breakdown of the existing social order, the hard-hitting effect of David Alden's staging of this modest epic was one of a lustily stimulating and irreverent iconoclasm.

With a Margaret Thatcher fruit machine, the eyes ticking over pounds, dollars, oranges and lemons, a haloed, gun-slinging Reagan as God, an oiled body-builder, fluffy white poodle and vulgar sex, the activity was relentless and deliberately messy, its fiercely anarchic impulse underscored by the tautness of the sharp-edged instrumental playing conducted by Simon Rattle, and of the singing of the vividly committed vocal sextet.

If you were corrupt and unscrupulous enough then life was okay in the mythical city of Mahagonny, if you have pounds or dollars to spare, it seemed to be saving, then life can be just fine in the disintegrating social fabric of Thatcher's Britain.

Robert Henderson

LPO, Lopez-Cobos

SURELY no composer was capable of more sumptuous and elegant entertainment music than Tchaikovsky in the period between the agonies of the Fourth and Sixth Symphonies, and the rarely heard Third Suite made a wonderful conclusion to the London Philharmonic Orchestra's Festival Hall concert on Tuesday night.

With the awful tensions of the Fourth Symphony worked temporarily out of his system, Tchaikovsky manipulates with consummate craftsmanship the musical symbols he had evolved, articulating a poetry of warm sentiments, wit and detached melancholy.

The lyric invention is quite marvellously sustained (specially in the famous Theme and Variations that close the work) and under the very sympathetic direction of Jesus Lopez-Cobos the orchestra performed with a palpable enjoyment and technical élan, propelling the brilliant final variation to an exhilarating climax.

Prior to this we had heard an equally impressive performance of Rachmaninov's Paganini Rhapsody in which the young Russian-born pianist Youri Egorov played with complete technical command and, more importantly, with an emotional restraint and subtlety of wit (which the composer demands, but so often fails to obtain) that were most moving.

The orchestra, too, was in fine form and Mr Lopez-Cobos characterised Rachmaninov's beautifully integrated supporting textures with a discreet yet warm precision which clearly matched the soloist's poetry. Earlier there had been a workmanlike but not particularly special reading of Prokofiev's "Classical" Symphony.

Anthony Payne

Peter Pettinger, Lloyd Webber

THIS may be the year of Bach, Handel and Scarlatti, but, as Tuesday night's Wigmore Hall recital served to illustrate, there are still a number of works written by the three English composers who were commemorated in 1984 — Elgar, Holst and Delius—waiting to be unearthed.

Elgar's cello "Romance," for instance, has probably not been played all that often. Presumably someone somewhere performed it when Elgar first made the arrangement around the time of the Violin Concerto and the Second Symphony (i.e. in the first decade of this century) and, since it was actually published rather than remaining in manuscript, it may well have been taken up by cellists subsequently.

But we have always hee more familiar with the piece in its original conception as a "Romance" for bassoon and orchestra or piano. Elgar completed it in 1910; it was played by the dedicatee Edwin James at the Herefordshire Orchestral Society in February 1911; but Elgar arranged it for cello around the same time, and his perception of the music's quality to be performed on the cello was particularly acute.

It works well on the cello, the mellow tone of which is perhaps even more suited to the music's lyrical, sometimes passionate expression than is the bassoon. It is not resourceful, nor indeed as moving as the Cello Concerto composed some 10 years later, but it is none the less a piece which ought to find a more frequent place in the repertory, and it was an astute piece of programming to include it in this recital of English music—Britten, Ireland and (as an encore) Frank Bridge's "Scherretto"—by the pianist Peter Pettinger and the cellist Julian Lloyd Webber.

WAY OF THE WORLD

Too Late?

"BANGING the drum"; "batting for Britain": there is an archaic feel about these expressions of Mrs Thatcher's which takes us back to the time when such inane slogans as "Export or Die" and "British Achieve*ments Speak for Britain*" (said to have been invented by Gen Nidgett) were heard throughout the land.

It is obvious that if we want "prosperity" in the current sense of the term, then the industries of this country have got to produce more and more goods and sell more and more of them to the people of foreign countries and of our own. Myself a Luddite (except in the matter of defensive weapons) and proud of it, I don't expect others to share my dislike of this inexorable process.

But it would make a change, to say the least, if Conservative politicians would occasionally talk of other things than money. Mrs Thatcher has spoken of the need to return to Victorian values.

But Victorian values were not simply the values of hard work and commercial enterprise. These are not the values which such Victorian moralists as Matthew Arnold or John Ruskin exclusively admired.

Mrs Thatcher has spoken, it is true, of the values of family life and condemned the "permissive society." But what has her Government ever done to promote the one or diminish the ever growing power of the other?

What has it ever done to check the spread of vile entertainments? What has it done to counter the growth of every kind of deviance and decadence? What has it done to curb the excesses of the "sex industry" (itself, of course, an expounding commercial empire)? What has it done to discourage or forbid amoral scientific research (we shall see what comes of Enoch Powell's Bill on embryo experiments)?

The advance of trade, the proliferation of material goods and of the money to buy them—these things can never be enough to inspire a nation. Something better—patriotism, human decency—is needed. The Conservative party, if it is truly such a party, must surely realise this fact of life.

If it cannot inspire this nation for good there are those who will inspire it for evil. The urge to destroy our present kind of society altogether, in the illusory hope of achieving a better one, is a powerful source of inspiration. That urge cannot be met and overcome by promises of riches and material prosperity.

Norman the Good

THERE were angry scenes in Parliament when Jim Teeth, One-Party Member for Dovedale constituency of the Peak District Conurbation, asked if it was a fact that His Socialist Majesty King Norman had had a German great-grandfather who had served as a private in the clerical stores branch of the notorious SS.

According to research he *(Member Teeth) had been carry*ing out for several years, Otto Schmidt, the German in ques*tion, who was 56 and of low* medical category at the time, had been in charge of paper*clip supplies in a small unit of* the SS at Chemnitz in 1944. Was this the reason why King Norman was now Clerical Officer Grade III (Paperclips) in the rationing office at Bevindon New Town, a mere stone's throw from the Royal Council Palace?

There was a rank smell of corruption about this business which harked back to the infamous days of the Nazi regime. If it was true, and he believed it was, that King Norman had German blood, however remote, and that his Heir Apparent, HRSH Prince Barry of South Wales, therefore bore this fearful taint, then the King should abdicate and they should have a Republic (shouts of "Answer! Answer!" "Boycott Chilean Nitrate!" "Suez!" "Amritsar!" "Nazis Out!" "Get up them Stairs!")

The Home Secretary, Member Fred Biggs, said that this was an old canard (Member Teeth: "Don't use those German words! Speak English!)—an old canard which had been exploded long ago. There was not a word of truth in it. If he thought for a moment that there was, he could not continue to discharge his office.

Member W. Hamilton, chairman of the Ultra-Socialist-Royalist Willie Hamilton Society, named after a famous 20th century MP: This is an insult to the Royal House of Slough. If Member Teeth will come outside I will teach him a lesson he will never forget (uproar).

Member Teeth: I am second to none in my abhorrence of racism, but it is vital for the nation that this matter be brought into the open (shouts of "Answer!" "Blockade South Africa!" "Troops Out of Ireland!" etc. etc.)

The debate continues. Meanwhile the Socialist Royal Family is maintaining a dignified silence. Yesterday King Norman went to his office as usual, ignoring a crowd of thousands of housewives who jostled him, leering horribly and giving the Nazi salute.

But in the privacy of the Council Palace there is an uneasy atmosphere. "I always said Doreen was throwing herself away on that Norman," said Queen Doreen's mother, the Queen Gran. "There's something not quite right about him. As for you"—she turned savagely on Duke Len of Erdington, who was vainly trying to conceal a bottle of German-brewed lager he had been swigging—"I'll thank you to pour that Nazi stuff down the sink or you'll get a taste of my handbag!"

Getting into deep water at work

● Wearing a diving suit designed for a man several sizes larger than herself, WPC Angela Clamp, the only woman in a police diving team, prepares to enter the murky depths of a canal in the search for stolen goods.

BY ANN HILLS

ANGELA CLAMP, the first woman police constable to be part of a police underwater search unit, changed for work in the West Midlands police van, ready for descent into a murky canal near Darlaston.

She donned a bear-like woolly suit, "which a friend altered to fit." On top came a grey rubber suit designed to fit a 15-stone man at least six foot tall, not a 10-stone woman of five foot three inches.

A harness was tied in front, but the headgear with full face mask covered her short dark hair tightly, proof against the germ-filled water and industrial effluent which would cause a sports diver to cringe at the thought of searching the black mud for stolen goods among the usual sordid debris.

Angela, making fun of her appearance (a suit to fit her is on order) waddled over a stile and along a grassy path with a similarly-clad male diver. Each had a companion to prepare them for the water with weighted belt, flippers, air cylinder and lines into an underwater telephone system which is new to these police divers and a distinct improvement on tugs on a rope.

The search was on for a video tape recorder, aimlessly thrown into the canal by a lad as he was hotly pursued a few days before by police officers. For an hour the two divers methodically worked from bank to bank gradually shifting the 56lb weights tied at the ends of ropes to secure positions.

Three hundred police divers, who work in 30 units around Britain, are prepared to dive in the filthiest depths in nil visibility, freezing in icy conditions or sweltering in their suits in summer, gathering evidence such as safes, cars, electronic equipment, jewels and bodies to help clinch cases against criminals.

Angela has yet to find her first body. "You know when you've got one; you feel it 'give' with your feet on the canal floor — indescribable", commented a colleague.

What brought Angela to this world, still foreign territory to police with normal, station-based duties? She went to an all-girls school in Coventry until, at 17, she joined the Navy and failed to see the world.

She was one of eight constables chosen in March to form a full-time underwater search unit. The team covers a large region from Shropshire to Staffordshire, taking in all the cities and towns of the West Midlands, including Birmingham "which has more canals than Venice."

The men seem delighted with their female partner, quietly admitting that they enjoy enabling her to gain diving experience. Yet a year ago her request to join the unit was treated with horror. "I was interviewed and the officer said that 'no woman is in that department, and never will be.' I said 'You've got to give me a chance,' and he did." An aptitude test was carried out in a disused quarry in Leicestershire, a training pool 120ft deep, not far short of the maximum 150ft police divers are permitted to descend under health and safety regulations. "The worst was changing over equipment underneath, from a full mask to half a mask and a single hose. Cold water comes as a shock on the face, but this technique could be necessary rescuing a trapped diver."

She was sent on a demanding eight-week training course at the Strathclyde police diving school (there is another in Northumbria). She passed second in the written work and won through the practicals.

A day out with WPC Clamp might not make a chapter in a crime thriller, concerned with patient searches, basic duties and time sipping hot drinks eyed by office calendar nudes — "a hazard of the job," smiled Angela, whose repartee is as good as she gets. The team meets up at base — a makeshift room, with a garage for their van and two inflatables, at the rear of the Victorian-looking Darlaston police station. Slightly shabby, it is parked with equipment, telephone and desk.

Angela said she didn't care for local newspaper reports claiming she was striking a blow for feminism. Being first tickles her pink, but she's just doing the job she chose.

EATING IN WITH BON VIVEUR

SERVING THE INDIVIDUAL . . .

THE MENU

Iced vichysoisse

Kidneys sautéed with Madeira

Courgettes stuffed with mushrooms

Potato soufflé

Pear and chocolate harlequinade

BUSY cook hostesses are concentrating more frequently on individual portions. These make our tables look attractive as guests come into dinner.

We are doing the same with last courses too. In many instances this individual pre-preparation can enhance main courses when the chosen materials lend themselves to such treatment.

One of the simplest and most successful is an iced soup. In a decorative bowl with accompanying savoury nibbles laid in the bowl's saucer it looks and tastes delectable for the absolute minimum of effort. Vichysoisse, which we have chosen for this week's menu, is an ideal example, depending upon old potatoes, leeks and scissored chives, and producing a soup as inexpensive as it is simple.

All the recipes serve six.

ICED VICHYSOISSE

INGREDIENTS: 1lb slim leeks, trimmed and washed; 1lb old potatoes, peeled; 1 chicken carcase; salt; freshly-milled black pepper; 6oz single cream; 3 rounded tablespoons finely-scissored chives; 1 medium onion, peeled and halved; a little whipped cream (optional).

METHOD: Break the chicken carcase into a roomy pan. Cover with 3 pints cold water, bring to boiling point, steady off at a good simmer and maintain until the liquor is reduced to a mean 2 pints. Strain into a clean pan.

Slice the leeks into thin rounds, wash again, then add to the chicken stock with the onion halves. Slice the potatoes roughly, add to pan and simmer all steadily until both vegetables are tender. Pass through an all-purpose blender.

Return to pan, stir in single cream and, if considered too thick, dilute with a little milk. Correct seasoning to taste with salt and freshly-milled black pepper. Refrigerate until 5 min before service.

Divide between 6 decorative soup bowls. Slide an ice cube into each. Scatter scissored chives freely over surface to within 1in of edge all round. Pipe tiny whipped-cream rosettes as an outer border (optional).

KIDNEYS SAUTEED WITH MADEIRA

INGREDIENTS: 1¼lb veal or ox kidney in the piece; sufficient strong stock to cover liberally; 4 parsley stalks; 1 shallot, peeled; 1 small piece of dried orange peel; salt; freshly-milled black pepper; 1 new sandwich loaf; 2fl oz Sercial dry Madeira; oil for frying; 8fl oz whipping cream; 2 rounded tablespoons milled fresh parsley heads; 1 small egg; 3fl oz milk; the strained juice of 1 small to medium orange.

METHOD: Cut all crusts meanly from the sandwich loaf. Divide the remaining crumb into 6 equal-sized pieces. Excavate the crumb carefully, leaving a ¼in wall all round and a ¼in base.

Heat 1in of oil in a deep fryer. When oil is just hazed with heat, beat the egg with the milk. Draw each bread croûte through the mixture and instantly lower each one into the hot oil. Fry to a rich golden brown. Turn each one over to complete. Drain on absorbent kitchen paper. When all six are fried, tent them in aluminium foil and leave on the floor of the oven until needed.

Place stock in a roomy pan. Add parsley stalks, orange peel and shallot. Raise to boiling, level off at a gentle simmer and slide in the kidney piece. Cover and simmer gently until quite tender.

Turn off heat and allow contents to cool in pan. Strain, place liquor in a clean pan and slice all kidney from central fatty gristled core into bite-sized pieces. Set these aside. Boil up the liquor fast. Add orange juice and maintain at full strong bubble until reduced to a mere 15fl oz.

Meanwhile, whip the cream. Add the Madeira to the liquor with a strong seasoning of black pepper and a little salt. Reduce the heat to a minimum. Stir in half the milled parsley. Using a loop whisk, gradually whip the whipped whipping cream into the mixture until a richly creamy texture is achieved. Add the sliced kidney.

Allow just to heat through then divide equally between the croûtes, piling the mixture high so that the sauce runs over and encircles each case on its heated plate. Scatter remaining parsley over.

COURGETTES STUFFED WITH MUSHROOMS

INGREDIENTS: 6 courgettes about 5in to 6in long; 4oz mushrooms; butter; 1 teacup fine soft white or brown breadcrumbs; salt; black pepper, ground cardamom; 2oz Parmesan cheese, finely grated; 1 tablespoon onion juice.

METHOD: Obtain onion juice easily by grating 1 medium, peeled onion fairly finely and pressing the pulp through a tea sieve. Chop the unpeeled but scalded mushrooms and their stalks. Turn into a small pan with 2oz butter and onion juice. Draw over a low heat until mushrooms collapse and juices run freely.

Meanwhile top and tail the courgettes and take a mean slice off the top, right down the length. Chop up these "lids" and add to pan mixture. Steam the whole courgettes until just tender. Scoop out all soft interior flesh with a teaspoon, chop and add to pan mixture.

Set hollowed courgettes like spokes of a wheel on a shallow, lightly-oiled heat-resistant dish. Work the breadcrumbs into pan mixture until smoothly blended. Taste and correct seasoning with salt, black pepper and one fat pinch of ground cardamom.

Pack into the hollowed courgette cases, doming mixture slightly on top. Scatter on the Parmesan, dot with a flake or two of butter and bake at 350F (Gas 4) mid-shelf until delicately browned and piping hot.

POTATO SOUFFLE

INGREDIENTS: 1½lb old potatoes, steamed and sieved; salt; pepper; 1 heaped tablespoon finely-scissored chives; 3 No 3 eggs; the grated rind of 1 small lemon; 1oz butter.

METHOD: Beat the butter very thoroughly into the freshly-sieved potatoes. Beat in chives and lemon rind equally thoroughly. Separate the eggs. Whip the egg whites very stiffly. Beat the yolks into the potato fluff. Adjust seasoning with salt and pepper.

Oil a 6in soufflé mould. Beat the stiff egg whites into the potato mixture. Turn into the soufflé mould. Dome off the top. Bake for 14min one shelf above centre at 425F (Gas 7) and serve immediately.

PEAR AND CHOCOLATE HARLEQUINADE

INGREDIENTS: 1 medium-sized ripe pear, peeled, or a pair of drained tinned pears per person; 4oz Philadelphia cream cheese; 1fl oz inky black, strong coffee; 4oz softened Chocolat Meunier or cooking chocolate; 4oz vanilla-stored icing sugar; 2oz finely-chopped walnuts; Angelica for garnish.

METHOD: Whip the cheese with the coffee until perfectly blended. Whip in the icing sugar and soften the chosen chocolate in a bowl over hot water. When collapsed beat vigorously.

Add the beaten chocolate gradually to the coffee cheese mixture. Halve the fresh pears, remove cores and, with fresh or tinned halves, clap together again over smears of the chocolate mixture. Press firmly together. Divide the remaining mixture between six small plates. Shape each into a square and wipe off any smears or streaks with a damp cloth. Turn each pear in the chopped nuts. Press the pears into the centre of the chocolate cheese mixture and stab the top of each with small sprigs of Angelica (cut the Angelica into sprigs and leave in boiling water for a few minutes to soften).

HOW TO WEBER BUTTERFLIED LEG OF LAMB FOR SUNDAY LUNCH.

1. Take a 6lb leg of lamb. Remove fibrous outer membrane. Make deep cut lengthwise along the bone. Cut and scrape meat from the bone and then "butterfly" or flatten the meat to make a thick steak.
2. Peel and crush 2 cloves garlic and rub into meat with 1 tablespoon of crushed rosemary and salt and pepper. Pat olive oil on to meat and allow to stand at room temperature for at least 30 minutes.
3. Weber grill by Direct Heat Method for approx. 15 minutes per side for succulent pink lamb. Weber longer if you prefer more well done. Baste with oil while cooking and check thickest part of meat with meat thermometer for accurate cooking.

Cooking anything anywhere outdoors is simplicity itself with a Weber barbecue kettle. It roasts perfectly. It casseroles. It bakes. You can use a wok on it. And of course it grills—with direct or indirect heat. And to everything it imparts that mouth-watering outdoor flavour that makes barbecuing more than just fun.

The design of the Weber eliminates flare-ups and excessive smoke. The vent system gives as sensitive control of heat as any indoor cooker and the unique ash disposal system means no mess or bother.

A WEIGHTIER VOTE

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS, no one worried too much about local government elections. Little more than 30 per cent. of the electorate actually bothered to make the journey to the polling booth; most of them probably did not know or care very much what powers and responsibilities the councils held. Election results either reflected a party's national standing or a particular local issue. As for those elected, they accepted that central government had ultimate authority. In return they received more rate support grant whenever they overspent.

Now, it is all very different. Central government is no longer prepared to be seen as a milch cow, while some Labour councils are prepared to challenge the ultimate authority of central government. Local government is now a highly contentious subject and there are more radical differences between the type of services offered by Tory and Labour councils. It remains to be seen if this is reflected in a higher turn out in the County Council elections on May 2. There will undoubtedly be something in the results to comfort all the parties. The Tory party will undoubtedly win seats as Labour is defending councils won in May 1981 when it was riding high in the polls. Labour will do well enough to claim that its long decline is over. As the SDP did not fight the 1981 elections, its position can only improve.

That is not to deny that the elections are important. There is the question of value for money, which is to the fore of all the party campaigns. One can only have sympathy for the poor voter who has already been bombarded by a mass of highly complex statistics. The intricacies of the rate support grant enable Labour to claim that its average weekly rate bill is 50p lower in areas it controls, while the Tory party claims its average rate poundage is 30p lower than Labour's. The election result will, however, also be seen in a rather wider context. It will be represented as a referendum on all the Government's local government policies. It will be called a vote for —or against—rate capping and the abolition of the GLC and Metropolitan counties; the latter starts its House of Lords committee stage during local election week. Like it or not, the election will have a significant effect on the Tory party's enthusiasm for the Government's controversial local government policies.

NEXT STEP IN HONGKONG

THE REVIVAL OF CONFIDENCE in Hongkong since the Peking agreement does not mean that all the colony's problems are laid to rest. Prime among those remaining is the need to progress from benevolent despotism under Sir EDWARD YOUDE to recognisable democracy by 1997. Hardly less important is drafting the Basic Law of Hongkong to apply after Chinese rule begins: in other words, to agree a new statute book for the colony.

The outstanding worry before October 1984 was that the work of translating 50 pages of agreement on principle into detailed Basic Law might be delayed until the 1990s. Such delay created the risk—to those nervous of China's stability under Maoism and uncertain of future leadership in Peking —that Britain might again then be dealing with an orthodox Chinese government, instead of with those more congenial capitalist-socialists, Mr DENG, Mr HU and Mr ZHAO. Sensitive, perhaps, to such concerns, the recent Party Congress in Peking agreed that a "Basic Law Commission" should begin work this year. If this holds out the reassuring prospect to Hongkong of completion by 1988 and of ratification within the foreseeable future.

Confusingly, however, Hongkong has an interest in delaying formulation of the Basic Law almost as strong as its interest in accelerating it. For the colony is making rapid progress towards democracy. It hopes to present China with a democratic fait accompli by 1997. Most important, however, it hopes to see these emerging institutions enshrined in its Basic Law in full agreement with China, for the simple promise by Peking to leave the Hongkong status quo untouched could be revised in different circumstances. The problem, though, is this. By 1988, Hongkong's democratic institutions will not have finally evolved, and a Basic Law sealed in that year cannot include them. Delay until the mid-1990's, however, involves the risks of dealing with Mr DENG and Mr HU's unknown successors. It is a Chinese puzzle with no obvious solution.

GREECE'S GRUDGES

MR ANDREAS PAPANDREOU, Greece's socialist Prime Minister, has earned a reputation for being somewhat unpredictable, but there is nothing surprising about his decision yesterday to seek early general elections in June. The elections have been on the cards for months—in fact since Mr PAPANDREOU managed to get rid of President CONSTANTINE KARAMANLIS—and the conservative Opposition New Democracy party has already prepared itself for a bitter political battle. It is fair to say that Mr PAPANDREOU and the governing Panhellenic Socialist Movement (PASOK) came to power in a free election in 1981 and have done neither the worst, nor the best, that might have been expected. There have been some modest reforms. But the economy has remained in a mess. Certainly Mr PAPANDREOU has failed to end the corruption which marked the years in power of the right. Internationally his bark has been worse than his bite: he has not fulfilled his foolish promises to take Greece out of Nato and out of the Common Market, and to kick out the Americans. All he has managed to do is to be a nuisance to his Western friends and allies.

What has also been revealed is Mr PAPANDREOU's scant respect for his country's democratic institutions. The dumping of Mr KARAMANLIS was a case in point. It was sharp practice, predictably followed by political turmoil and the disputed election of Judge CHRISTOS SARTZETAKIS as president. It is by no means certain that Mr PAPANDREOU's spectacular political antics will succeed in diverting middle-of-the-road Greeks from paying close attention to PASOK's record. However, he knows he will pull in the votes from those Greek farmers who are doing very nicely thank you out of the Common Market, i.e. from Mr PAPANDREOU's tough negotiating tactics. Yet the New Democracy party led by Mr MITSOTAKIS, an articulate centrist, is already sounding confident. Certainly the level of abuse is rising. It should be a close-run and nasty election with Mr PAPANDREOU probably having to rely on much closer collaboration with the pro-Moscow Communist party.

VANDALISM IN SCHOOLS — 2

The pupils who do not have a sense of right and wrong

GRAHAM TURNER concludes his survey of the wanton destruction which has been unleashed at so many of our schools

THERE is no shortage of theoretical explanations for the plague of vandalism, theft and arson which now afflicts many of our schools and which some educators reckon costs us as much as £500 million a year.

The perpetrators, generally believed to be teenagers (when they are not highly professional gangs, with vans and pneumatic drills), are said to be "venting their spleen against the Establishment," "trying to show they are the big men of the estate," victims of high unemployment or boredom — or simply trying to raise money to pay for drugs.

Occasionally, a more old-fashioned rationale surfaces. "I used to think it was because they were poor and deprived," said a senior official in a northern town, "but I realise now that that's a naïve approach, because a lot of people who lack the luxuries of life don't do these things. The truth is, they have no sense of right and wrong."

ALL the sages, however, have one thing in common. Not one claims to know either who is vandalising their schools or why. "You can't treat the disease unless you know who the culprits are," said the director of education in a northern city which has one of the worst vandalism problems in the country, "and all my suppositions about the origins of the disease are purely speculative, because I don't actually know any of the people who do it."

The assistant director of education in a county where the cost of vandalism, theft and fire in schools is as high as £3 million a year was similarly candid: "We don't honestly know much about what happens, why it happens, when it happens or, indeed, who does it, because we catch so few of them."

So, while there are dozens of educators who will tell you what does not cause the plague — not large, anonymous schools (small inner-city schools are among the most heavily vandalised), not the absence of religious instruction (Roman Catholic schools with ample pastoral care are sometimes among the worst sufferers)—there are none to tell you what does, aside from the scarcely insignificant fact that remarkably few of those who attack schools ever get caught.

Even when they do, the punishment is often less than draconian. One teenager, who admitted 19 offences and compounded them by committing a 20th while still on bail, was eventually sent to an institution in the Lake District which, according to his father, suited him down to the ground. The boy spent much of his time there canoeing and rock-climbing, said the headmaster who told me the story, and came back fit as a flea, ready for his next 20 break-ins.

Another boy, who admitted stealing £360 from a teacher's handbag in a northern school, blued the lot within a few days. When the head found that the local police had merely given the boy a warning because it was his first offence, he summoned the father to the school to ask him to repay the money. During the interview, the head noticed that the boy was wearing an expensive anorak. How had he been able to afford that? Oh, explained the father in a matter-of-fact tone, he'd stolen it from the local market.

In the worst-hit areas, local authorities admit to being baffled. "We're no more than holding our own," said one northern official, "and sometimes we're actually going backwards." They had put up security fences (which cost £100,000 for a large comprehensive), installed as many sophisticated alarm systems as they could afford (at £10,000 a time) and even considered round-the-clock guards on school premises.

The best defence against thieves they had so far come up with, he went on, was a heavily-alarmed storage bunker with solid, nine-inch walls, thick steel doors and roof, and a recessed lock. "Unless they use dynamite," he said, "they'll never get into that." The trouble was, it cost £4,000 and a big comprehensive needed half-a-dozen.

In other areas, however, the problem is not given high priority. "It's a nuisance," said an assistant education director in a county which recently had a £1¾ million school burnt to the ground, "and we do feel sad and angry about it, but it's not in the forefront of our thinking because we see no way to solve it and anyway society is conditioned to it. Vandalism is almost an accepted part of life now."

Such attitudes are precisely what worries Dr Ludwig Lowenstein, an educational psychologist who runs a school which tries to help some of the most blatant offenders. "If kids have learnt from experience that the adults in society don't care because nobody is stopping them and very few get caught," he said, "then it merely reinforces the activity, and it becomes a habit. They mustn't be allowed to get away with it. Otherwise, we are silently condoning what they do."

The picture, however, is far from being totally black. A school in one of the worst areas of Coventry which used to have a break-in every other weekend now has very few. Part of the answer, said the headmistress, was that her staff now spent "an inordinate amount of time talking to the children about their problems. We're not just pedagogues, we aim to really look after them."

Similarly, a comprehensive in one of the rougher areas of north London has not had a break-in for over a year. The first reason, said the head, was that they had put a tremendous effort into trying to make the local community feel it was their school. As a result, neighbours gave them a great deal of information, and that helped enormously in catching intruders.

Then, whenever there was theft either during the day or during the school's evening activities, he and his deputy dropped everything to try to catch the culprits. Where necessary, they went out in the pouring rain and knocked on doors. In the case of internal theft, it was immediately tannoyed all over the school. They caught 75 per cent. of the culprits. As a result, internal theft had fallen off dramatically.

IN every case, parents were told, in most cases the police. He was shortly going to take out charges against some ex-pupils who had been responsible for £200-worth of wanton damage. Where boys were caught doing graffiti, they were offered "a very pointed opportunity" to put it right. Vandalism still cost the school £10,000 a year but, whereas the glaziers used to be almost permanently on site, now they only came to the school once a month.

Another head in another city who is currently swamped by these problems believes they will never be tackled adequately until local authorities admit they have a problem (which some now do) and come clean to their ratepayers about the real cost. Nor does he have any doubt about the gravity of the situation. "It is," he said, "the degeneration of society. Areas like mine are a portent of what could happen, and it is getting worse. If we don't contain these problems, there are going to be more and more places like this."

Pit closure team: NUM picks Benn

THE National Union of Mineworkers has put forward its nominations for the new "independent and impartial" body which will review pit closures.

They are Anthony Wedgwood Benn, whose support for Arthur Scargill's leadership during the year-long strike was unswerving, and Michael Barrett-Brown, the former principal of Northern College near Barnsley where strong "hard-Left" opinions have prevailed for many years.

The pit deputies union and the colliery managers will have their own ideas on who constitutes an acceptable and independent representative of the workforce and some tough horse-trading is expected.

But the prospect of Benn's involvement in what looks like becoming a significant back-room organisation in the coal industry suggests that despite the lessons of the strike the militants continue to hold the upper hand.

LONDON DAY BY DAY

Obliterating the past

IT IS worth remembering amid the brouhaha over Princess Michael's ancestry that nearly 70 years ago public opinion in the midst of the 1914-18 War led George V to abandon the Royal family's Germanic surnames and adopt instead "the House of Windsor."

According to my colleague Kenneth Rose's biography of the monarch, the Kaiser jokingly let it be known that he was looking forward to attending a performance of "The Merry Wives of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha."

But the ultimate judgment on the King's order to abandon all the German names and titles in his family came from a Bavarian nobleman Count Albrecht von Montgelas who commented: "The true Royal tradition died on that day in 1917 when, for a mere war, King George V changed his name."

It is an ill wind indeed that blows no publisher any good. Princess Michael's misfortunes may do a lot for the sales of "The Kents," Audrey Whiting's history of the junior branch of the Royal family, which, with uncanny timing, was launched this week by Hutchinsons.

Rating the Royals

ALTHOUGH there has been some public mystification that Princess Michael should choose to give her first interview about her father to TV-am — especially after the Palace had stressed that there would be no comment beyond her initial statement confirming that he was in the SS — the exclusive interview was, it seems, confidently expected in the City.

Prince Michael, who receives no payment from the Civil List, has for the past three years held a paid directorship with Aitken Hume, the City banking services group, which just happens to own 15·8 per cent. of the unprofitable breakfast television company.

City brokers tell me that they believe the Princess's appearance was long overdue in order to boost the station's ratings.

Old comrades

PRINCE PHILIP yesterday launched the appeal I mentioned last November in aid of the many thousands of colonial ex-Servicemen who are now forgotten or ignored in their newly independent lands.

The Prince spoke of the "unselfish courage and self-sacrifice" of those wartime comrades at arms.

His message was echoed by Lord Michael Fitzalan Howard who is chairman of the Prince Philip Appeal and who introduced Col. Guy Stocker, Secretary-General of the British Commonwealth Ex-Servicemen's League which is co-ordinating the fund-raising. Recently, Fitzalan Howard disclosed, Stocker received a letter from the Third World addressed only to: "Col. Stocker who helps old soldiers, London, England."

Missing comma

SAM SILKIN, former Attorney-General and one of Labour's new "working peers," will take the title Lord Silkin of Dulwich when he is introduced at the Lords next month.

Silkin is himself the son of a hereditary peer, the late Lionel Silkin, who had the title (since disclaimed by Sam's elder brother Arthur) of Lord Silkin, of Dulwich.

Only the absence of the comma allows Sam to hold his father's title. Although Arthur Silkin has no progeny, while he is still alive there is a possibility of the family peerage being passed on to a new generation. The Lords authorities were careful to prevent even the possibility of two men holding the same title.

No wafer waiver

KIT KAT, recently banned from GLC premises because its maker Rowntree refused to complete the council's racial / sexual / disability questionnaire on its employees, is also out of favour with Orthodox Jews.

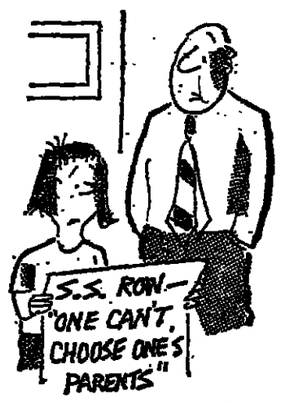
The Kashrus Commission and the Beth Din, which advise the Chief Rabbi on whether a particular food is kosher, have ruled that possible fat content in the wafer and the problems of manufacture make it a prohibited product. Perhaps this is the one issue on which the anti-Zionist Left and Orthodox Jews actually agree.

Fast and fastener

PRESIDING over the annual WISDEN dinner, Alastair McCorquodale, head of the firm which recently bought the 121-year-old cricketers' almanack, shed further light on his own sporting prowess, unrecorded, however, in its 1,280 pages.

Guest of honour Jack Bailey, secretary of the MCC, recalled that McCorquodale, then 22, came fourth in the Olympic 100 metres behind three black Americans at Wembley in 1948. He also won a silver medal in the 4 x 100 metre relay and became known as "the fastest white man alive."

McCorquodale's first-class cricketing career of Middlesex, however, lasted all of nine days. His batting average was 8·5, his bowling average 99·75. "I retired," he told his guests at the East India Club on Tuesday night "when the zip of my flannels would no longer do up."



"and vice versa . . .?"

Old hand

DESPITE the charges and counter charges over whether Mrs Thatcher's Far East tour was a success one undoubted achievement was the separate itinerary pursued by her husband Denis.

In many ways his own programme involved a heavier burden than hers. He visited factories and spoke to businessmen while the Prime Minister held talks with the region's politicians.

But while Mrs Thatcher was talking about improving trade, Denis showed a remarkable knowledge and practical experience of business in the area—learnt from his days in the early 1950s when he visited Malaysia as a salesman. "I was here before the days of air conditioning," he told friends proudly.

Food chain

GOURMETS IN East London can be assured of the authenticity of the ethnic fare served up by their local Bengali restaurant in Hanbury Street, Tower Hamlets, after a fact-finding tour of Bangladesh by three London bobbies.

While travelling through the remote northern town of Sylhet, the policemen, I am told, experienced a distinct feeling of deja vu when they came across a similar Bengali restaurant with exactly the same name and, emerging from it, the owner of the East London establishment.

Mass of the day

THE scourge of football hooliganism should not descend on the Lancashire town of Ormskirk. According to the parish magazine: "A number of people meet in St Anne's Church each Saturday to pray for peace from 2.00 p.m. to 5.00 p.m. All are invited."

PETERBOROUGH

SERVICES OF THE POST OFFICE

SIR—"The Post Office should try to make a profit, but not if it means hardship for those who work for it and those who use it." Some observations from Mrs Janet Todd's own city of Oxford will confirm the points she makes in her "Personal View" (April 10).

Oxford main post office in St Aldate's has ten service windows, a parcels window and an inquiry window. By most of these windows there is a sticker "Get more out of your post office," offering 16 services indicated by symbols.

Only three of these windows are normally manned, occasionally four, very rarely five (once only in my experience). The parcels window is frequently shut, with a notice telling customers to join the main queue.

This queue is now organised in a single line, adopting the over-regimented practice of the American Post Office, with the apparent aim of equalising delay and discomfort for all customers. The queue is often very long. When it is longest, not surprisingly, fewest windows are manned, but these times seem also to coincide with peak demand. Waiting time is often ten to 15 minutes, sometimes much more.

While waiting, a clamorous video screen directed at the queue endlessly advertises services and products, many irrelevant. When one reaches a window, the stickers remind one how many services are on offer.

No attempt is made to provide, as always used to be the case, separate windows for different services, so that letters or parcels might be posted quickly or stamps purchased. Everyone has to wait as long as it takes all the customers in front, however complicated their business.

The Oxford post office counter staff are friendly, helpful and courteous — as is our postman here, a long-serving professional. What is going wrong is management, and the official attitude of the Post Office towards the customer for what should be its prime business, the mail.

The Post Office User's National Council Report 34 for August 1984 "Post Office Counter Services" claims (page 23) that management and the union seek to keep waiting time on average, over each day to between 15 and 75 seconds and that clerks should spend 70 per cent. of their working time at the counter actually serving customers.

This carefully worded statement bears no relation to reality in Oxford or in other cities, such as St Albans for example where 20 to 25 minutes' wait was quite frequent last summer and the queue can stretch out into the street.

Mrs Todd has set out the problems fairly. The Post Office causes hardship by foisting on its customers a range of irrelevant services which it cannot adequately staff, and by failing to provide for the efficient working of its public offices.

The Post Office's general policy of gradually closing sub-post offices can only make things worse. Is not the Post Office's principal duty to maintain the traditional and statutory services rather than to dissipate its efforts in a range of services better provided already by private enterprise?

Albanian recovery in the hands of Hoxha

SIR—The purpose of Mr James Allan's obituary of Mr Enver Hoxha (April 12) seems to be that of proving that because Albania is the world's only truly socialist State it is also the poorest in Western Europe.

This ignores the fact that at the end of the 1939-45 War, when Mr Hoxha assumed leadership, Albania was an extraordinarily poor and war-ravaged country dependent upon foreign powers for everything, including subsistence.

Under Mr Hoxha's leadership it has become immeasurably richer and the increased wealth is better spread than anywhere else in Europe with the best paid receiving no more than three times the poorest income.

Everyone is now comfortable and an excellent centralised agriculture ensures plentiful food. Albania is now self-sufficient in food and exports a great deal too.

The drive towards industrialisation is gathering pace from this base and at its current rate of growth Albania will start to overhaul Western European countries over the next ten years. She has no foreign debts to hold her back. Neither does she suffer from any inflation.

It is completely misconceived to imply that Mr Hoxha's Government has been economically unsuccessful. The foundations have been laid. The rate of growth has been established without borrowing.

Factories are being built at an accelerating pace, major deals in this respect having been struck with West Germany, and the Japanese having established an Embassy in Tirana a year or two ago.

Britain of course is excluded while she continues to hold on to Albania's gold reserves which were recovered from Hitler at the end of the war.

High research standards

SIR—Mr P. J. Orr's letter (April 6) illustrates the naivety of so many who call for a ban on animal experimentation. Where possible, animals are being replaced by an alternative and this is reflected in the annual Home Office figures which show a reduction by approximately 15 per cent. per annum over the past five years or so.

However, with our present state of knowledge, whole animals cannot be totally replaced. Indeed several Acts of Parliament require animals to be used to test the efficacy and safety of pharmaceutical and other consumer products.

Mr Orr must acknowledge the part that laboratory animals have played in the past in creating the high standards of human and animal medical care that we presently enjoy. Indeed, without research, how does he expect better and safer medicines and indeed the eventual solution of current disease scourges like cancer, heart disease, arthritis and malaria?

Cautious labelling

SIR—I read with interest Mr Victor A. Hatley's letter (April 11) about the treatment of racially offensive terms in the "Concise Oxford Dictionary." It is always difficult to draw the line between what is necessarily offensive and what is derogatory or in some contexts merely jocular or even affectionate (as with pom and pommy).

The R label is used to indicate words that are invariably used with hostile intent, as nigger and Yid are. Racial discrimination (real or alleged) also has a bearing on the question as a factor that increases sensitivities.

We applied the R label with caution and are carefully assessing reactions such as the one you published, with a view to reconsidering our treatment of these words in the next edition of the dictionary now in preparation.

In passing

SIR—In 1941 my father worked in Windermere. He related how an empty packet came whizzing out of an opulent parked car near the lakeside and was picked up and politely handed back by a passing local resident to be met with the comment "I don't want it."

The resident replied "Neither does Windermere!"

Bishop of Durham's role as a leader

SIR—It is high time that someone wrote in support of the Bishop of Durham. The letters which appear in your columns seem to be very strongly weighted against him.

First, it is sheer nonsense to brandish the 39 Articles as if by affirming them the bishop was effectively saying that he would never attempt to reinterpret them. They are a guide, not a chain.

Second, it is not the function of a bishop to stunt people's religious growth. If that were the case, we would have a Church filled with theological Peter Pans. He is a leader, and by definition a leader has to go ahead of his people.

I agree that he must not go so far ahead that he vanishes from sight and leaves his people behind; but the Bishop of Durham has not done that. He has, by making his thoughts public, invited his people to think with him.

Third, I am much troubled by the apparently popular notion that Christianity is a tradition. It is not. It is a living faith. Furthermore, it has at its heart the concept of Resurrection, which implies leaving one "form" behind in order to live in an unfettered way.

Life necessarily involves movement—and that is exactly what the bishop is trying to encourage. To petrify the Christian faith, preserving outmoded ideas merely because they are cherished as "traditional," is not only a sentence of death but also a contradiction of the nature of Christianity itself.

I applaud the Bishop of Durham. I may not want to agree with everything that he says, but if he can stimulate me to think courageously, then he has done something worthwhile. If he can hold up to public gaze the insights of a scholarly Christian theologian, then he is fulfilling his proper task.

Someone has observed that if he goes on saying the sort of thing that he has said, the Christian Church will die. I would argue that if he does not say it, and if no-one at all says it, then we shall certainly know that the Church is already dead.

Contempt for the small

SIR—Mr Paul Pridmore in his recent letter is ready with criticism about Mr Richard Body's earlier support for small farmers, but light on constructive suggestion.

Before being specific about restructuring agricultural support, we have to change the climate of opinion about small-scale farming. We have heard in recent years far too much about the farm as a business and too little about the farm in relation to rural employment and the environment.

Until comparatively recently the Government actually gave grants to assist farm amalgamation. Small and part-time farmers have been held in contempt by the agri-businesses who run the National Farmers' Union. Agricultural research has been geared to large-scale operations; tractors and implements have become larger. Where is the small farmers' interests represented?

The principle should be established: all subsidies and grants given by the taxpayer should be directed where they are most needed, i.e. to the small farm on the edge of viability. Large farms do not need taxpayers' support to get larger. Many beneficial results would flow from this, in the quality of rural life, in better conservation . . .

Mr Pridmore states: "The truth is that small farms are . . . microcosms of large ones." This is where he is wrong. Small-scale farming is a different type of operation. It has nothing to do with accountancy-orientated cereal ranching nor automated milk extraction.

It is not merely a stepping stone to a larger farm. Owning land is not the same as owning industrial property.

It may seem incredible to Mr Pridmore but there are a large number of people who would like to continue to farm or to go into farming whose sole ambition is not necessarily to crucify animals and the countryside in order to buy a Mercedes.

Fair play, 1985

SIR—The cruelty with which Princess Michael of Kent is being pilloried by elements of the media for the actions of her estranged father in the 1930s and 1940s proves nothing so clearly as the potential for Gestapo-type operators we have in our midst today.

Would it be too much to ask that these people direct their energies to something constructive and beneficial to the nation as a whole?

Coroner praises heroes of Brighton bomb rescue

By A. J. McILROY

THE extent of what the coroner called the "extraordinary heroism" of firemen, doctors, police and some civilians in the Tory party conference bombing last October unfolded yesterday as a succession of witnesses gave evidence at a two-hour inquest in Brighton law courts.

Mr EDWARD GRACE, who recorded a verdict that the five victims were "killed unlawfully," heard how firemen and a number of civilians, including a London consultant surgeon, were suspended by hoists inside the Grand Hotel, Brighton, trying to reach trapped people in the "hellhole of cascading water, debris and sparking electric live wires from the seventh floor to the basement."

Twelve officers were officially commended, but Mr Grace said this tribute should be extended publicly to others including the surgeon, Dr Frederick Skidmore, who risked life and limb to get the dead and injured out.

The inquest was into the deaths of Sir ANTHONY BERRY, MP for Enfield Southgate; Mrs MURIEL MACLEAN, wife of the Scottish Conservatives' president; Mr ERIC TAYLOR, a member of the Conservative party's national executive; Mrs ROBERTA WAKEHAM, wife of the Government Chief Whip; and Mrs JEANNE SHATTOCK, wife of the Western Counties Conservatives' chairman.

Shattered window

Dr Skidmore was one of the delegates at the conference, but was not staying in the Grand Hotel where the bomb struck. He ran to the scene when the noise of the explosion awakened him.

"When I arrived there was a lot of shouting for help from the other floors," he said. "I got in through a shattered restaurant window.

"We got Mrs MacLean out. She was lying completely across a bed with an obvious leg injury and was conscious.

"The fire brigade had been very quick in getting a turntable ladder to the window for us to get to her, and with the help of a stretcher we got her out.

"After releasing her husband I went downstairs to release John Wakeham and Mr Norman Tebbit, the Cabinet Minister, and his wife.

"In the front of the lobby we identified a dead body under the debris crushed by falling major timbers. There was one finger with a ring with a crest on. He was obviously dead and it was Sir Anthony Berry.

"We turned to try to release others. By then Mrs Tebbit and her husband had been removed and we persevered to get access to John Wakeham. This was all over a period of hours.

"We were working from the lobby through this tremendous rubble of the concertinaed six floors and 28 rooms. It was like a cylinder variously packed to a great depth.

"Firemen were using cutting tools, power saws and jacks .... Only superhuman efforts by these officers enabled us to get through to the victims."

When the coroner interrupted to say Dr Skidmore had not done himself justice in his account, the witness replied: "Yes. I was going up and down on hoists with two other firemen.

"We were wearing rubber gloves. I fortunatley had on rubber boots. Water from broken pipes was cascading down from protruding part-floors and live wire were sparking."

The coroner, giving his verdict, said that more than 1,000 tons of debris were removed from the hotel after the blast, and some was still being thoroughly sifted by scientists.

He accepted the sworn evidence of Det. Chief Supt JACK REECE that this debris had included part of a delayed action explosive device, and that for security reasons these could not be produced as exhibits.

"I accept there was no failure of security, and that these tragic events could not have been foreseen," he said.

GP SMEAR OFFER REJECTED

By DAVID FLETCHER
Health Services Correspondent

A BRITISH Medical Association plan to encourage doctors to make cervical smear tests on all women at no extra cost to the N H S was rejected by the Government yesterday.

The association offered to cut £3 million from the fees received by G Ps and use the smears to all women under 35, money to pay them to give

Under present arrangements doctors are paid £6·40 for each smear they carry out on women over 35 and certain others. The B M A's idea was to encourage doctors to give smear tests to all women by paying them the same fee.

Rejecting the offer Mr Patten, Junior Health Minister, said that the aim of paying fees for carrying out smear tests was to concentrate doctors' efforts on women most at risk of the disease.

A B M A spokesman said they could not understand the decision. "Cervical cancer is on the increase among women under 35 and we fail to understand why the D H S S have turned down our eminently sensible proposal."

London Zoo planning major rebuilding

By STEPHEN BATES

A MAJOR rebuilding programme for London Zoo is to be announced next month by the Zoological Society after the Government's decision to maintain funding for at least the next three years.

A new aquarium is planned, the aged Mappin Terraces and the existing aquarium underneath them are to be extensively redeveloped and the old birds of prey cages are to be pulled down.

The society's annual report, published yesterday, shows that revenues fell behind inflation last year despite an increase in admission prices and the stemming of a decline in the numberof visitors.

Long-term support

There was an operational deficit of £2,052,000, an increase of £199,000 compared with 1984, although 1,250,000 people visited the zoo, a drop of only 14,000. Some 750,000 people visited the society's sister property at Whipsnade, a slight increase on the year before.

Sir William Henderson, the society's president, paid tribute to the Government's acknowledgment last December of the need for long-term support, resulting in grants totalling £8,750,000 to be spread over the next three years.

He added: "A high priority is to continue the better presentation of exhibits in the collections and the improvement of amenities."

The report mentions a reduction in the number of species on show at the zoos but does not state which. In fact, the latest to disappear are the polar bears and the birds of prey.

The bears have been sent to Dudley Zoo, in the West Midlands, and the birds of prey have been scattered to other collections, including the Falconry Centre at Newent, Gloucestershire.

GOLD COIN SETS WITH NEW HEAD

The Royal Mint is to issue a limited number of 1985 proof gold coin sets, for only the seventh time this century. The United Kingdom coins comprise the £5, £2, sovereign and half sovereign.

The set, with an issue limit of 12,500 costing £1,150 each, is to mark the introduction of a new royal portrait on 1985 coins. A further 12,500 each of sovereigns and half sovereigns will cost £149·95 and £79·95 respectively.

Newsvendor conspiracy alleged

A MANAGER ordered to stamp out thefts which had cost a newspaper distributor £85,000 was himself involved in the conspiracy, it was alleged at Knightsbridge Crown Court yesterday.

PENIE BOTTONE, a night shift manager for Chrisp and Wilson of Paddington, was supplying a ring of news vendors with bundles of stolen magazines and newspapers, said Mr CHRISTOPHER NICHOLLS, Q C, prosecuting.

The racket was uncovered by another company investigator looking into clients' accounts. He found that MICHAEL BARKER, who runs a news stall at Marble Arch station, was making excessive claims for unsold newspapers, it was alleged.

"In some cases his claims for returns exceeded the number of newspapers he was officially supplying," said Mr Nicholls.

BOTTONE, 57, of Dunstan Road, Forest Hill, and BARKER, 56, of Upper Berkeley Street, Marble Arch, deny conspiracy to steal newspapers and magazines between Jan. 1, 1982, and July 14, 1983. Bottone pleads not guilty to a further four charges of theft during the same period.

The trial was adjourned until today.

TV crews incited trouble at strike plant, court told

TELEVISION camera crews covering the pit strike were criticised by a magistrate at Aberdare, Mid-Glamorgan, yesterday over an incident in which an angry mob attacked a car driven by the wife of a working miner.

The car, which contained an unmanned I T N camera, was pelted with paint, eggs, tomatoes and finally a lump of concrete as Mrs Joy Watson dropped her husband at a smokeless fuel plant.

Mr Watson had been the only man to break the strike at the Phurnacite plant.

Mr GERAINT EVANS, defending four of the 10 people accused over the incident, said that a crowd outside the plant was told by a TV crew that the Watsons were about to arrive.

"A clearer exhortation to arm yourselves for battle there cannot be," he said. "I do not say that excuses what happened. But there is an element of incitement or encouraging these people to act in a manner which can only be described as playing to the camera."

He said previous demonstrations when cameras had not been present had been peaceful. "Such incitement would amount to appalling behaviour on the part of the media," he said.

Seven women and one man who admitted taking part in the incident were each given two-month prison sentences, suspended for a year.

10 in court

Passing sentence, Dr. DAVID ROWLANDS, stipendiary magistrate, said: "Scenes shown nationally on TV caused a lot of disturbance throughout the country as a whole. The very presence of the TV cameras seems to have caused some of those scenes."

Eight defendants who admitted threatening behaviour likely to cause a breach of the peace were:

BRYSTON GRIFFITHS, 45, a taxi driver, of Park View Terrace, Abercwmboi; ANGELA HUNKIN, 30, of John Street, Abercwmboi; JEANETTE BEE, 34, of Forthhill Street, Glenboi; PATRICIA JAMES, 31, of Gorsedd Street, Miskin; MARILYN BARTER, 30, of Glenboi, all Mountain Ash; MARGARET WATKINS, 46, of John Street, Abercwmboi; DEBRA BRACE, 24, of Hawthorn Terrace, Porthcelin, Mountain Ash; LYNNEK HOBBS, 29 of John Street, Abercwmboi. Mrs Brace and Mrs Hobbs were also bound over in the sum of £150 to keep the peace for a year and ordered to pay £55 compensation after admitting causing criminal damage.

Mrs DEBRA DAVIES, 27, of Park View Terrace, Abercwmboi, was remanded on bail until May 22 when the court was told she would elect tria accused of causing actual bodily harm to Mrs Watson. LYNNE MORGAN, 21, of Hawthorn Terrace, Porthcelin, Mountain Ash, agreed to be bound over in the sum of £150 to keep the peace for a year. No charge was put to her.

COTTESLOE PLAYS FOR LYCEUM

By KEITH NURSE
Arts Correspondent

THE National Theatre's production of "The Mysteries," which has been playing to packed audiences on the South Bank has been saved from ending when the 400-seat Cottesloe Theatre closes on Saturday.

The Lyceum in the Strand, used as a ballroom for 40 years, will re-open as a live theatre specifically to take the three-play production for a 12-week season.

'Dark' in summer

The Cottesloe, one of the National's three auditoria at its South Bank complex, will close after the final performance of the production on Saturday and remain "dark" during the spring and summer but open again sometime in August/September.

The widely publicised closure, along with a package of redundancies, arises because of insufficient Arts Council subsidy. The theatre is short of £1,100,000 this year.

The Lyceum seats almost 1,000 and the last stage show there before its conversion to a ballroom was Sir John Gielgud's "Hamlet" in 1939.

SPIKE IN EYE DEATH 'AN ACCIDENT'

James Melloy, 24, who denies murdering a station ticket collector by plunging a five-foot metal spike through his left eye and into his brain, told an Old Bailey jury yesterday that it was an accident.

Melloy, unemployed, of Lawrence Avenue, Manor Park, said he was with a group of youths at Seven Kings Station, Ilford, East London, who racially abused Mr Peter Burns, 59. Mr Burns then hit him on the head with a shovel.

He said he pulled the spike from a building site and ran back into the station. Mr Burns lifted his shovel and Melloy raised the spike as a reaction. "I didn't think the spike would reach him." The trial was adjourned until today.

To Booker Shareholders

Reject the Dee Bid

Booker's three main activities have very strong market positions, vigorous management and outstanding prospects for growth.

Booker's 1985 forecasts confirm this

- profit up 22%
- earnings up 25%
- dividends up 28%

Dee's bid has major financial disadvantages, offering you

- lower attributable pre-tax profits
- lower earnings*
- lower income

Do not be misled by Dee's claim to offer you higher earnings.

*This is based on Dee including substantial exceptional property profits and on an abnormally low tax charge. As almost all the recent increase in Dee's 1984/85 profit forecast stems from property profits, a comparison based on Dee's original forecast (which did not include property profits of an exceptional nature) shows Booker had higher 1984 earnings per share. Booker has not included property profits of £8.5m before tax (equivalent to 3.4p per share after tax) categorised as an extraordinary item in its 1984 results. Booker's 1985 forecast shows earnings per share substantially ahead at 24p.

THE main investment sections of London stock markets put up a solid performance yesterday. Selective institutional interest was encouraged by the further recovery in sterling and resulting hopes of a cut in base rates in the fairly near future.

Expanding activity on the takeover front prompted renewed speculation in many of the old bid favourites, while general sentiment was also helped by the continued flow of mainly satisfactory company results and interim reports.

Bank shares, in the doldrums for some time, returned to favour and scored strong gains in a sensitive dealing situation. Food shares provided another notably strong sector, while stores remained well to the fore on takeover hopes.

Some of the blue chips, recently depressed by the decline in the dollar, attracted bargain hunting. Imperial Chemical Industries led the way with a rise of 16 to 782p while buyers also came for B T R, at 684p, Hanson Trust, at 214p, Imperial Group, at 187p.

In the event, the market indices recorded sizeable gains, the "30" index closing 9·3 up at 988·8 and the "100" index 13·2 higher at 1,304, the latter being within easy striking distance of its peak of 1,309·9.

Government securities opened on a firm note in sympathy with sterling, but business remained at a rather disappointing level and early gains were pared or eliminated in the absence of follow-through demand. The final picture was one of mixed changes in stock values but the undertone was described as "quite satisfactory."

On the takeover front, there was a new wave of speculative activity in Debenhams, which climbed to 262p before closing 14 better at 260p; the buying interest was accompanied by revived talk of a possible consortium offer. Bid speculators were also involved in Commercial Union in the wake of persistent suggestions of an imminent offer; the shares finished unchanged at 227p, after 234.

Bank shares maintained their good tone in late dealings, with National Westminster heading the list of gains at 597p, a rise of 25. Barclays old were 15 better at 357p and the rights also 15 higher at 196p premium, while Lloyds finished 12 up at 539p and Midland 13 to the good at 352p.

In the building sector, Taylor Woodrow moved up 12 to 387p on further consideration of Tuesday's figures. R M C fell to 348p on the profit warning, but buyers quickly appeared and the shares rebounded to close 8 higher at 366p. Hepworth Ceramic were firmer at 138p on suggestions of a possible takeover offer from Consolidated Gold Fields while Scapa Group ended harder at 455p after the £20 million rights issue.

British Telecom enjoyed solid investment support and closed 4 better at 141p, while Laporte Industries gained 5 to 433p ahead of the results, due today. On the other hand, British Aerospace came on offer and lost 9 to 423p, while recent strong favourite, Pentland Industries ran into profit-taking and reacted 15 to 640p.

Following Tuesday's reaction, M F I recovered to 298p pending further developments in the Associated Dairies' bid situation before closing 7 up at 290p. Associated Dairies ended 2 firmer at 156p, after 158p. Buyers also appeared for Williams Holdings, 12 up at 275p, Croda International, 6 better at 148p, and Avon Rubber, 8 higher at 308p.

The encouraging statement with the full year's results lifted N E I 9½ to 86p, with buyers influenced by yield considerations. Other results to bring favourable share price response came from Fogarty, 7 up at 74p, A P V Holdings, 8 higher at 248p, Matthew Hall, 10 better at 326p, and Telephone Rentals, 2 harder at 205p, after 210p. British Mohair, at 127p, and Forward Technology, at 28p, also improved on figures.

British Printing & Communications Corporation had an erratic ride after their results. The shares, initially stronger at 200p, reacted to 191p before closing 3 better at 197p. Follow-through support after Tuesday's figures left Boase Massimi 25 up at 730p.

Buyers were nibbling in the electrical sector, hence gains in G E C, at 194p, Plessey, at 208p, Racal Electronics, at 210p, and Standard Telephones & Cables, at 204p. Bowthorpe recovered 15 to 400p and Electrocomponents 18 to 303p.

Further support was reported for Vosper, which jumped to 280p before closing 24 higher at 275p: buyers were hoping for favourable developments relating to the company's compensation claims. Davy Corporation were wanted at 120p, up 7, while J H & B Jackson also rose to 120p, a gain of 6.

Expanding demand for shares in the food sector brought an all-round advance in quotations. Bid speculators came for Rowntree Mackintosh, 8 up at 405p, and United Biscuits, 6 better at 189p, while straight forward investment demand left gains of about 10 in Associated British Foods, at 236p, Avana, at 612p, Morrison Supermarkets, at 250p, and Kwik Save, at 202p.

Ocean Transport improved afresh to 193p as speculators remained hopeful about a possible offer from P & O, 10 better at 353p. European Ferries were also favoured at 146p, up 5½p.

Among stores, Woolworth advanced to 865p before settling down at 855p, a gain of 9. Renewed interest after Tuesday's figures brought gains in J Hepworth, 6 up at 199p, and Austin Reed A, 11 higher at 123p, while yesterday's announcements of full year's figures were good for rises in Etam, 15 better at 169p, and Owen Owen, 10 higher at 188p.

Bullion ended firmer, $1·75 up at $328·25, but with main investment interest centred on the other sections, gold shares were in the doldrums. F S Geduld slipped to £24, President Brand to £24⅝, and Vaal Reefs to £80½. Elsewhere, R T Z were sold after the results and closed 14 down at 641p, after 637p, while Australians to lose ground included Poseidon, at 237p, and North Kalgurli, at 46½p.

Lasmo were in good form, 13 higher at 325p, on the Indonesian drilling report, while other major oil shares to improve were British Petroleum, at 545p, Britoil, at 213p, "Shell," at 727p, and Ultramar, at 248p. Tricentrol ended 5 better at 250p on persistent talk of a possible takeover offer. Exploration hopes lifted Pict Petroleum 12 to 145p and Petrogen 7 to 49p.

Tailpiece

THE SHARES of Federated Housing show only marginal improvement at 46p, compared with our January mention at 42p, but last month's results from this housebuilder were quite satisfactory and the investment situation deserves further examination. The company is in course of arranging further expansion in its South East building programme and, as far as current trading is concerned, the signs are that the results for 1985 will beat last year's £1·25 million.

In the circumstances, the basic investment statistics on the shares indicate an undervalued investment. The dividend yield of 9·3 p.c. has a historical cover of 2·7 times, while the price/earnings ratio of 5·6 also has its attractions.

Federated Housing, now quoted in the unlisted securities market, may well be sufficiently sure of itself to go for a full market quotation next year. One to tuck away.

RTZ lifts final

RIO Tinto-Zinc is raising its final dividend from 12p to 13·5p a share, making 20p for the year (18p) after reporting 1984 net attributable profits of £210·7m compared with £172·5m. Enterprise Oil contributed £6·9m.

The group says world economic activity should expand in 1985, but not as rapidly as in 1984, and its industrial interests may find it hard to maintain the pace of improvement.

Dividend payable July 1

RMC advances

RMC GROUP'S 1984 pre-tax profits have advanced from £71·6m to £81·3m but the company warns that the first six months of 1985 will show a downturn while the outlook for the second half year is uncertain.

The final dividend, however, is to be increased from 8·6p net to 7·9p which takes the total up to 13p against 12p.

Questor—P21

BPCC £15m up

THE British Printing & Communication Corporation, helped by strong property profits, yesterday reported a pre-tax outcome of £37·9m for the year ended December compared with £22·1m. Group turnover was £236·5m (£230·82m), and the board says the first quarter of the current year has started well.

A final dividend of 8p, payable July 10, makes 11p for the year compared with 6p paid previously.

Questor—P21

Sweet Apple

APPLE Computer Inc. recorded turnover of $453·3m in its second quarter bringing the first half total to end-March to $1·1bn compared with $616·3m for the same period last time.

Pre-tax profit for the second quarter rose 18 p.c. to $19·6m.

Dewhirst record

ANOTHER record year for L. J. Dewhirst Holdings has seen the pre-tax outturn from this major Marks and Spencer supplier 17·3 p.c. up at just over £4m (£3·42m) on a 27·7 p.c. rise in sales to £43m.

Holders get a 0·81p final on July 1, making 1·1p (equal to 0·96p), while their usual scrip is a one-for-five.

Parcels steady

UNITED Parcels increased its turnover by £5·3m to £66m in 1984-85, but its pre-tax profits dropped back from a record £7·77m to £7·07m, underlining what it describes as the ferocity of competition throughout the parcels industry.

It points out that its December acquisition Atlas Express Group, with turnover of more than £20m, significantly increases its national parcels service market share and should bring future benefits.

The final is 2·2p, making 3p (2·8p) with earnings at 7p (7·8p).

Etam improves

HELPED by strong Christmas trading, Etam, the womenswear chain which joined the market in June, has weighed in with full year pre-tax profits of £8·6m (£6·96m) on a near 18 p.c. sales rise to £56·5m. Results for the first eight weeks this time are up too. The final dividend is 2·1p on July 5 making 3p (equal 2·5p).

Brook St back

FOLLOWING a highly successful year Brook Street Bureau is restoring former dividend levels with gusto, a 3p final on May 31 making a 4p (1p) total. Pre-tax profits for 1984 jumped from just £437,000 to £1·40m and earnings from 3·59p to 9·05p.

Buoyant and increasing levels of business have continued, and for the fourth year running the group expects to show a significant increase in both turnover and profits.

Buoyant Brixton

FULL year results from Brixton Estate are well up to market expectations. Rental income is up from £14·8m to £17·4m with pre-tax profits of £8·9m against £8·3m. Earnings per share for 1984 are stated at 7·73p compared with 6·98p.

A final dividend of 3·05p is to be paid on July 19, making a total for the year of 5·15p against 4·6p.

Manufacturing production at five-year high

By FRANCES WILLIAMS

THE output of British manufacturing industry appears to be picking up speed after a pause during the second half of last year.

Latest Government figures show a 0·9 p.c. increase in manufacturing production in February to its highest level for nearly five years, 3·8 p.c. above its level in the same month last year.

Industrial production as a whole, which includes the energy sector, fell by 0·2 p.c. in February as North Sea oil activity declined from exceptionally high January levels. But the January increase was revised up from 1·3 to 1·5 p.c.

Overall figures for industrial production continue to be distorted by the miners' strike, which is estimated to have cut output by about 3·5 p.c. in recent months, mostly through the direct loss of coal production. February saw some increase in coal output as the strike began to crumble to 35 p.c. of pre-dispute levels from a low of 25 p.c.

Excluding the effects of the strike, industrial production may have grown by an underlying 3 p.c. or more over the past year rather than stagnating as the crude figures suggest.

Manufacturing, which has been little affected by the strike, shows a 2·5 p.c. increase over the past year, comparing the three months to February with the same period 12 months earlier. Over the two latest three-month periods manufacting output has risen by 0·8 p.c. and overall output by 1·7 p.c.

The Government is predicting a 2·5 p.c. increase in manufacturing output this year in line with the underlying growth rate of the economy as a whole. The Treasury's forecast of a 3·5 p.c. expansion in economic activity includes an estimated 0·75 p.c. "bounce-back" from the end of the miners' strike.

Th elatest survey of manufacturing by the Confederation of British Industry shows that domestic and export orders are more buoyant than for several years. The CBI is forecasting 4 p.c. growth in the economy this year, which would be faster than in any year since the Barber boom of 1973.

Over the past few months chemicals and "other" manufacturing have done particularly well, though there has been a drop in the output of metals and other minerals. Over the two latest three-month periods production of intermediate and investment goods rose by 2 p.c. and consumer goods by 1 p.c.

Nevertheless, despite the contribution of North Sea Oil, industrial output and more especially manufacturing output have not yet regained their pre-recession peaks. Industrial output remains 4 p.c. below its level in spring 1979, while manufacturing production is 9 p.c. down.

Rothschild twist in Entrad bid for Tootal

By JOHN RUDOFSKY

ENTRAD'S hotly-contested £128·5 million takeover bid for Tootal Group took an unexpected turn last night as J. Rothschild Holdings emerged with a 6·4 p.c. stake in the target company, stating emphatically it would refuse the offer.

The announcement came with less than 24 hours to go in the takeover battle which closes at 3.30 p.m. this afternoon. Entrad owns just under 30 p.c. outright and managing director Rod Hartley admitted after the Rothschild revaluation that he would be quite happy with only 51 p.c. of Tootal.

"Rothschild's move is a nuisance, but not the end of the world," said Mr Hartley. "What we want for our United Kingdom plans is control."

Earlier yesterday he unveiled plans for a 23-million Entrad share placing in London that could raise A$46 million (£24 million) if the Tootal deal goes through.

He denied the announcement was a move to entice wavering institutions to finally accept but Tootal's chairman, Alan Wagstaff, dubbed the announcement as "something they have dreamed up at the last moment."

A Rothschild spokesman said his company had spent around £8·5 million on its Tootal stake over the last 10 days, buying at around 75p a share against the 72½p Entrad offer.

"This is not a rescue, nor an unusually large investment for us" claimed Rothschild. "Nor are we particularly looking for a short-term profit. We have not heard any whispers of a new bidder."

Alan Wagstaff said: "There has been no contact with Rothschild. But I am pleased, because it helps us." He added: "I am confident we will win."

Like the stock market, the Entrad camp was unsure of today's outcome. But Mr Hartley with his new lower target of a controlling stake said: "I think we will get 51 p.c."

Earlier in the day the Take-Over Panel rapped the Tootal camp for claiming recently it had the indicated suoport of shareholders owning 35 p.c. of the shares. Take-Over Panel inquiries found there was no firm evidence to support the claim.

Tootal's shares closed 1p higher at 75p last night against the 72½p cash offer, or just over 74p counting in the retained dividend.

Lawson's forecast tops IMF's 3 pc

By ANDREAS WHITTAM SMITH

THE half-yearly meeting of the 22 finance ministers comprising the interim committee of the International Monetary Fund has started on an upbeat note.

Mr Lawson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the first sesson that the talks were taking place at the most propitious moment for six years.

He was more optimistic about the prospects for the world recovery even than the staff of the IMF, whose WORLD ECONOMIC OUTLOOK is published this week. Mr Lawson sees the industrial nations achieving 3·5 p.c. growth during 1985.

The IMF's official forecast is that during 1985 and 1986 expansion in the industrial countries is expected to reach a pattern that is more balanced geographically than was the case in 1984.

The IMF also states that the fears that recovery might lead to a resurgence of inflationary pressures have so far proved unfounded. Inflation in the industrial countries as a whole is expected to fall below 4 p.c. in 1985 and 3·75 p.c. in 1986

Looking further ahead, the IMF tentatively predicts a continuation of 3 p.c. growth until 1990. The official statement also adds that "there is no strong reason . . . to expect a significant acceleration from recent price trends."

Wall Street waits on growth pointers

By JAMES SRODES in Washington

AMERICAN share prices broke a modest six-day winning run yesterday as investors looked past reports on personal income and factory capacity to today's government estimate of economic growth trends.

The Dow Jones index traded back and forth during most of the day, but finally settled for a 1·77 point loss to around 1267 just before the closing bell.

The dollar firmed a little in New York after the London closing. Sterling fell from $1·2822 London rate to $1·2775 early in the afternoon while the quote against the Deutschmark was up to 3·0255 against the 3·0180 London quote.

Market analysts confessed disappointment over a Commerce Department report that the personal income levels of Americans in March rose a seasonally adjusted 0·5p — roughly $16 billion—to $3,156 billion, after a revised $11 billion increase the month before.

Most market forecasts had predicted at least a $20 billion monthly rise. Other analysts also were disappointed by a report that the capicity utilisation rate for American factories had remained unchanged at 80·8 p.c. through February and March. A recovery to January's level of 81·2 p.c. had been expected.

Richard Rahn, chief economist for the Chamber of Commerce said the latest statistics pont to a sharp upward revision in the GNP numbers.

"Today's news of higher personal income combined with Monday's report of a resumption of housing and the economy gaining strength," aid Richard Rahn, chief economist for the United States.

AMERICAN COMMENT

By Andreas Whittam Smith in New York

Mega-merger mania maiming U.S. business

THE United States is in the midst of a takeover binge. Day after day headline news concerns famous groups being pursued by corporate raiders. Even the glamorous media companies are under attack. In March, American Broadcasting Companies (ABC) fell to Capital Cities Communications for $305 billion. This month CBS Inc. is fighting a desperate battle to preserve its independence. The value of merger transactions in 1984 reached $125 billion compared with $75 billion in the previous year: at the present rate 1985 will be even better.

Or worse, depending upon your viewpoint. As the merger boom multiplies in intensity, corporate executives beseech Congress to intervenes. Andrew Sigler, chairman of Champion International and of the Task Force and with corporate responsibility for the Business Round Table, says disruption by raiders is a "horrible wrong."

"It's hurting this country. It's hurting the economic system. These pressures could undermine our long-term strength."

Maybe takeovers conducted American-style are indeed unpleasant. As far as the corporate raiders are concerned, from oilman T. Boone Pickens, via Saul Steinberg, to Carl Icahn, there is no sense that they are building up anything enduring, whether it be a well-managed conglomerate, or a bigger business. In fact, these operators often make a great deal of money without actually acquiring the assets that they are purportedly seeking. Generally they play a catalytic role, causing the victim company to find an alternative solution.

Saul Steinberg made $60 million out of not acquiring Walt Disney Productions. The raiders also pose as shareholders' champions. Indeed, that is a welcome side effect of their activities. Mr Pickens, for instance, claims that 750,000 stockholders have shared $13 billion in the increased value of their assets, as a result of his raids on four big oil companies. But at least Sir James Goldsmith, now very active in the United States, is more straightforward about his motives. Takeovers, he is reported as saying, are "for the public good, but that's not why I do it. I do it to make money."

The reactions of besieged managements are equally unsatisfactory. They often give the impression that their only concern is their own jobs and perquisites. Measures taken to repel raiders can easily be damaging to stockholders' interests. Initially, companies in the firing line were prepared to buy off raiders, paying them what became known as "greenmail," and borrowing heavily to do so.

Recently their defences have become more sophisticated. They have started to limit the way shareholders' meetings can be called. Directors' terms of office are being staggered to prevent their quick removal. Company by-laws are being changed so that merger proposals must be approved by "super majorities"—say by 80 p.c. of stockholders.

Poison pill

Worst of all is the so-called poison pill defence. Crown Zellerbach has adopted this repulsive measure to defeat Sir James Goldsmith's takeover attempt. What Crown Zellerbach has done is to make provisions which mean that when any investor acquires 20 p.c., then stockholders would have the right to buy shares at $100 each and, if the company is acquired, to sell their holdings to the new owner at $200 a time.

There is also heard the absurd argument that stockholders are not the sole owners of the companies in which they have invested their capital. One chairman says corporations have "constituencies other than their shareholders." A lawyer paid to defend companies questioned whether stockholders are "true owners" of companies, as opposed to employees, or the community, or customers, or suppliers.

Proxy contests

Thank goodness, then, that the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) has entered the lists on the side of a shareholder who claimed that a "poison pill" defence unfairly protected the directors. The SEC brief stated that the plan "would deprive shareholders of an opportunity to consider virtually all hostile tender offers. It would also have a significant deterrent effect on proxy contests against management (i.e. of passing resolutions critical of the directors) and would thereby entrench management against efforts to oust it and thus is not in the shareholders' interests."

It is tempting to see America's merger mania as the typical conclusion of a long period of economic expansion and stock market strength. Companies which had been too weak or badly positioned to participate fully in the general advance have become vulnerable to takeovers. Stock prices traditionally get a final boost from such activity and then boil over.

This scenario, however, is unpopular. The more usual explanation is that corporate assets have become undervalued. Many United States shares are trading at prices below what the underlying assets would fetch if sold off, goes the argument. To take a specific example, it is said that the stock market value of American oil companies is well under the true worth of their production.

Unfortunately, theoretical calculations of this kind hardly ever work out when put to the test of willing sellers dealing with willing buyers. It could as easily be argued that the stock market has prudently built into its current valuation of oil companies the assumption that the oil price itself could go on falling.

The key to the merger boom is to be found elsewhere. For the new development which makes the raids possible is the discovery of ample sources of finance. Corporate raiders are funding themselves by issuing what are called junk bonds. These are securities with poor backing by conventional tests (hence "junk") but which have other attractions, such as high interest rates and equity-participation rights.

In effect they become charges on the victim companies' assets. Thus, by issuing junk bonds, small companies may take over units much larger than themselves. National Can, for instance, has just succumbed to a takeover offer made by a smaller company that has persuaded 36 junk bond investors to put up the necessary $430 million cash.

Deals like this, however, illustrate the most worrying aspect of America's merger boom. Both attack and defence tactics often involve huge new borrowing. Companies burdened in this way could get into serious trouble when the next downturn in the United States economy arrives.

First National to raise £200m

FIRST National Securities, the consumer finance subsidiary of First National Finance Corporation is following up its good annual results by raising a £200 million medium term syndicated credit through Kleinwort Benson and Chase Manhattan.

Interest is linked party to eligible bill rate and partly to Libor. Precise terms are not disclosed but are said to be finer than the previous £160 million facility arranged in September 1983 after FNFC had emerged from the "lifeboat."

The new credit will be partly used to pay off the previous facility and is thought to be one of the largest sterling credits ever arranged in the domestic market for a United Kingdom based company.

Minet syndicates face big losses

RUMOURS within Lloyd's of record losses by the Minet Holdings syndicates have prompted a letter to members warning that "further substantial provisions" will be needed to cover losses made by syndicates 157, 918 and 940.

The letter from Richard Beckett Underwriting Agencies, a Minet subsidiary, concedes that the news will cause great concern and says it hopes to provide details within the next week or so.

Although the syndicates had been part of the PCW group, it is thought the latest shortfall is not the result of the earlier scandals but just poor underwriting.

Like several other syndicates, losses were made in 1982, but for 918 the problems go back to 1979 and for 940 to 1980.

Scapa in £20m Rights issue

FAST-GROWING Scapa Group is calling on its shareholders for an extra 2£0·8 million—£20·1 million after expenses—by way of a rights issue to boost cash resources ready for future acquisitions.

The issue is one-for-six, lodged at 375p a share against the existing share price which rose 3p to 455p yesterday.

To back up the rights issue the group announced estimated pre-tax profits of £27·3 million for the year to March 31, a rise of £8 million or 44 p.c. on the previous year.

A final dividend of 7·28p a share is forecast, making a 10·98p total, 20 p.c. up on a year ago. But the new shares do not rank for the final.

Tokyo stages strong recovery

SHARE prices rebounded market yesterday as bargain strongly on the Tokyo stock hunters took advantage of the previous day's biggest-ever fall in values.

With trading described as very active the Nikkei Dow-Jones average recovered 94·78 points to close at 12,302·06.

On Tuesday the average lost more than 545 points. Dealers said the market rebounded smoothly as Tuesday's slide was not provoked by any new factors but was seen as a necessary adjustment to unduly high prices.

Pound nears $1·30 in Far East

By CLIFFORD GERMAN

FOR THE third day running the Bank of England resisted downward pressures in the London money markets yesterday in spite of another good performance by the pound.

Sterling reached $1·29¾ overnight in the Far East and opened $1·2880 in London. It reached its best levels at 9 a.m. at $1·2910, 3.8717 marks and a trade weighted average of 79·6 per cent.

It failed to hold its best levels but closed at $1·2762, up 50 points, at 3·8670 marks, up 70 points and at 79·4, up 0·3 on the average index.

The dollar again fell below three marks to a five-month low of 2·9870 marks in the Far East, but speculation that the United States first quarter o"pu figures oday would show growth as high as 3 p.c. a year helped boost the dollar.

United States personal income figures were in line with expectations and the dollar closed only marginally lower against most European currencies, including a 20 point fall to 3·0260 marks.

The discount houses faced a shortage of £650 million and again tried unsuccessfully to secure better terms for help from the Bank of England during the morning. They eventually sold £84 million bills at unchanged rates and at midday took sale and repurchases for £58 million, maturing equally on May 8 and 10 at the established rate of 12¾ per cent.

Another £124 million in bill purchases and another £75 million of the "repo" followed in the afternoon, topped off by £210 million of direct lending, leaving the market short of £118 million.

Fresh funds cost 13¼ p.c. for most of the day, and overnight money in the inter bank market, initially 13¾-14 p.c., reached 16 before closing at 15 p.c.

Period money was initially up to ⅛ p.c. cheaper during the morning but hardened a shade in the afternoon, and the significant three month inter bank money rate closed around 12⅜ p.c. down about 3/32 p.c. on the day.

Espley Trust asks for receiver

ESPLEY Trust, the troubled property company built up by Ronald Shuck, has invited the Bank of Scotland to appoint a receiver to the company and certain of its subsidiaries.

Garey Wakeham, hcief executive, has confirmed that Ronald Aitken, chairman, who was invited to assist the directors with their rescue attempt last summer has resigned.

The main operating company which is not affected by the receivership action is Howard Tenens Engines, a Swindon-based company which is not being placed in receivership.

Mr Wakeham said yesterday were still instructed to proceed with an action against Mr Shuck regarding land transactions in Scotland

NEI slips to £40m pre-tax

A YEAR of consolidation and completion of a major restructuring of key businesses—costing it £50m (£4.9m) in below the line extraordinary debits—has ended for Northern Engineering Industries with pre-tax profits of £40.1m (£45.8m).

In Britain, the manufacturing companies achieved profits of more than £40, despite a £12.9m loss by project engineering as a result of problems with two power stations. The power group activities performed particularly well but the British electrical and industrial businesses suffered severely from the miners' strike.

*The board is looking for re*structuring benefits to flow through in 1985 and reports a strong balance sheet and a good order book.

The dividend is being held at 5.25p with a 3.6p final on July 1 from earnings of 9.05p (11.02p).

APV

APV HOLDINGS, which instituted a rigorous programme of rationalisation and cost reduction following top management changes last July, has turned in 1984 pre-tax profits of £8.61m against £18.5m. Rationalisation and closure costs amount to £9.46m and have been treated as an extraordinary debit.

Earnings come out at 11.2p compared with 34.1p, but the dividend stays at 11.25p with a similar 6.75p final. The group, meanwhile, entered 1985 with a larger order book than in 1984.

Adwest Group

*ADWEST GROUP, whose inter*ests encompass the automotive, electrical, engineering and property fields, had what chairman Frank Waller describes as a "disappointing" half-year with pre-tax profits just £200,000 ahead at £2.65m.

A 1.6p (1.5p) interim is payable June 5.

Blackwood Hodge

EARTH-MOVING equipment concern Blackwood Hodge swung from losses of £20.6m to pre-tax profits of £5.04m in 1984, struck after lower interest charges of £9.8m against £14.5m. Bank borrowings in the period were reduced from £72.2m to £48.8m.

Had the sale of the group's diesel engine activities at home and in Australia, reported in December, taken place on January 1, 1984, there would have been a £1.6m reduction in 1984's profit.

Meanwhile, the board intends to continue its emphasis on the reduction of group's liabilities to its bankers. There is no dividend (same).

Fogarty

FOGARTY, the continental quilt and pillow maker which was £124,000 in the red at the interim stage, recovered strongly in the second half for there are full year pre-tax profits of £992,000.

This however is well down on 1983's £1.66m and earnings are more than halved at 3.1p (6.7p) but the board is hopeful of a full recovery in profits this time and are holding the dividend at 4.02p with a 2.42p final on May 23.

Grovebell

GROVEBELL Group, which *recently acquired Atlanta Invest*ment Trust for £5.9m, has weighed in with pre-tax profits of £1.15m for the 15 months ended December, against £892,000 for the preceeding 12 months.

Dividend restoration continues with a 0.5p (0.25p) final on June 17 for a 0.55p (0.25p) total from earnings of 1.82p (1.77p).

Matthew Hall

ENGINEERING designer and contractor Matthew Hall has had its 14th successive year of record results with pre-tax profits ahead from £12.9m to £14.2m.

Earnings are 20.25p against 16.91p and a 6.525p final on July 1 makes a 7.875p (7p) total. There is also a one-for-one scrip issue.

Owen Owen

A PROGRESSIVE level of sales increase, with the improvement widely spread over the stores and different ranges of merchandise has stepped up Owen Owen's margins and helped it end 1984-85 with pre-tax profits on from £1.19m to £1.81m.

With tax taking £719,000 (£145,000) earnings come out at 11.31p (11.08p) from which there is a 2.8p final on July 1 making 5.8p (5.5p).

Sun Life

SUN LIFE Assurance is increasing the dividend by a fifth to 19.78p (16.48p) with a 1p final on June 11.

In yet another successful year, total group funds exceeded £5bn for the first time, reaching £5.27bn by end-December, an increase of £550m

Total premium income rose from £590m to £416m.

Telephone Rentals

TELEPHONE RENTALS' full year pre-tax profits are up 3.5 p.c. to £14.7m (£14.2m) which is marginally better than anticipated at the interim when it was said profits would not be materially different in view of the Government's delay in phasing in a number of significant new telecommunication products.

A 4p final on July 2 makes 6.25p (5.75p) from earnings of 14.6p (13.67p).

Wade Potteries

WADE Potteries continues to recover strongly for the first half pre tax out-turn is on from £366,300 to a peak of £598,400.

The interim goes up from 0.6p to 1p on May 31 in part to reduce disparity.

BIDS AND DEALS

McLeod Russel

McLEOD RUSSEL has acquired the 31.4 p.c. not owned in Iffley for A$3.90m (£2.04m) cash with a further payment equivalent to 31.4 p.c. of Iffley's net profit for 1984-85. Iffley's net assets at June 30 last were A$17.1m and taxable profits for the 18months period to that date were A$1.85m (£1.25m).

McLeod has also purchased Kurumul from Pioneer Concrete Services of Sydney, Australia, for Kina 2.5 (£1.91m) cash. Kurumul owns tea and coffee plantations in Papua and made Kina 206,000 (£176,000) in 1983-84.

INSIGHT GROUP PLC

Tender offer by the Company to purchase up to 27 per cent. of its own 1 per cent. Convertible Participating Cumulative Preference Shares at a maximum price of 350p per share Insight Group PLC ("the Company") hereby invites holders of 1 per cent. Convertible Participating Cumulative Preference Shares of £1 each of the Company ("Convertible Shares") to tender their Convertible Shares for sale to the Company on the terms and subject to the conditions set out below. This tender offer opens today, Thursday, 18th April, 1985 and will close at 3.30 p.m. on Friday, 26th April, 1985.

Terms of the Tender Offer

1. The maximum price at which the Company will accept tenders will be 350p per Convertible Share. It is possible to tender at a price below the maximum price of 350p, subject to a minimum price of 200p per Convertible Share. It is a requirement of law that a minimum price be fixed for the tender offer; the minimum price is not, however, intended to give any indication as to the likely striking price (see below). The smallest fraction of one penny which may be tendered is one penny.
2. The maximum number of Convertible Shares for which the Company will accept tenders is 845,000, representing 27 per cent. of the present issued Convertible Share capital. Convertible Shareholders may tender all or some of their Convertible Shares, but if more than 845,000 Convertible Shares are tendered applications may be scaled down, balloted or rejected as explained in paragraphs 4 and 5 below.
3. If tenders of Convertible Shares representing less than 1 per cent. of the voting rights attached to the Company's Convertible Shares (being 31,306 Convertible Shares) are received, the tender offer will be void.

   Hawley Group PLC, which owns 5,632,994 Ordinary Shares of 25p each in the capital of the Company (representing 75 per cent. of the issued Ordinary Share capital of the Company) does not own any Convertible Shares. The Company has however been informed by Procroft Limited, a subsidiary of Hawley Group PLC, that it has recently agreed to purchase in the market 845,000 Convertible Shares (representing 27 per cent. of the issued Convertible Share capital). Procroft Limited has also informed the Company that its present intention is to tender those Convertible Shares at a price which will not result in a profit for Procroft Limited.
4. If the number of Convertible Shares tendered for sale is more than 845,000, the striking price will be the lowest price at which the number of Convertible Shares sought (i.e. 845,000) is met and all Convertible Shareholders who tender at or below the striking price will receive that price. If necessary, tenders made at the striking price will be scaled down pro rata or balloted.
5. No tenders at above the striking price will be accepted and Convertible Shareholders should be aware that it is possible that the striking price could be less than 350p.
6. If the number of Convertible Shares tendered for sale is less than 845,000 tendering shareholders will receive the maximum price of 350p, subject to paragraph 3 above.
7. Subject to paragraph 3 above, all tenders lodged by Convertible Shareholders or, on their behalf, by their agents will be irrevocable.
8. The tender offer opens today, Thursday, 18th April, 1985 and will close at 3.30 p.m. on Friday, 26th April, 1985. The tender offer will be conducted by The Stock Exchange and will be subject in all respects to the procedures and requirements laid down by The Stock Exchange. Upon the closing of the tender offer, dealings in Convertible Shares will be temporarily suspended and The Stock Exchange will determine the striking price and which Convertible Shares have been successfully tendered. The decision of The Stock Exchange on these matters shall be conclusive and binding on all Convertible Shareholders.
9. At 9.30 a.m. on Monday, 29th April, 1985 (or, if later, immediately following the announcement of the results of the tender offer) dealings in the Company's Convertible Shares will resume and sales will be effected through The Stock Exchange of those Convertible Shares which have been successfully tendered. It is emphasised that the terms of such sales may in no circumstances be subsequently varied.
10. Sales resulting from successful tenders will be for normal settlement through The Stock Exchange on Tuesday, 7th May, 1985. Convertible Shareholders who have successfully tendered will be subject to normal Stock Exchange sale commissions and expenses and will receive their proceeds of sale (less those commissions and expenses) through their stockbroker or other agent in the usual way once they have provided (a) valid share certificate(s) or other document(s) of title. The normal Stock Exchange rules for Account Settlement will apply and buying in may therefore take place in the event of late delivery of Convertible Shares.

Taxation

The taxation consequences for Convertible Shareholders who tender Convertible Shares will depend upon their own circumstances. Although the Company believes that the statements below correctly state the position of the majority of shareholders, the position may be different for certain shareholders, including non-United Kingdom residents and insurance companies. All Convertible Shareholders are strongly recommended to consult their professional advisers before tendering their Convertible Shares.

A successful tender of Convertible Shares will be treated as a normal stock market sale. There will be no liability to tax on income unless the Convertible Shareholder is normally assessed to tax as a trader in securities. The sale proceeds will be treated as capital and the normal capital gains tax rules will apply. In the case of Convertible Shareholders who acquired their Convertible Shares in exchange for Stock Units in Black & Edgington PLC, the base cost of their Convertible Shares for the purposes of taxation on capital gains will be approximately 74.6 per cent. of the base cost at which they previously held their Stock Units. An indexation allowance may also be available depending upon individual circumstances.

Action Required

Convertible Shareholders who wish to tender all or part of their Convertible Shares should instruct their stockbroker, bank manager or other professional adviser accordingly, indicating the number of Convertible Shares to be tendered and the price or prices at which such shares should be tendered.

Brokers to the Company in connection with the tender offer are Messrs. Anderson & Co., 62 London Wall, London EC2R 7DQ.

It is expected that an announcement of the results of the tender offer will be made at 9.30 a.m. on Monday, 29th April, 1985, being the first business day after the closing of the tender offer.

Record figures for Scottish Widows new premiums in 1984

The Viscount of Arbuthnott, DSC reporting as Chairman of Scottish Widows' Fund and Life Assurance Society.

BONUS DECLARATION

The rates of reversionary bonus declared for 1984 are at the same record levels as for 1983, 5.50% on existing sums assured and vested bonus for ordinary with profits policies and 6.40% for with profits policies in our pension fund. Terminal bonus rates have been substantially increased, as have cash bonuses for with profit group pension schemes.

What we still do not consider satisfactory, is the basis which life offices use for their new business quotations, using current interim bonus rates and showing terminal bonus based on current rates. We shall be much happier when industry-wide agreement is reached on a basis for producing quotations which are not extravagant and over-optimistic.

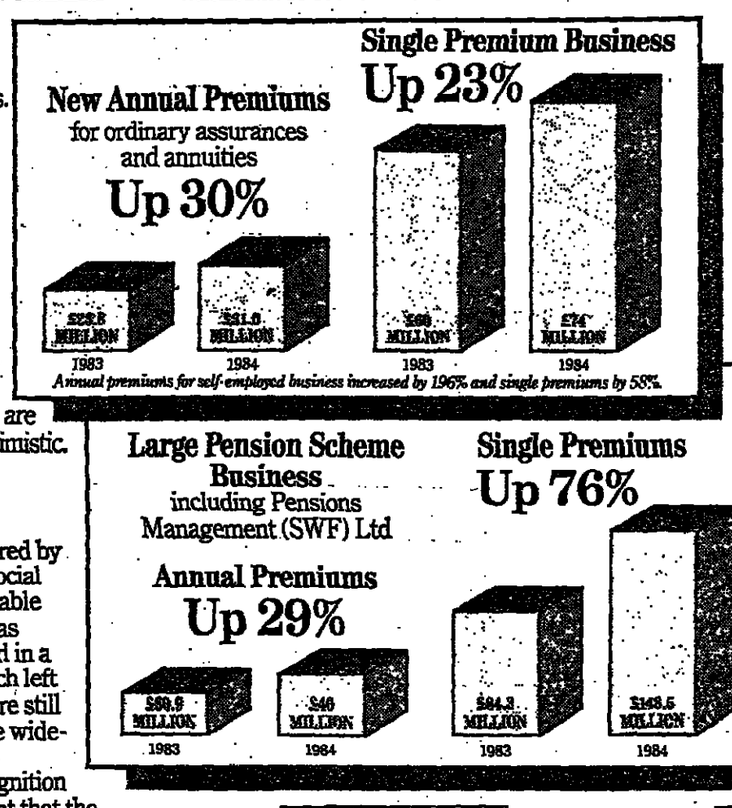
PENSIONS

The first enquiry chaired by the Secretary of State for Social Services into 'personal portable pensions', now referred to as 'personal pensions', resulted in a consultative document which left much unresolved, and we are still waiting for the results of the wide-ranging main Inquiry.

We welcomed the recognition in the consultative document that the arrangements for members of pension schemes to opt out of final salary schemes should be introduced on a basis that would not threaten the stability of such schemes. We are however still concerned that members who do exercise the option will not make enough provision for their retirement at an early enough stage, and may make a decision without a full understanding of what is really a very complicated choice, perhaps without fully appreciating the implications for themselves and their dependants.

INTEREST ON CLAIMS

For many years the Society has paid interest if payment is made more than one month after the date the death claim became payable. We have announced a further improvement in that the interest calculation will in future cover the first month as well.



SELF REGULATION

Following the publication of the White Paper on Self Regulation the Society is encouraged to see the proposals which are supportive of the ROLAC initiative which is not in the nature of a price control but is rather a measure aimed at ensuring unbiased advice and value for money for the consumer. With the aim of improving standards the Society further supports the concept of licensing which offers the prospect of a better trained and qualified salesforce and a more ethical professional selling environment.

STAFF

1984 was once again a year of unusually heavy pressure on all members of the Society's staff, who responded with enthusiasm to a series of new developments and to the challenge of dramatic changes in the environment in which we operate. We thank them for their commitment to maintaining the Society's high reputation in the market as a successful and progressive life office.

INVESTMENT

Of the £134M available for investment by the Society in 1984 plus £122M realised from net sales of equities, £100M was invested in fixed interest securities, £28M in index-linked stocks and £34M in property, while deposits increased by £94M.

Pensions Management (SWF) Ltd generated a figure of £252M to be invested compared with £133M in 1983.

FUTURE OUTLOOK

The Society has taken advantage of market opportunities over the past few years and has improved its new business performance as a result. We have a wide range of excellent contracts, we continue to give first class returns to our policyholders and we have an enthusiastic and hard working staff, so we are confident of continuing to increase our share of the market.

THE QUESTOR COLUMN

Property perks up BPCC

THE British Printing & Communication Corporation hasn't changed its spots, but it was thanks to property that Robert Maxwell was yesterday able to boast such a handsome rise in pre-tax profits for the year ended December — up from £22·1 million to £37·9 million.

The core printing side, held down by union problems, a £4 million charge against trading, extra millions of pounds in overtime and sub-contracting, turned out a £16·53 million against £16·35 million. All these problems are now said to be over, and printing should resume its dominant role in the profits table.

Property rose from £765,000 to £15·61 million, and though some may have their reservations it looks as if property profits are here to stay for a while. The group is set for additional profits from the Watford site and has development schemes at Aldershot, Dunstable and Leeds in hand.

Publishing advanced from £3·2 million to £4·4 million, and so far this current financial year group profits are ahead despite a traditional poor first quarter.

All this points to further growth at the pre-tax level for the group in 1985, but whether this automatically translates into the net earnings level remains to be seen. Net earnings in 1984 were assisted by group relief payment received from Pergamon.

But while net earnings may be volitale there has been an improvement in the balance sheet—notably on the gearing front, possibly only 25 p.c. at Dec. 31, now that National Westminster Bank has removed the floating charge on the group's assets.

Given peace within the printing-publishing industry, British Printng could be headed for £42 million pre-tax in 1985 and £47 million in 1986.

The shares finally closed 5p higher at 197p yesterday, having wavered between 200p and 191p, and offer a prospective price-earnings ratio of 8·5, p.c. yield.

For income funds they are worth considering.

Weakness ahead for RTZ

TRUE to form, Rio Tinto-Zinc's share price lost ground on publication of 1984 figures. It fell 14p to 641p, having seen 637p, and if history is any guide there is further weakness ahead.

Not that there is any disappointment with 1984 results showing net attributable profits with 1984 results showing net attributable profits up from £172·5 million to £210·7 million, and not because of any doubts that 1985 will see a further advance on the earnings and dividend fronts.

But there are question marks as far as the business cycle is concerned, worrie that a weaker dollar will impact on reported sterling earnings and, while it should b a better year for precious metals, it may be no better than a pedestrian year for base metals.

One key area of growing importance to RTZ—oil and gas — should continue to flourish, and this year Enterprise Oil (29·9 p.c. interest) will be in for a full 12 months.

Investors with a longer-term horizon can thus sit tight. The group is on course for net attributable profits of £240 million this year, which would translate into net earnings in the 77·5p region, sufficient enough to support another dividend increase.

In a generally tough year for mining, group interests had mixed fortunes. Rossing Uranium, hit by tax, was down and from the Australian arm in CRA the contribution was £29·9 million against £40·9 million. South Africa, Borax, RTZ Pillar and Rio Algom were up, but overall the 9 p.c. return on shareholders' funds and the 16 p.c. return on operating assets has room for improvement.

Given its geographical and product spread, RTZ is hostage to a host of influences—but it is a survivor.

Market sentiment, as illustrated by yesterday's price weakness, is fickle and buyers are only expected in force when the £6 area looms. RTZ, which now sits on a prospective price-earnings ratio of 8·3, has yet to negotiate the traditional summer weakness.

RMC rates a solid hold

RMC GROUP is presenting a cautious front to the market. After increasing 1984 pre-tax profits from £71·6 million to £81·3 million the group has warned that the profits for the first six months of 1985 will be lower and says the outlook for the second half is difficult to predict.

That did not dent the stock market's confidence for long, however. After dipping 10p on the statement the shares rallied by the close to finish 8p higher at 366p, which suggests that analysts do not completely "buy" the company's attempts yesterday to talk down their 1985 profits estimates.

United ingdom operating profits last year expanded from £47 million to £54·7 million and the company has certainly seen a strong recovery in the United States where cement consumption grew by 15 p.c. Also, the French operation has now started to respond to heavy rationalisation following the acquisition of the majority shareholding in RWK France.

But West Germany had a mixed year with rising first-half volumes suddenly switching to dramatic second-half falls. That left the overall West German contribution £2·6 million nower, at £15·5 million.

A heavy rationalisation programme is already under way and could lead to above-the-line provisions of around £1 million at the 63 p.c. subsidiary Readymix AG. Profits from this company will surely be lower and will take most of the blame for RMC's expected first-half shortfall.

The company has implied that this downturn may not be fully clawed back by the second half despite an improving trend in France and the apparent likelihood of maintained UK profits.

The market appears to think the company is just being overcautious, and although the top end of estimates for 1985 of £90 million now look plain silly, the average expectation is still around £85 million.

That could well come down as the first half progresses and the present uncertainty is bound to throw a dampener on to the hare price over the short term.

Perhaps the safest course is to anticipate no more than unchanged profits which leaves the shares selling at eight times prospective earnings. That is a shade below the sector and backed up by a 5 p.c. yield the shares still rate as a solid long-term hold.

WE MAKE THE BIKE AVAILABLE TO BRITISH INDUSTRY.

The bike British companies need to get on is investment.

Because when you're looking for job orders, nothing helps you get them so much as the right, up-to-date plant and equipment.

That's where we come in.

Whatever your business, whatever your tax position, we have the asset finance products that will give you the capability you need.

Our leasing products reflect the benefit of capital allowances. Or, if you have taxable profits of your own, our instalment credit and lease purchase products will enable you to utilise them in the most efficient way.

But whatever your position, there is something you must do before we can begin to help you.

Call Jim Hastie now on 021-455 9221 or John McDermott on 01-920 0141. Tell them about your business, and they will get down to details.

Notice of Annual General Meeting

Notice is hereby given that the 171st Annual General Meeting of the Members of the Society will be held within the Head Office, 15 Dalkeith Road, Edinburgh, on Tuesday, the 7th day of May 1985 at 2.30 pm for the following purposes.

To consider the accounts and balance sheets for the year ended 31st December 1984 and the Reports of the Directors and Auditors.

To elect Directors.

To appoint Auditors.

To fix the remuneration of Directors.

To pass, if thought fit, the following Resolution recommended to the Members by the Directors:
'That the remuneration of the Auditors for the current year be fixed by the Directors of the Society.'

To consider and, if thought fit, pass the following Resolution which will be proposed as a Special Resolution:
'That the regulations of the Society be altered by the deletion of regulation 91 (Indemnity of officers, etc., of Society) thereof and the substitution therefor of a new regulation 91 as follows:
91. – (1) Every director, local director, chief executive, actuary, trustee, secretary or other officer or employee for the time being of the Society, and his executors, personal representatives and administrators, shall be entitled to be indemnified out of the funds of the Society against all actions, costs, charges, losses, liabilities, damages and expenses which he or his executors or personal representatives or administrators shall incur or sustain by reason or in consequence of anything done, concurred in, suffered or omitted by him in or about the execution or discharge of his duties (or supposed duties), or the exercise of his powers, in his office, trust or employment or otherwise in relation to or in connection with his duties, powers, office, trust or employment (including, without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, any liability incurred by him as such director, local director, chief executive, actuary, trustee, secretary or other officer or employee in defending any proceedings, civil or criminal, in which judgment or decree is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted or in connection with any application or proceedings in which he is relieved by the court, either wholly or partly, from his liability), except such actions, costs, charges, losses, liabilities, damages and expenses (if any) as he or his executors or personal representatives or administrators shall incur or sustain by or through his own wilful neglect or wilful default.

(2) No director, local director, chief executive, actuary, trustee, secretary of other officer or employee for the time being of the Society, or his executors or personal representatives or administrators, shall be liable or answerable for the acts, receipts, neglects or defaults of any other director, local director, chief executive, actuary, trustee, secretary or other officer or employee of the Society or of any auditor or law agent, or by reason of his having joined in any receipt for money not received by him personally: nor shall he be liable or answerable for any banker, broker, collector or other person with whom or into whose hands any property or moneys of the Society shall or may be lodged or deposited or come, or for the insufficiency or deficiency of the title to, or the depreciation in the value of, any security or investment or other property which may from time to time be acquired for or on behalf of the Society or for the insufficiency or deficiency of any investment or security in or upon which any of the funds of or belonging to the Society shall be placed or invested, or for any other loss, misfortune or damage whatsoever which may happen in the execution of his office, trust or employment or in relation thereto, unless the same shall happen by or through his own wilful neglect or wilful default.'

To transact any other ordinary business proper to an Annual General Meeting.

Forms of Proxy for the use of Members of the Society who are unable to be present at the Meeting, but who may wish to vote thereat, may be obtained on application to the undersigned. To be effective Proxies must reach the Society's Head Office not less than two clear working days before the time for holding the Meeting. A proxy need not be a member of the Society.

NOTE: A copy of the Report will be sent on request to any Member who would like to have one.

"Britain's most cost-efficient national building society for the third year running."

Mr. Ralph C Stow, CBE, President and Chairman, Cheltenham & Gloucester Building Society.

"The Society's impressive performance in 1984 demonstrates the soundness of its operating policies.
As the most cost-efficient national building society, C&G is able to offer more attractive savings schemes and more competitive loan facilities to a growing number of members."

The 134th Annual General Meeting of the Cheltenham & Gloucester Building Society was held in the Society's Chief Office on Wednesday 17 April 1985.

In his report on 1984's results, the President and Chairman, Mr. Ralph C Stow, CBE, drew attention to the following:

Most Cost-Efficient National Building Society
Higher productivity and effective management reduced operating costs (including depreciation) per £100 of mean total assets from 78p in 1983 to just 71p at the end of 1984.

Increased Financial Strength
A surplus of £23 million in 1984 increased C&G's reserves by 29% to £103 million.

Assets up to £2,639 million
At the end of 1984, total assets had increased by 29%. The Society now has a network of over 400 branches and agencies.

Substantial Help for Homebuyers
In 1984 C&G made over 44,000 loans totalling £730 million, 22% more than in 1983. 55% of loans were made to first time buyers, 14% were for the purchase of new houses. £39 million was lent to existing borrowing members for home improvements.

Investments
Receipts from investors totalled £1,892 million. Withdrawals totalled £1,343 million, giving net receipts of £549 million.
Over 148,000 new investment accounts were opened in 1984, bringing the total number of investors to over 657,000.

The Cheltenham Gold Account continues to provide a combination of high interest without strings, which is unmatched by any other national building society.

Extracts from the statement by the Chairman, Sir Ronald McIntosh KCB

The rationalisation programme announced in July 1984 has involved a fundamental examination of all our companies. Action has been taken to ensure that their overhead structure is properly matched to expected demand.

The programme involves non-recurring expenditure of £10 million. Some of this has already been incurred and although the programme will continue through 1985 and beyond, the relevant costs have been provided for, as an extraordinary item, in 1984. Reduction of overheads, when the programme is complete, will be of the order of £5 million.

Increased turnover in 1984 was evenly spread around the group. The decline in profit, however, was concentrated on a narrower range of companies mainly in the UK, South Africa and Australia. Most other group companies continued to do well.

High priority is being given to improving the quality and market relevance of the group's research and development. A unique process for cheddar cheese manufacture has been developed; the group's involvement in developing process plant for new biological products has increased; the improved ACCOS automation system has proved acceptable for controlling a much wider range of processes.

The group entered 1985 with a larger order book than it had at the beginning of 1984 and the order intake in the first quarter of 1985 remains encouraging. The benefits of the rationalisation programme and the stricter controls now in operation during the engineering and commissioning stages of large contracts should be increasingly felt in 1985 and 1986.

The AGM will be held on Wednesday 22 May 1985 at the Institute of Directors, 116 Pall Mall, London SW1.

Copies of the report and accounts will be available after Wednesday 24 April 1985 from the Secretary.

The above figures are extracted from the full historical cost accounts of the group for the year ended 31 December 1984 on which the auditors have given an unqualified opinion. The full accounts will be filed with the Registrar of Companies after the Annual General Meeting.

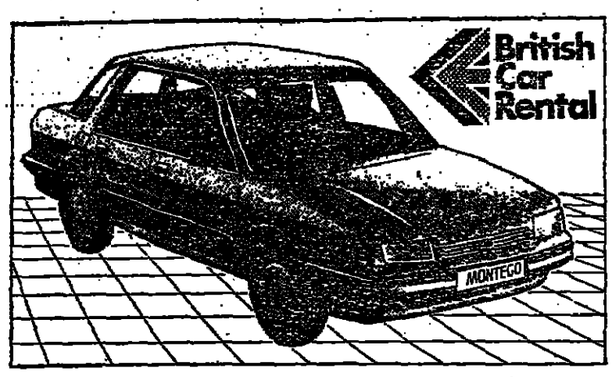
AUSTIN ROVER

REGIONAL RENTAL MANAGERS



Austin Rover are expanding their interest and investment in British Car Rental — Britain's fastest growing vehicle hire specialist.

We have already opened 120 offices as part of a Nationwide development programme — and we're not stopping there.

Exciting plans are already underway to rapidly increase our fleet business and this has created a number of career openings throughout the UK for ambitious professionals.

As Regional Rental Manager you will identify suitable prospective British Car Rental outlets within a specific territory and liaise closely with the appointed dealership to maximise that potential.

This will involve monitoring the self drive hire needs of fleet users, and developing effective promotions and co-operative advertising campaigns.

You will also act in a consultancy capacity to ensure individual dealers are operating in-line with British Car Rental objectives.

With at least two years experience in the self drive car industry, your practical knowledge will be complemented by an appropriate business qualification and a sound grasp of management accounts. Experience of selling self drive hire in the fleet market would be advantageous.

If you are interested in broadening your horizons please write, in confidence, with a full c.v. including current salary to:

Sales Executive
Cable Accessories — c. £10,000

Our Client is a highly successful manufacturer of top quality electrical accessories. They have a reputation for excellence and a customer list that is both wide and growing. As part of their expansion plans, a new product range is being launched for which there is considerable demand.

This is an outstanding opportunity for a self-motivated ambitious individual with a strong technical sales background to develop a new career, and market from scratch.

Ideally, candidates will be based in the Midlands area and must have the ability to create and foster high volume business with OEM's throughout the UK. Experience of selling to the appliance market, together with the ability to discuss technical matters are essential pre-requisites. You should have an Electrical Engineering Qualification (preferably ONC) and a knowledge of approvals in the electrical industry.

DIRECTOR AND GENERAL MANAGER

Rapidly Expanding High Technology Business — £30-35,000 pa

The company is at the leading edge of technology in its market, with about two hundred employees. It has a multidisciplined team with a high degree of expertise in robotics, electronics, fibre optics and computer software. Until recently it was essentially a design house. Turnover more than doubled over the period 1983 to 1984. It is an exciting environment with a young dedicated team.

Your task would be to establish an expanding business enterprise with a base load of repeatable designs; to integrate individual technologies; introduce business systems for the co-ordination of the sales, technical and specialist manufacturing units; to tighten the control of manufacturing projects, and prepare for regular batch production. In essence this job is to forge a really sound business from an excellent technical base.

You need to have run successfully a batch manufacturing unit in a related industry and be a general manager at heart. You must thrive on total commitment to a job and be willing to work long erratic hours (in a delightful rural environment). Age 30's to early 40's.

Please write giving full career details to me, Geoffrey Hunt, Consultant to the company. Your name will not be released until we have briefed you and you have given your consent.

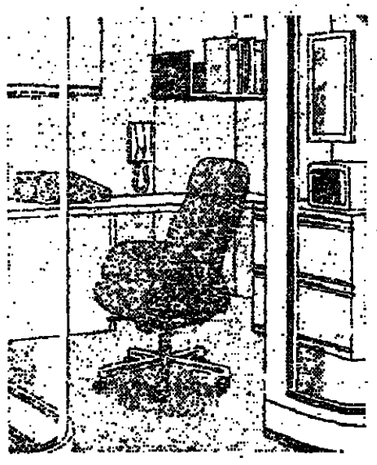
Creating and selling the right office environment is our business it could be yours

Bristow Design Systems believe that the modern office must provide the right working environment to make the best use of individual skills. As well as being distributors for Steelcase Strafor, the world leaders in office furniture, they also bring style, innovation and adaptability to office environments with an integrated design approach to systems furniture.

A vigorous young company with a deep understanding of this rapidly expanding market, they are beating their own targets daily. As part of their plan for substantial growth, they are now looking for dynamic, experienced sales professionals and consultants to cover the West End and Central London.



SALES CONSULTANTS
On target earnings c.£25,000

You'll be allocated a specialist sector, advising and selling at the highest level to major accounts in Central London. You'll sell complete, specifically designed office environments, dealing with space management and pulling in experts as required for accoustics, electronics and other specialist subjects.

Sales experience in a related field would be an advantage but more important are good communication skills, enthusiasm, flexibility and motivation. On target performers in this quality office furniture market can expect on-target earnings around c.£25,000. There is no upper limit and substantially higher rewards await the energetic and ambitious performers.

SALES PROFESSIONALS
On target earnings c.£20,000

Operating entirely within Central London, you'll be selling stylish Steelcase Strafor furniture, from executive desks, tables and storage, to ergonomically designed chairs, in a wide range of attractive finishes. If you have had a structured sales-training with a major company and you're aged between 19 and 25 with a growing reputation in Sales (preferably gained in a related business sector), you will find your contribution quickly recognised with this fast moving company. Earnings in your first year will be around £20,000, but you could earn considerably more in the booming market.

Bristow Design Systems have the confidence, financial resources and world-beating products to be a dominant force in their market. For further information ring Philip Johnson, as consultant for the company, on 01-631 4411 or write with a CV to Moxon, Dolphin & Kerby Limited, 178-202 Great Portland Street, London W1N 5TB, quoting reference no. 2544.

DESIGN ENGINEERS

Huntleigh Technology is one of Europe's leading companies in the design and manufacture of precision load cells for the weighing industry.

The company has grown steadily over the past six years and we have recently opened a new 25,000 sq. ft. factory built with volume flow line production and advanced automation capabilities.

The company is investing heavily in design, development and capital equipment, so we are now looking for additional design engineers to join our existing team.

Candidates should be of degree level or equivalent, with design experience in one or more of the following:

★ Weighing System
★ Strain-gauge technology
★ Large scale electro-mechanical test equipment
★ Any computer knowledge would be an advantage

A good salary and benefits package is offered, which will reflect the importance of these positions. Also, relocation expenses will be considered.

Sales Training Manager
c. £16,000+car

Our client is the leader in its field of instalment credit finance within its specialised market sector and is a subsidiary of one of the major banks.

As a result of continuing growth, both in the scope of its business and the volume of its sales, it now seeks to appoint a Sales Training Manager.

The principal role is to upgrade the sales skills and presentation/negotiating abilities of its sales force of field executives and internal sales staff, although additionally the training of dealer sales forces who act as a source of business is part of the job responsibility.

It is expected that qualified individuals will have already demonstrated their training ability in a service industry and will possess well above average presentation and teaching skills. We would also expect to see in the candidate's background a successful period in a field sales environment.

In addition to the salary and car the job, which is located just North of London, carries an attractive package of fringe benefits plus a generous relocation scheme.

Applicants of either sex, preferably in the age range 28-40, should apply in confidence to Hugh Dixon on (0962) 53319 (24 hour service) or write to Johnson Wilson & Partners, Clarendon House, Hyde Street, Winchester, Hampshire SO23 7DX, quoting ref. 589.

HAVE YOU BEEN WAITING FOR A CAREER OPPORTUNITY IN A LEADING SPACE AGE TECHNOLOGY? IT'S IN CANADA AT PRATT & WHITNEY.

PRATT & WHITNEY is associated with advanced, fuel-efficient and newest gas turbine engines on the market. It takes the commitment of highly skilled professionals to give a company the kind of reputation for excellence that Pratt & Whitney has world-wide. You will be working with some of the world's best gas turbine specialists. Join the Pratt & Whitney team!

We are searching for highly qualified and motivated engineers possessing a minimum of five (5) years of related experience, to work in Longueuil, Québec, near Montréal (where our new R&D Centre, manufacturing and head office facilities are based) and at our new engineering office and plant in Mississauga, near Toronto, Ontario.

DESCRIPTION OF POSITIONS:

ENGINE MECHANICAL DESIGNERS
We are seeking several experienced mechanical designers capable of creating reliable and novel compressor, turbine or gearbox designs and for performing preliminary stress analysis directed at minimising cost and weight.

Candidates must have a good understanding of associated disciplines, such as aerodynamics, materials. They will preferably also have practical test experience. An added asset would be familiarity with computer aided design. They will also be capable of directing the activities of a number of more junior designers and draftsmen. REF: 85-1

ELECTRONIC CONTROL SYSTEM DEVELOPMENT ENGINEERS
Selected candidates will be involved in the development of electronic fuel control systems and will have the ability to work with customers and suppliers at all levels. Five years minimum experience required in electronic and/or hydro mechanical gas turbine control system development. REF: 85-2

AERODYNAMIC ENGINEERS
Successful candidates will be involved in analytical and/or experimental research/design and development work on aerodynamic components, intakes, compressors, combustors, turbines, exhaust ducts and aircraft installations. Senior applicants must be capable of working independently, using creativity and judgement in collaboration with other specialists to develop successful engine concepts. REF: 85-3

MECHANICAL ANALYSIS ENGINEERS
Responsibilities will involve the application of appropriate analytical methods including advanced finite element analysis, the definition and interpretation of structural test programs and due coordination of this work with other departments such as Design, Test, etc. Applicants should also be capable of assuming responsibility for an area of relevant technology improvement involving the formulation and calibration of advanced design prediction systems. They will be capable of directing the work of a number of more junior engineers and technicians. REF: 85-4

PRELIMINARY DESIGNERS
Mechanical designers with wide experience in aircraft gas turbines to prepare new engine designs. The selected candidates will work as part of a team of experienced engineers to produce preliminary layouts and installation drawings. REF: 85-5

METALLURGISTS
Experienced in the selection of gas turbine component materials and processes for the support to the various specialist departments during engine development. REF: 85-6

PROJECT/DEVELOPMENT ENGINEERS
The design/development and testing of Pratt & Whitney engines is coordinated and technically supervised by the Project Engineering Group. This requires talented engineers with the special qualities of innovation, organization and the ability to deal with personnel and/or customers at all levels. A successful candidate will be a dynamic qualified engineer with at least eight (8) years of related experience who will enjoy the complementary reward of growing with an engine project from conception through to certification. REF: 85-7

PERFORMANCE ENGINEERS
Candidates should be well qualified gas turbine performance engineers. Responsibilities will include project studies related to engine performance development, preparation of engine performance models, specification of engine and related systems, test requirements and analysis of bench and flight test data. REF: 85-8.

ENGINE AND COMPONENT DEVELOPMENT TEST ENGINEERS
To plan, coordinate and supervise all experimental activities involved in the building and testing of turboprop, turboshaft and turbofan development engines. This responsibility includes the development and research of compressors, turbines and combustors as well as structural and vibratory stress testing of gas turbine components. The work involves close collaboration with all other engineering departments. REF: 85-9

DESIGN AND COMMISSIONING ENGINEERS
To implement and direct the design, procurement and commissioning of specialized experimental test cells and rigs to satisfy gas turbine development programmes. REF: 85-10

TEST CELL/RIG DESIGNERS
To do layout and design of gas turbine test cells, test rigs and associated equipment. REF: 85-11

INSTRUMENT AND ELECTRONIC DESIGN ENGINEERS
Engineers are required for the design and development of measurement and control systems for engine and component development facilities. We require specialists in the areas of electronics systems design (analogue and or digital) instrumentation installations and calibration standards. Selected candidates will be involved in the development of new measurement techniques and data handling through computer based analysers and associated recording systems. REF: 85-12

CANADA: only a short flight away

If you are a qualified ENGINEER WITH A DEGREE OR THE TECHNICAL EQUIVALENCE in the appropriate discipline, here is your opportunity to make the future work for you by helping us meet the ever increasing demands for Pratt & Whitney Canada turboprop, turboshaft and turbofan engines. We encourage applications from older experienced candidates.

Office Furniture Contracts — to £20k + car

With your experience of the design and fitting out of interiors, and with your excellent track record in selling high value installations to architects, designers, specifiers and end users, it's about time you took advantage of one of the best career opportunities around.

Our client—a highly successful subsidiary of one of the fastest-growing groups in the UK—specialises in the manufacture and supply of high quality furniture for all types of office and residential establishment. A far-reaching programme of investment and major product development heralds an exciting future—and has created the need for additional high-fliers for Greater London and The Midlands (also including Bristol, Avon and South Wales).

You'll be identifying new business potential, gaining commitment from customers, then seeing projects through to completion. You'll have the best back-up and support available.

Contracts will range from £20k to £500k in value—so these are vitally important roles. As such, they call for performance-orientated professionals (male or female) aged around 25-35, who have received formal capital equipment sales training, who can demonstrate the ability to plan and implement sales strategy, and —above all—who can achieve results.

In return, you'll receive a high basic salary enhanced by a valuable commission scheme, together with a 1.6 GL car, all expenses, and a range of large group benefits.

Interested? Then send a full cv to the Confidential Reply Service, Ref. ABM 876, Austin Knight Advertising UK Limited, Tricorn House, 51-53 Hagley Road, Edgbaston, Birmingham B16 8TE.

Applications are forwarded to the client concerned, therefore companies in which you are not interested should be listed in a covering letter to the Confidential Reply Supervisor.

Oil and Gas Process Plant Engineering

– with a difference!

The difference is that having been a family company, in Berkshire, for nearly 200 years, our client still regards staff as people and respects them accordingly.

Nothing else is old fashioned though, as their recent 7-figure capital investment programme proves! New CNC machine tools and a main-frame computer providing 3D CAD with fully integrated support systems will maintain the company's position – as a leading supplier of custom designed packages and equipment to the world's oil and gas producers.

The next stage of their planned expansion requires people with relevant qualifications and experience for the following opportunities:

Proposals Engineers:
range £9-£13,000

Enjoy greater job satisfaction as a member of one of the company's "sales teams". Proposals Engineers play an integral role in bid preparation with liaison between suppliers, colleagues and customers a key feature. Some international travel is likely, and the proposals department utilises full W.P. system facilities linked to the main computer. Ref: CO1.

Commissioning Engineer:
(Water Treatment Equipment)
range £10-12,000

Commissioning Engineers are concerned with projects from design to manufacturing stages, through functional tests which may be in-house or at sub-vendors to site commissioning and client acceptance. This includes preparation of operating manuals and setting up maintenance procedures. Ref: CO2.

Process Engineer:
(Water Treatment)
range £11-14,000

Background will include familiarity with design and operation of water treatment unit processes, enabling you to specify a full range of equipment for packaged systems for use in oil production operations. Able to work independently under pressure as part of a small team providing a broad range of support services to various company departments. This requires an outgoing personality able to generate credibility, both within and outside the company, as well as concise, accurate calculations and technical prose. Ref: CO3.

Indicated salaries are genuinely negotiable depending on experience and qualifications etc. The company also offers a complete and attractive fringe benefits package which includes full relocation assistance if necessary.

For further information and an application form, telephone or write quoting the appropriate reference to the retained advisors who will conduct all initial interviews and ensure your complete confidence.

AUSTIN ROVER

Specification Systems Management

Austin Rover's new cars embody some of the most sophisticated technology in the motor industry. Producing these cars involves the design, development and use of thousands of component parts. The systems used to define the products, monitor supply, demand and consumption of all of these items are highly complex. These systems—computer aided design and manufacture, and the information systems of product design, production control, finance, purchasing, etc.—each needs a subset of the total product specification data.
To meet the challenge of integrating these systems we are looking for specialists to work in our Product Engineering and Production Control departments who are either:

BUSINESS ANALYSTS
- ☐ To define and develop the next generation of specification information systems or

OPERATIONS PERSONNEL
- ☐ To manage the new systems to give control within the design and manufacturing activities.

Successful applicants must have
- ☐ Systems analysis experience
- ☐ Good presentation skills
- ☐ Degree level abilities.

In addition, experience of the motor vehicle and components industry would be an advantage as would knowledge of prototype design and release of complex products (especially structured and/or coded Bills of Material).

Information Systems Analysts

Excellent Salary + Car
London Based

Our Client, a major international company using complex manufacturing methods and producing a wide range of technologically advanced products, has an enviable record of profitable growth. It is now expanding its Information Systems in Europe and is looking to appoint two Senior Analysts for its London offices.

Ideally applicants (aged 25-35) from a manufacturing or sales background, should be educated to degree level with good communication and presentation skills. Both positions require 2-3 years' experience of on-line environments and will involve the Analysts in the implementation of new systems and procedures as well as analysis and user contact. Wang/IBM or similar knowledge would be advantageous but is not essential.

Despite the similarities of the two positions one is more oriented towards O&M whilst the other carries responsibility for DP operations and programming. The former vacancy will also involve a fair amount of overseas travel. It is envisaged that candidates with the appropriate experience might be considered for either appointment.

Our Client will offer an excellent salary to the right candidates as well as the kind of benefits package and promotional prospects expected of a large and successful organisation.

Please write in the first instance with a detailed c.v. to The Confidential Reply Manager, T. G. Scott & Son Ltd., (ref: 837), 30-32 Southampton Street, London WC2E 7HR. Applications will be forwarded to our Client who is dealing with the position direct, therefore any company you do not wish to receive your letter should be listed separately.

Projects Manager

ADVANCED R&D TECHNOLOGY

A challenging career opportunity awaits a well qualified engineer/physicist with entrepreneurial instincts, to spearhead a rapidly growing R&D team investigating new areas of technology. The company's activities encompass a wide range of equipments for defence and commercial applications including specialised containers and packaging for adverse environmental conditions worldwide.

The position calls for a unique combination of academic achievement, engineering application and commercial awareness and the successful candidate will certainly possess a good degree and probably a PhD or MSc in an engineering or applied physics discipline. Your skills in establishing effective liaison with outside organisations will be linked to wide-ranging interests across the higher sciences. Knowledge of either materials science, fluid control, robotics or computing will have been achieved from a sound basis in mechanical engineering. Your experience of feasibility studies, implementation of experimental programmes, CPA etc., will provide the techniques for the successful initiation, planning and technical and financial control of important projects.

This new key role with an established and dynamic British group offers an exciting career challenge with very real prospects of future promotion. An attractive salary and benefits package commensurate with your qualifications and achievements will reflect our client's high regard for your ability.

For a confidential discussion of your background in relation to this appointment call MAUREEN HOBBS on (0494) 25128 or write in confidence to her at the address below quoting reference 1170.

Divisional Director-Contract Engineering

Cheshire
c.£17,000 + car

Our client is a successful, well-established company specialising in the manufacture of high-quality engineering products to customers' own exacting specifications. A recent reorganisation has created this new post of Divisional Director of the Contract Engineering Division. The Division employs approximately 75 people and has extensive machining and fabricating facilities. The work carried out is to the highest engineering standards and quality assurance is monitored at all stages. The new Divisional Director will have overall responsibility for the growth and profitability of this operation, ensuring that customers continue to receive the high level of service needed to satisfy demanding contract engineering projects. Candidates should be aged up to 45, be experienced Production/Mechanical Engineering Managers with a sound practical knowledge of modern workshop practice, and educated to at least HNC standard. This strong engineering background should be complemented by the ability to manage people effectively and gain the confidence of customers and senior colleagues.
If you have a successful record in a similar production engineering environment, and feel ready to fill this Board-level position, please send full career details, including current salary, or apply for an application form to Alan Gibbons, Ref: GM79/9281/DT, PA Personnel Services, 73-79 King Street, Manchester M2 2JL. Purchasing and Manufacturing Manager

Stalybridge

Distillers CO_2
The world's most versatile gas

The Distillers Company (Carbon Dioxide) Limited is Europe's largest specialist supplier of carbon dioxide and its associated engineering products. The Cellar Equipment Department provides a wide range of drinks-dispensing equipment including meters, pumps and other light engineering products.
An experienced manager is required to handle the purchasing of the equipment and components which are manufactured to company specifications by outside suppliers, and to control the assembly and manufacture of equipment in a small company workshop at Stalybridge.
Ideally, the successful candidate will be experienced in the purchase and manufacture of mechanical and electronics components and equipment. He or she should also be a graduate with a sound knowledge of mechanical engineering and electronics, and have at least eight years' post-graduate experience in materials resourcing, workshop management, quality control, and the control of transport, stock and production. Membership of a professional institute would be an advantage.

This important company offers excellent terms and prospects for competent applicants. Applications to the Personnel Manager, The Distillers Company (Carbon Dioxide) Ltd, Cedar House, 39 London Road, Reigate, Surrey RH2 9QE. Tel: Reigate 41133.

Commercial Sales Manager

c.£15,000 + car + benefits

Aberdeen and District Milk Marketing Board is responsible for the marketing and sale of milk and milk products from producers to first buyers, as well as for providing a range of transport and support services to registered producers.
As the Board develops its milk-related products — milk powders, butters, anhydrous milk fats, UHT products — it has become increasing aware of the need to identify and penetrate new markets and outlets for these product groups. The responsibility for this is now to be vested in a Commercial Sales Manager who will report directly to the Managing Director.
Ideally qualified to degree level, you should have considerable experience in the marketing function — ideally in the food or consumer goods industries — where input to strategy and implementation has been part of your responsibility. The preferred age range will be 30 to 40 — to allow for sufficient experience to have been built up and to enable the person appointed to take advantage of the career progression opportunities the post offers.
Salary will be around £15,000. A car will be provided and comprehensive relocation assistance to the Aberdeen area will be one of the support benefits available.

Telephone or write for an application form, or send detailed cv, in confidence, to R J Cleland, Ref: SM88/9265/DT, PA Personnel Services, Fitzpatrick House, 14/18 Cadogan Street, Glasgow G2 6QP. Telephone: 041-221 3954.

Sales Administrators

c.£10,000-£11,000

WANG
The Office Automation Computer People

Expansion at Wang (UK), the market leader in office automation, has created three vacancies at our offices in Isleworth and the City.
As a Sales Administrator with responsibility for co-ordinating customer orders from acceptance through to delivery, you will make a significant contribution to Wang's sales success in providing vital back-up support to the sales force. As the primary interface between head office, sales and administration, you must ensure the highest levels of customer satisfaction are achieved. In addition, by applying tight control to order processing, you will have a direct influence on company revenues and profits.
In your mid-20s and educated to 'A' level standard, you should preferably have a track record in sales administration in a fast-moving industry, ideally with a computer company, and with experience of using a computerised order-processing system. Numeracy and communication skills are essential and you must be prepared to work on your own initiative. Prospects within Wang are excellent.
In addition to the negotiable salary, benefits include pension, life assurance, private health and share-purchase schemes.

Please send full career details to Clare Taylor, Wang (UK) Limited, Wang House, 661 London Road, Isleworth, Middlesex TW7 4EH. Or telephone 01-847 1954 (24-hour answering service) for an application form.

Senior Sales Engineer

Maintenance services
Saudi Arabia
£23,000-£27,000 (tax-free) + benefits

Honeywell Turki Arabia Ltd.

Honeywell Turki Arabia Ltd is a joint-venture company specialising in air-conditioning controls, fire alarm and security installations, and computerised building-management systems for the Saudi Arabian market. The company's preventive maintenance schemes constitute a most attractive and saleable proposition for building owners and managers interested in cutting costs while maintaining the highest level of performance for their HVAC plants.
Enthusiastic, business-oriented sales professionals with a technical background in HVAC controls and building automation systems will find this opportunity a highly rewarding sales challenge. Dealing with property owners, managers and agents at the highest levels, you will develop your own leads, introduce maintenance services to prospective customers, discuss the potential upgrading of existing control systems, and present creative financial packages.
The attractive overseas compensation package comprises an above-average range of Saudi benefits including 50 calendar days' paid UK leave with multiple air-fares, free furnished accommodation, and company car. The contract is offered on a 2-year, bachelor-status basis, with further extension and married status a possibility for a high performer.
Initial interviews will be conducted in the UK.
Candidates, preferably in the 26-35 age range, should send cv or telephone for an application form to Eileen Williams, Personnel Officer, c/o Honeywell Control Systems Limited, Charles Square, Bracknell, Berkshire RG12 1EB. Tel: 0344 424555.

Group Technical Manager

Surrey
c.£17,000 + car

Gomshall AND ASSOCIATED TANNERIES

The Gomshall Tanneries group are the leading supplier of high-quality leathers to the garment industry, from their four tanneries in the UK and New Zealand.
Due to a recent promotion, they now wish to recruit a Group Technical Manager to head the development laboratory and experimental unit. The job holder will be responsible for the development, implementation and control of all technical processes in the group.
The successful candidate will have a degree in chemistry, biochemistry or a directly-related area, plus a successful track record in managing the development function in a relevant industry.
Experience need not be in tanning but, if not, should be in a related technology such as textiles, chemicals, dyestuffs or food.
This is a key management position, so experience in managing technical staff and a cost-conscious attitude are necessary.
The job is located in a pleasant part of Surrey, and the package includes a car and the usual benefits plus a generous relocation allowance if appropriate.

Safety Engineer

Aberdeen

TOTAL

The development phase of Total's Alwyn North field is now underway, with the first offshore activity planned for later this year and oil production expected in late 1987. In preparation for this exciting new project, comprising a 2-platform structure, we now wish to appoint a Safety Engineer.
Based in Aberdeen, you will assist the Senior Safety Engineer with all aspects of Alwyn North safety, with the main objective being the planning and implementation of an effective loss-control programme. This will involve advising personnel on the requirements and interpretation of offshore legislation and current industry standards and practices as well as introducing procedures in accordance with the company Health and Safety policy. The preparation of emergency plans and subsequent implementation will form part of your responsibility and it will also be your task to define and develop safety training requirements.
Aged in your late 20s/early 30s, you will be a science or engineering graduate with occ. health/hygiene qualifications, IOSH membership, and a background in safety/loss prevention including some experience gained in the offshore/process industry. Candidates should demonstrate a thorough working knowledge of loss prevention techniques and have a practical understanding of safety auditing, inspection reporting, and hygiene monitoring. Occasional offshore visits will be required.
This is an excellent opportunity to join a large oil and gas operator at the start of a major new development. A very competitive index-linked salary is offered together with generous year-end bonus. BUPA membership, comprehensive pension and life assurance schemes and a subsidised staff restaurant. Generous relocation assistance is also available if required.

Commercial careers with Shell Expro

Shell

Shell UK Exploration and Production is one of the principal operators in the North Sea oil and gas industry.
Contractual agreements covering our North Sea activities are complex and involve substantial sums. Contract Analysts advise on the legal and financial implications of these contracts and also provide technical departments with guidance on formulating contracts, inviting and assessing tenders, negotiating contracts, and associated administration.
The posts carry considerable responsibility for assisting sponsor departments in achieving contract effectiveness.
Consequently, applicants should be graduates in business studies, law, accountancy, economics (including land and buildings) with a relevant professional qualification. The preferred age group will be 25-35 with at least 2-3 years' commercial/contracts experience.
Individuals should dislay a high degree of professionalism in carrying out their responsibilities, and an ability to communicate effectively with senior technical personnel is essential.
The salaries offered will be commensurate with qualifications and experience and opportunities exist for career progression. Benefits include generous assistance with relocation to the Aberdeen area.

Please write for an application form to: Recruitment and Development Adviser (UEPA/115), Shell UK Exploration & Production, 1 Altens Farm Road, Nigg, Aberdeen AB9 2HY.

Overseas Personnel Administrator

London-based
c.£13,000

Our client ranks among the world leaders in the dissemination of financial information on a real-time basis throughout the developed nations.
A newly-sited international office in London controls a worldwide marketing operation, and the sustained growth of the venture necessitates the appointment of an able and enthusiastic personnel administrator to take on the detailed and ongoing responsibilities of sustaining a rapidly expanding, expatriate management team spread over 30 countries.
We would see this as an ideal opportunity for executives, in their mid to late 40s, with personnel-related experience and an appreciation of the widely varying terms and conditions of employment abroad, to embark upon a second career in a dynamic growth sector of world trade.
A salary of around £13,000 is envisaged.

Please send full cv, in confidence, to P A B Wemyss, Ref: AA25/9280/DT, PA Personnel Services, Hyde Park House, 60a Knightsbridge, London SW1X 7LE.

Technical Graduates

attractive package + prospects

3M

3M is one of the world's most successful and diverse companies, with thousands of different product lines spanning a wide range of markets.
Our major manufacturing locations at Swansea, Atherstone and Aycliffe produce a wide range of high-technology products for the European markets, and significant capital investment programmes are being implemented to advance our technology and our production capacities, particularly for video and electronics products.
We are looking for Technical Graduates in an engineering, science or applied science discipline to work as Process Engineers with responsibility for process development, raw material evaluation, waste reduction, improving machine performance and utilisation and productivity improvements. Specific experience is not required as training will be given in our product and process technology, but suitable candidates are likely to have 1-5 years' experience in an industrial environment, and have the maturity to contribute quickly.
The company offers excellent opportunities for personal growth, and these manufacturing-based positions provide suitable experience for progression into either production or technical management.
Salaries and benefits will be commensurate with those expected of a major international company, and relocation assistance is available if appropriate.
Please reply in the first instance, to: Mr K B Jackson, Employee Relations Manager, 3M United Kingdom PLC, 3M House, PO Box 1, Bracknell, Berkshire RG12 1JU.

Ambitious Young Engineers

— crucial product development and sales support roles

THORN EMI Electronics
Simtec Division

THORN EMI Electronics — Simtec Division has achieved rapid growth in recent years, meeting the increasingly discerning needs of a varied and complex customer base. Our market-leading products include computer-based simulation equipment, state-of-the-art display products and highly specialised detection products which are sold throughout the world. And we are committed to achieving even greater levels of growth and profitability through aggressive marketing and creative new-product development policies.
We need ambitious young engineering professionals ready to move away from the detailed design functions into the commercial arena. Working in a small team at the forward edge of technology, you will be converting ideas and market opportunities into commercially viable products and applications. You will be the link between marketing and sales, engineering and the customer.
You will ideally be an engineering, physics or computing-discipline graduate. Agile, logical, but lateral thinking must be coupled with technical writing skills and the ability to present your ideas clearly, confidently, and persuasively.
This is an excellent opportunity for the right individuals to gain valuable experience in a growth-industry company — a company where enthusiasm comes from the top and where achievement is rewarded. We offer an attractive negotiable salary and benefits package. Relocation expenses will be provided where necessary.

Please send written details and cv, or telephone for further information to: Harry Gilfillan, THORN EMI Electronics — Simtec Division, Sellers Wood Drive, Bulwell, Nottingham NG6 8UX. Tel: 0602 273741.

SONICS PROCESSING

If you have experience in sonics processing, sound out the future with GEC Avionics. GEC Avionics is developing the next generation of airborne acoustic processors as part of the advanced real-time mission systems being built into the EH101 helicopter to replace the Royal Navy's Sea Kings by the 1990's.
At GEC Avionics there's a challenging present and a far-reaching future. A healthy, growing company, it needs innovative, professional engineers at all levels and in a variety of disciplines. We would like to talk informally and frankly about the prospects we offer at our location in Kent, particularly to those interested in the following positions:

Systems Design and Integration Engineers with sonic or similar systems experience.

Real Time Software Designers and Programmers preferably with knowledge of CORAL 66.

Test Software Engineers
with an appreciation of test techniques and hardware.

Firmware and Hardware Designers with signal processing and state-of-the-art hardware experience.

For senior posts, signal processing experience would be an advantage.
There are attractive salaries, comprehensive benefits, relocation package and training which ensures that however advanced our project, you won't be out of your depth.
Call in and meet us (see panel for details) or if you can't make it but would like to know more, contact Peter Bowyer, GEC Avionics Limited, FREEPOST, Rochester, Kent ME1 2BR.

Contract Hire

HAY-MSL MANAGEMENT SELECTION

Sales Development

SOUTH EAST: £15,000 OR MORE

Contract hire is a rapidly growing industry and represents a leading sector of the car market. By the 1990's it will account for about one million units in the UK. One of the most successful companies in this field is seeking a top flight professional sales executive to help implement its ambitious plans to double in size by 1987. This opportunity could offer the chance of career progression beyond franchise based car sales.

The successful candidate must have an impressive record in sales, most likely in the motor industry and possibly in fleet sales, finance or contract hire. Initiative, drive and commitment will be necessary to negotiate the contract hire of substantial fleets with the senior management of client organisations.

Salary plus bonus up to £15,000, if not more. Company car provided.

Mercury is installing one of the most advanced telecommunications networks in the UK and is expanding rapidly.

We provide customers with the latest digital communications equipment, and link from their sites to our trunk network with microwave or fibre optic cable.

For the implementation of our City of London cable network we require a Project Engineer who, reporting to a Project Manager, will be responsible for the planning, co-ordination, cost control and implementation of this work.

You should have HNC or equivalent, experience of cable and duct installation in a city environment, and at least five years' experience in a project engineering role.

Please send a CV or telephone for an application form to: Catherine Miller, Personnel Officer, Mercury Communications Ltd., Ninety Long Acre, London WC2E 9NP. Tel: 01-836 2449.

Technical Manager – Spray Painting Equipment

KREMLIN

WEST OF LONDON: NEGOTIABLE 5-FIGURE SALARY & CAR

Kremlin Spray Painting Equipment is the UK Sales and Service subsidiary of Europe's leading spray equipment manufacturer. We now seek a top-quality Technical Manager capable of taking charge of all technical aspects of our activities – with particular emphasis on equipment specification, sales support and the efficient resolution of customers' problems. This important, challenging post offers the opportunity to make a significant personal contribution within an enthusiastic team.

Probably aged 30 to 45, you should possess proven practical experience in spray painting equipment, automatic systems and spray booths. A willingness to provide "hands on" help as required plus good leadership and communications skills are essential.

A negotiable 5-figure salary will be offered to reflect ability and experience. Generous benefits include company car, 22 days' holiday and relocation assistance, where appropriate.

Please write with a detailed CV to Mike Eaton, Managing Director, Kremlin Spray Painting Equipment Ltd., 839 Yeovil Road, Slough, Berks SL1 4JA.

Market Development

M&B May & Baker

UK BASED

a regional marketing & technical role

. . . with one of the world's leading pharmaceutical companies

May & Baker Ltd., is an international company within the French Rhône-Poulenc Group, and has branches and subsidiary or associated companies in 17 countries. With overseas sales forming a significant part of our business, an effective overseas marketing and technical service to companies and branches is critical to achieve group sales and profit targets.

Working closely with the Overseas Marketing Managers – as part of a regional team – you will be actively involved in the initiation and development of business plans, marketing budgets, strategies and tactics to act as the focal point for medical marketing expertise and knowledge. The identification and evaluation of business development opportunities is a key element of the role.

It is expected that you will need to visit the territory at least twice a year in a role requiring a high degree of initiative, self-motivation and liaison across a whole range of functions.

At present the team covers all the following areas: Australia, New Zealand, S.E. Asia, Eire, Africa, India, Pakistan and Bangladesh. An appropriate "zone" will be agreed upon appointment to reflect experience, ability and interest.

Probably in your 30's – with a life sciences degree – you should ideally have relevant experience in a sales/marketing environment, in an international pharmaceutical company. Preferably this will have involved residential experience or working knowledge of overseas marketing. First class analytical and interpersonal skills are essential together with sound commercial acumen.

This is a challenging career development opportunity for which we offer an attractive salary, dependent on ability and experience, and the benefits associated with a major international company.

Please write or telephone for an application form, quoting ref. M/2734R to Gladys Carter, Senior Personnel Officer, May & Baker Ltd., Dagenham, Essex RM10 7XS. Tel: 01-592 3060, ext. 2980.

Technical and Services Director

"An influential role in a major automotive business"

With sales valued in excess of £300 million and a record market share in March this is an excellent opportunity to assume an influential role in the Volvo success story.

A major element behind the realisation of our business plan, is undoubtedly the way in which we've organised our business development strategy into regional cells. Each built around the concentration of marketing and management talent needed to push our strategy through a tough market.

We're now looking for a manager with a rather uncommon blend of charisma and industry knowledge to take executive authority over one such region which accounts for 20% of our total business.

What makes this role particularly challenging is the fact that the main thrust of your activities will be directed through independent dealership operations. This will involve such features as the management of profitability, keeping motivation levels high and generally evolving the innovative ideas without which no strategy truly excels.

Aged 30+, you're already broadly familiar with the workings of the automotive industry. However, the more detailed your knowledge of automotive retailing, particularly if it is from a sales or marketing perspective, the easier will be the transition.

In the first instance, please forward comprehensive personal and career details to Richard Brewer, Personnel Director. Alternatively, for more information call Sally Cockbaine on (0494) 33444. Volvo Concessionaires Ltd., Lancaster Road, High Wycombe, Bucks. HP12 3QE.

NATIONAL OIL CORPORATION

TRIPOLI – LIBYA

DP SPECIALIST

IN EXPLORATION AND PRODUCTION

The National Oil Corporation directs and controls the exploration and production of one of the world's largest sources of high quality crude oil. The Corporation has now retained us to recruit a Systems Analyst for its Joint Venture Division who will act as a vital link between departments such as Exploration, Production, Reservoir Engineering and the Computer Centre.

The successful applicant will accumulate facts about analystic and basic methods of current data and will be required to modify, redesign and integrate existing procedures into new system specifications, making the most effective use of existing data processing equipment in all the departments concerned.

Familiarity will therefore be necessary with geological, reservoir, production and EOR engineering concepts and terminology, plus the ability to utilise computers and other data processing equipment as well as programming and automation of administrative and scientific applications and data base design. It follows therefore, that you will have the ability to reason logically, think with initiative and to plan and organise work without supervision.

The position demands an M.Sc. (or its equivalent) degree or higher in either Geology, Geological Engineering, Reservoir Engineering, Computer Sciences or Production Engineering. A minimum of 8 years industrial or applied research experience in the fields of Engineering, Geology, Computer Data Processing or other equivalent experience is essential. Successful applicants with a knowledge of the Arabic Language will be given preference.

In addition to having a challenging and interesting job in a pleasant mediterranean climate, there is the generous benefits package to be expected from an established leader in the petrochemical industry. You will enjoy a highly competitive salary, a free fully furnished house, generous vacation with paid air fares to and from point of domicile, free education for resident children, free medical treatment and worthwhile end of service bonus.

Applicants, having the above qualifications and experience, should write for an application form giving brief details of their career history or send a full resume to: Recruitment Co-ordinator, Job Ref: NOC/33, Umm Al-Jawaby Oil Service Company Limited, 33 Cavendish Square, London W1M 9HF.

OH SO SHARP TO STAY UNBEATEN IN NELL GWYN

By HOTSPUR (Peter Scott)

OH SO SHARP faces strong opposition in the Nell Gwyn Stakes at Newmarket this afternoon but she is napped to maintain her unbeaten record and confirm her position as favourite for the General Accident 1,000 Guineas a fortnight today.

The Nell Gwyn Stakes has proved easily the best 1,0000 Guineas spring trial in recent years. Four of that classic's last six winners tackled it beforehand, two of them being saddled by Henry Cecil, who trains Oh So Sharp.

One in a Million and Fairy Footsteps were the Cecil fillies who took this trial as a prelude to 1,000 Guineas victories.

There seems plenty of stable confidence behind Oh So Sharp as this daughter of Kris sets off down the same trail.

Helen Street looks her biggest danger on last season's form. That filly set a two-year-old time record for the Deauville seven furlongs before failing to concede Oh So Sharp 4lb in the Hoover Fillies' mile at Ascot.

Helen Street was beaten only one and a half lengths that day, so she can be fancied in their level weights return clash. But this daughter of Troy may require further than seven furlongs as a three-year-old.

Bella Colora, winner of the Waterford Candelabra Stakes at Goodwood last August, and Que Sympatica bring unbeaten records to the Nell Gwyn Stakes.

Que Sympatica's winning margin in the Masaka Stakes at Kempton Park 12 days ago was officially given as six lengths. It looked less to me, but she still made short work of some modest opposition.

Clive Brittain sent out Pebbles to win the Nell Gwyn Stakes before her 1,000 Guineas triumph last year. But Happy Hannah, Brittain's hope today, is well below the class of Pebbles.

Gay Captain, from Ela-Mana-Mou's first crop, showed courage Street, may provide trainer Dick Hern's first win this season in the Gerry Fielden Stakes.

Gay Captain, from Ela-mana-mou's first crop, showed courage to win his only two-year-old race last October. That was over six furlongs and he should be better suited by nine furlongs today.

Henry Cecil, who has trained two of the last three Gerry Fielden Stakes winners, Ivano and Trojan Fen, is doubly represented by Slip Anchor and Vertige. I prefer Slip Anchor who is closely related to last season's Lancashire Oaks winner Sandy Island.

Pacific Gold, who has changed owner and trainer since showing smart two-year-old form, reappears in the Granby Stakes, but last week's Nottingham winner Abha can make superior fitness tell.

Perreal, tackling the Rowley Maiden Stakes, could well complete a treble for Henry Cecil and Steve Cauthen, initiated by Abha and Oh So Sharp.

Perreal, by Habitat out of the classic winning French mare Pawneese, was a good second at Ascot last July to Peter Walwyn's Derby hope Khozaam.

More heavy backing for Shadeed yesterday has reduced his 2,000 Guineas odds again from 2-1 to 6-4. Tuesday's impressive Craven Stakes winner is also clear favourite for the Derby.

Righthand Man, the Cheltenham Gold Cup second, is 5-2 favourite for Saturday's William Hill Scottish National in the sponsor's betting.

Miller's mate (Walter Swinburn) comes home an easy winner of yesterday's Wood Ditton Stakes at Newmarket.

Over The Ocean (Alain Lequeux), returns to unsaddle.

France likely for Over the Ocean

By MARLBOROUGH (John Oaksey)

THE indelible impression left by Shadeed still dominated Newmarket yesterday. Nine years out of 10, Over the Ocean's four-length Ladbroke European Free Handicap victory would have guaranteed him a place in the Guineas field. Now he is more likely to run in France.

"After what we saw yesterday I think the French 2,000 Guineas will be much easier," said Olivier Douieb, the recently-transplanted Frenchman whose first runner of the season Over the Ocean was.

He could scarcely have won more impressively — sprinting clear the moment Alain Lequeux loosed his head a furlong out.

Over the Ocean is a nervous, excitable colt and Douieb's original solution to the problem was to give him a relaxing shampoo race. "It seems to calm him two or three hours before the down and make him feel better," the soothing operation with his says the trainer, who conducted own hands!

In the second of his two races last year, Over the Ocean finished about six lengths ahead of Mr Paul Mellon's Fire of Life —who was recently beaten 20 lengths at Kempton by Tango*gnat*.

So a new and even more flat*tering light was thrown on Tony* Stafford's bargain colt (who, don't forget, won again by 15 lengths on Friday when Fire of Life led throughout the April Maiden Stakes.

Handsome bay

A handsome, powerful bay by Nijinsky, Fire of Life, has no doubt improved and his trainer, Ian Balding, who blamed the heavy Kempton going, "would not mind taking on Tangognat again."

That challenge — which our racing editor would, of course, readily take up—seems likely to be postponed. For while Tangognat runs next in the Chester Vase, Fire of Life's most likely target is the Warren Stakes, a race over the Derby course and distance next week in which Ian Balding has a fine record. The colt might then be aimed at the Italian Derby.

Sadly Mr Mellon, who owns Fire of Life, is only arriving for a short visit in this country in time to go racing at Newbury tomorrow. He missed another even more heart-warming victory in his colours when King of Clubs robbed Douieb and Lequeux of a double by beating Parliament in the Earl of Sefton Stakes.

Telepromptor almost certainly pulled too hard and ran too free for his own good here—which probably suited King of Clubs, on whom Pat Eddery likes to come as late as possible.

Hajes looked very much like winning when he went on a furlong out and, having fought one battle to overhaul him, King of Clubs, sticking out his chestnut head like a hero, had to fight another to hold off Parliament's challenge.

Sandown date

Ian Balding, who will be disporting himself on Sunday when the Berks & Bucks draghounds hold their postponed cross-country Team event at Kingsclere, plans to run King of Clubs in a rather more exalted contest at Sandown next Friday, the new Group II Trusthouse Forte Mile.

As the money continued to pour on Tuesday's sensation (Ward Hill laid a single bet of £9,000 to £2,000 about Shadeed for the Derby) his trainer Michael Stoute produced another superbly-bred colt Miller's Mate to win the Wood Ditton Stakes.

Although Miller's Mate is owned by Sheikh Mohammed, this result would also have pleased Mr Mellon and brought back happy memories, because Miller's Mate is by Mill Reef and a grandson of Pistol Packer, the brilliant Prix de Diane winner who chased home Mr Mellon's great horse in the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe.

No doubt quite a few of the newcomers in the Wood Ditton ing a harder living in jumping will soon find themselves earn-yards and the race has produced precious little real talent in recent years.

But Clive Brittain thinks a lot of Supreme Leader and, up with the far side leaders all the way, Miller's Mate beat him and the others with plenty to spare.

Those of us who scoffed at Grey Desire's easy Kempton victory as a "flash in the pan" unlikely to be repeated, had to eat our disrespectful words after the Abernant Stakes. The big grey did it again just as easily this time, to complete a treble for Pat Eddery.

Course Notes & Hints

COLORA IS DAY'S BEST

By Our Course Correspondent

MICHAEL STOUTE'S three-year-olds are in excellent form, with recent victories in the Salisbury 1,000 Guineas Trial, Craven Stakes and yesterday's Wood Ditton Stakes to their credit.

BELLA COLORA* may further emphasise the strength of his team by landing today's Nell Gwyn Stakes (3.10) at Newmarket.

Fire of Life (4-1), Over the Ocean (85-40), King of Clubs, nap (4-1), and Grey Desire (9-4). Forms four selections at Newmarket yesterday all won to complete a 253-1 accumulator.

A comfortable debut winner on the July course here in August, Bella Colora stepped up consider*ably in class when beating Fatah* Flare by three-quarters of a length in the Waterford Candelabra Stakes at Goodwood on her only other start.

Cecil may have better luck with Abha who can follow up her easy Nottingham success with victory in the Granby Stakes (2.0). Our Jock may take the Ladbrokes Boldboy Sprint Handicap (4.10) and Power Plan is fancied for the Rowley Maiden Stakes (4.40).

From Newmarket

CECIL FOR HAT-TRICK

By Our Resident Correspondent

ABHA, who made an impressive winning debut at Nottingham recently, is fancied to follow up in today's Granby Stakes at Newmarket.

This daughter of Thatching, *who was Henry Cecil's first run*ner of the season, outclassed her rivals and was eased in the final furlong when beating Njiwa by two and a half lengths.

Oh So Sharp, who has been working in good style on the gallops, may maintain her unbeaten record in the Nell Gwyn Stakes and stable-com*panion Perreal* may complete a Cecil hat-trick in the Rowley Maiden Stakes.

NEWMARKET: 2.0 Abha (Nash). 2.35 Ridgefield; 3.10 Oh So Sharp; 3.40 Ice Arch; 4.10 Jeanne Avril; 4.40 Perreal.

Point-to-Point

Ashorne attracts formidable entry

By DAVID WELCH

THE Point-to-Point Owners' Association, whose application to stage their meeting this year on a Sunday was turned down by the Jockey Club, have attracted a high-class entry for today's fixture at Ashorne.

This will be the first of two meetings staged during the season on this new course, situated four miles south of Warwick.

With Mackelly likely to wait for Ampton on Saturday, pick of the runners in the Ladies' is Teresa Webber's Brockie Law, while Joe Turner's Suffolk raider Applejo will be hard to beat in the Open.

Peter Greenall rides Matt Murphy for Henrietta Knight here, and he will clash with David Turner (Basil's Choice) again in the Members' when he partners Lay the Trump.

Greenall also has bright prospects on National Clover (Mares' Race) and Pride of Tullow in the Restricted Members'.

Point to Point Owners' Association (Ashorne, 4m S Warwick) 2.0. South Devon (Galmpton, 4m W Brixham) 4.30.

JENSEN OUTPACES THE FIELD ON AMATEURS' DAY

By PHIL LIGGETT

LARS JENSEN, 21, of Denmark, produced two outstanding performances to take a 72 seconds lead in the 500 miles Sealink International which ended its fourth stage at Stretford yesterday.

The Esbjerg amateur survived two long breakaways, on a day split into two stages. He finished second at Rochdale in the morning and then third at Stretford four hours later to take the yellow jersey on a day dominated by the amateur riders.

Fears that professional riders would control this race in a manner similar to last year were dispelled early during the third stage between Rochdale and Barnsley when four amateur riders escaped the field after only six of the 43 miles had been covered.

Jensen, Stephen Delaney from Dublin, Arjan Jagt of Holland and Alan Gornall of Britain worked together to gain 63 seconds by the finish.

They reached speeds of 65 mph during a spectacular descent of Saddleworth Moor in the Pennine hills near Holmfirth.

Professional ambitions

Delaney, now living in France with ambitions of following Sean Kelly and Stephen Roche in the professional ranks, had waited most of the morning at the back of the quartet.

But in the last 400 yards, he made his bid to win the stage.

Yet, on a right-hand bend he hit the crash barriers, remounting to finish fourth.

Instead, Jagt, 18, the youngest rider in the race sprinted to victory and the overall lead, equal on time with Jensen, who finished second.

Malcolm Elliott, the overnight leader finished exhausted at 52nd, but was given the same time as the fifth rider.

Scant respect

Elliott, who had led since the race began last Monday in Rotherham, complained of feeling unwell at the start and his Raleigh-Weinmann team were unable to control the ambitious amateurs who yesterday showed that they have scant respect for their professional counterparts.

After a short break, the riders set off in the afternoon for a 54-mile stage back across the Pennines to Stretford.

Despite losing the stage earlier Ireland gained fresh hope of a major success when Paul Kimmage took a clear lead in the mountains classification.

Kimmage joined Jensen, Sid Barras (Moducel) and Eddy Schurer of Holland on the attack in the opening mile, and, authough managers of other teams later complained they had not been told early enough of the escape, it was another long gamble that succeeded.

Worked hard

Barras, 37, who has been Britain's most successful home-based profesional, worked hard to consolidate a lead.

He received help only from Kimmage for the first 30 miles, and the Irishman was also first over two testing climbs.

Then, with 18 miles to go, Larson began to assist with the pace and Kimmage fell back to the mainfield, which was rapidly catching up behind.

Barras continued to work hard and fully deserved victory at the finish, although there was protest by Schurer who claimed that Barras had moved off his line during the battle for the finish.

Elliott ended an unhappy day 2 mins 13 sec. behind, in sixth place overall, while Barras, who, last Christmas, underwent a difficult operation, moved to third place overall.

SLATER & BARBER SKATE ON

By HOWARD BASS

NICKY SLATER and Karen Barber, the spearhead of Britain's figure skating team since Torvill and Dean turned professional, announced yesterday that they will defend their British ice dance title at Nottingham in November.

They will also be available to compete at the European Championships in Copenhagen next January, and at the World Championships in Geneva in March.

"We gave the matter long and careful thought before deciding to continue after the frustration of missing medals last season," admitted Slater.

Financial backing

As last season, ITV Sport will provide a £15,000 backing which, with a £6,000 grant from the Sports Aid Foundation, will enable them to continue training at overseas centres offering ice facilities that the crowded British rinks cannot match.

The support is not without self-interest. ITV Sport, which holds a three-year contract for exclusive coverage of skating in Britain, realises that viewing figures will recate to the progress of Slater and Miss Barber.

Two of the couples who finished above them in the World Championships last month in Tokyo are no longer in contention.

Doubt over Wood place

By TONY FAIRCHILD

DON WOOD was lying either second or third with the British Rail-sponsored trimaran Red Star yesterday after the third day of the multi-hull race from Deauville.

The uncertainty about Wood's precise position arose because Credit Agricole, he early leader, had failed to make a positional report.

Ahead of Wood was the 80ft Royale, with a lead of seven miles in the race, which is expected to finish in La Rochelle on Friday.

In 30-knot headwinds, Wood was "optimistic" with his 60ft craft—the only trimaran in the race—which was yesterday leading Region de Picardie and Formulae Tag by some 30 miles.

Army Hockey Cup Final

Jolly gets better of sad Rodgers

By CHRIS MOORE

45 Field Regt R.A. ... 1 R A P C Worthy Down ... 1
(R.A. won 4-1 on pens)

WHEN Frank Rodgers gave the R A P C Worthy Down an eighth-minute lead in the Army Cup Final at Aldershot yesterday, it looked as if the holders were safely on the way to another successful defence of the oldest trophy in hockey.

Instead, after losing control of the game in the second half, the Pay Corps ended up fighting to survive and, finally, went down 4-1 on penalty strokes to 45 Field Regiment Royal Artillery.

With the Pay Corps attempting to take the rtpohy for the fourth time in five years, it was almost a personal battle between the two captains, Rodgers and Ian Jolly, of 45 Field Regiment.

After Rodgers had put the Pay Corps ahead, sending in an angled shot from the edg of the circle, it was almost inevitable that Jolly, once an England triallist, would equalise.

After several close calls, he put the teams level in the ninth minute of the second half beating Holme, with a well-placed shot from a narrow angle.

Both Rodgers and Jolly had plenty of chances to settle the issue before the end of normal time. And in the first period of extra time, only a splendid save by Ellis robbed Rodgers of the winner.

Ellis saved the first Pay Corps stroke from Horsman and Gay put his shot wide, as the Gunners moved into a 3-0 lead. Rodgers staved off defeat by putting his shot home safely, but it was only a temporary reprieve, with Green delivering the final blow.

45 Field Regiment.—Gnr W. Ellis; Cpl M. DeSousa; Maj. D. Crabley, Sgt M. Stubbins, Capt. I. Jolly, Bdr P. Simpson, Gnr A. Green, S/Sgt J. McLay, Sgt C. Norton, 2/Lt C. Weston, Cpl P. Howard.

Rugby Union

N. Zealand put game above all

THE decision of the New Zealand rugby authorities to tour South Africa in July and August is no surprise. But that their actions should be the source of such acrimonious dispute saddens them.

The New Zealand R F U Council, whose chairman is Cec Blazey from Canterbury, consider that a rugby tour, for example, of Great Britain no more indicates sympathy with or condonement of the policies of whatever political party is in power than a similar round of matches in South Africa.

But in view of the turmoil in New ealand in 1981, when South Africa's players toured there, the Council's members have never pretended that the issues involved are not highly contentious and subject to extremes of behaviour.

The New Zealand Council make no judgements on the political regimes or the politics of the countries that they are invited to visit. They seek only not to break the law of their own country.

The board's duty

Mr Blazey, probably the most experienced and respected of administrators in the game worldwide, and a member of the International Board, told me in Paris recently that it was the duty of the 17-man council to listen to objections that the proposed tour of South Africa might raise.

The Council would listen to what the Prime Minister, Mr David Lange, had to say, to their own members and to the public. But, in the end, the decision whether to tour was theirs to be made only in the best interests of rugby football, their only elected brief.

The decision would have nothing to do with apartheid or the laws of another country. The tour was a meeting of games players, a challenge between men of varying beliefs, creeds and colours. It was as important as that, but it was nothing more than that.

Mr Blazey's committee is right in believing that sport is not the dustbin for the troubles of the world. Nor should New Zealand rugby be thought of as being solely responsible for the histrionics likely to ensue.

The Lions, who represent England, Wales, Scotland and Ireland, hav eaccepted all invitations to tour South Africa, and England, after an RFU vote of 44-6 in favour, went there last summer. Those tours, in my experience, have created as much excitement in Britain as watching the tide come in.

The welcome changes of policy in South Africa in recent years —all right-minded people detest apartheid—have been aided immeasurably by a succession of bold, caring people in sport in that country.

Those officials and sportsmen of all races are sustained by the visits of those similarly involved from overseas. I do not defend the actio nof the New Zealand R F U Council. I applaud it.

BOYD BOOKS TOUR PLACE AS ENGLAND EXCEL

England "B" ... 21pts Italy ... 9

By JOHN MASON

ENGLAND'S aspiring, perspiring internationals of the future had an excellent afternoon in the sun against the full Italian national side at Twickenham yesterday. The reserve strength is prospering.

Victory by two goals and three penalty goals to a goal and a penalty goal was a shade more emphatic than the run of play justified, though England's efficiency at important times was a major factor.

Italy, particularly in midfield, threatened vigorously, creating time and room from very little. Then, the hard work done, they spoilt everything by finishing poorly.

England's loose forwards fed well on the diet, Buckton invariably in the lead. With Moon snapping at their heels with the strength of a forward and the speed of a sprinter, Italy's defence never could decide where the greatest danger lurked.

Tactics adjuster

Johnson, after a tentative start, was a busy link once it was appreciated that there was more mileage in moving the line than hooting the ball in the air and everyone chasing.

A sparse crowd was less than complimentary on the fifth or sixth occasion that England, the ball smartly won, put up the high ball. At that point, Italy ran the ball back some 60 metres and England, thereafter, adjusted their tactics.

Throughout the early muddles, Boyd, England's full-back, was barely recognisable as the reticent figure of the Barbarians-Cardiff match. There was a snap and purpose about everything he did—and the more he did, the better he got.

Boyd's display was not faultless. But if the travel agent is wondering whose name to put on that air ticket for New Zealand in three weeks' time, I insist that Boyd did enough to qualify yesterday.

Lee's straight back

Toanni, Italy's centre, gave prompt warnings of his skills before Johnson kicked a long penalty goal following a collapsed scrum. At a distance, it was difficult to be sure, but the Italian props looked to be in trouble.

Stiff, the loose-head, stood his ground impassively while Lee, the tight-head, not only presented a ramrod-straight back but was also thumping in behind the loose forwards as he sped to the many breakdowns.

A couple of incidents off the ball ended with Innocenti being rather less than his name suggests. But there the nonsense stopped and a worthwhile match, with Italy recovering strongly later, followed.

Colella demonstrated a fine technique in ripping the ball out of the maul, and with agile backs anxious to run against them, England's forwards did well to restrict possession. They were also important in the opening try.

Italy's mistake

England's scrum heel was controlled, Moon judging the moment with Robbins to release perfectly. The line swung right, a long pass in midfield and Boyd came scampering in as the defence drifted.

The breach was made and Evans, feeling quite at home because this was one of Leicester's moves, took the scoring pass from Boyd for Johnson to convert. Italy were most subdued after that.

Italy also made the mistake of allowing Clough — all 14½ stone of him — to dart and dodge in crowded spaces immediately before half-time after the lively Moore, the captain, had set up the position.

Italy took the scrum, but the clearing kick carried directly to Boyd, who moved diagonally right before despatching Clough on a battering-ram charge the other way. Johnson converted and quickly added a penalty goal to make it 18-0 at half-time.

Much of the second half belonged to Italy and there was some mazy running from Ghini, scrum-half, and Ghizzoni, full-back, which allowed Venturi, having switched wings, to score on the right — a clever hint of what might have been.

The conversion was made by Bettarello, who also kicked a penalty goal when England were offside. Buckton did raise the attacking tempo at the end, but England's only points came from a third penalty goal by the tidy Johnson.

LINCOLN IN TITLE CHASE

By MICHAEL AUSTIN

Lincoln, who narrowly missed a place in last season's John Player Special Cup, seek compensation against Matlock in Sunday's Notts, Lincs and Derbyshire Final.

Victory would put Lincoln, the host club, into next season's national competition, an experience which Matlock enjoyed 12 years ago under their previous name of Old Baileans.

Lincoln, led by Dafydd Hughes, a Welsh centre, have fallen below the record standards set last season but have won 20 of their 28 games. On Sunday they will miss key players John Grove, a centre, and flanker David Nicholson.

A draw with Paviours, last season's Three Counties Cup winners, in their most recent match, bolstered the confidence of Lincoln, who supplied 12 players to the county team which enjoyed an unbeaten season for the first time in 14 years.

Prolific scorer

Nuneaton Old Edwardians also have much to celebrate after retaining the Midshires Merit Table title. Chris Ison, their outside half, has dropped 19 goals but the most startling scoring feat belongs to Mike Smith, who has collected 55 tries this season for G E C, Coventry.

Newbold-on-Avon will meet Hinckley at Parkfield Road on Saturday with the winners receiving the Frank Harris Memorial Trophy for the first time. Mr Harris, who had been President of Newbold and Warks, died last year.

After successful charity runs to Twickenham, Cardiff and Dublin, Leamington are covering the 330 miles to Edinburgh on May 15. A ball will be carried by a relay team of 15 runners. Leamington hope to conclude their programme by running to Paris next year.

CLARK TO ASK ABOUT FUTURE

Six English players, including three doubles specialists in Martin Dew, Gillian Gilks and Nora Perry, have been invited to play in the fifth Alba Quartz Cup in Jakarta, from Sept. 2-8.

England's No. 1, Steve Baddeley, Nick Yates and the top women's singles player, Helen Troke, who all figured in the Pro-Kennex Grand Prix finals last year, complete the party.

Gillian Clark who, last Sunday, won the national women's double title in Coventry, with Gillian Gowers, said yesterday that she has asked to meet the England selectors for a frank discussion on her future.

Following her win on Sunday, Miss Clark expressed disappointment at not being picked to play her best event, women's doubles, in the forthcoming world championships. She has however, been nominated for the women's singles and mixed doubles.

Show Jumping

Millar makes his presence felt

By ALAN SMITH in Berlin

IAN MILLAR gave a timely reminder that the Canadian show-jumping team is no one-man-band when the final of the Volvo World Cup meeting opened in West Berlin yesterday by winning the Coca Cola prize on Wotan.

Most attention among the Canadians has been focussed on Mario Deslauriers, winner of the World Cup last year, when only 19.

But Millar, 38, was riding before Deslauriers was born. He was in the Olympic teams of 1972, '76 and '84, and won a team gold medal at the Olympic substitute festival at Rotterdam in 1980.

Yesterday was only to give the horses a warm-up before today's first round of the World Cup. As a result, many riders gave their horses a fairly gentle introduction, including Joe Pargis, whose double Olympic gold medal winner Touch Of Class went superbly clear twice, but unhurriedly, for fourth place.

Leone second

Peter Leone, one of three brothers from New Jersey who have qualified for this final took second on Oxo ahead of Germany's Michael Ruping with Calypso. This is the second time that all three Leones have won their way through to the final.

Nick Skelton, whose wife gave birth to a son last week, was easily fastest on Everest Domino, who is not one of his World Cup horses, but hit the second part of the penultimate double.

Michael Whitaker and Warren Point hit only the last fence in the jump-off, while both John Whitaker, with Clonee Temple, and Robert Smith, on Sanyo Olympic Video, had fractional time faults in the first round after jumping clear.

Earlier Harvey Smith had protested on behalf of the European riders, at a meeting with the organisers, where it was announced that Italy's Diego Deriu would not be allowed to start.

Deriu competes

Deriu was 21st on the European list, with only the top 20 coming through to the final. But the riders felt there was some doubt whether one of those above him, Sweden's Peter Eriksson, had technically infringed the rule which restricts horses to seven appearances in World Cup qualifiers in Europe.

Eriksson's horse, Zorro, jumped seven times in Europe as well as twice in North America. This was within the rules — though they will probably be altered to prevent it in future — but the World Cup committee decided Deriu should be given permission to compete.

John Whitaker put on an amazingly acrobatic display to win the Melmut Kohl Prize on San Salvador, who is not in the World Cup but is a highly-talented speed horse.

Landing steeply over the second-last fence after a big jump, San Salvador had the normally limpet-like Whitaker up round his ears, but the Yorkshireman was back in the saddle in a trice, with no loss of momentum.

This probably cost them a little time but they still finished with more than two seconds to spare over Dutchman Rob Ehrens on Reinolvio.

COCA COLA PRIZE.—I. Millar's Wotan (Canada), 1; P. Leone's Oxo (USA), 2; M. Ruping's Calypso (W. Germany), 3.

HELMUT KOHL PRIZE: J. Whitaker's San Salvador (GB) 1; R. Ehren's Reinolvio (Holland) 2; S. Scheve's Oxo (W. Germany) 3.

Holgate's double hope for Badminton

By MARY FRANCIS

TWO horses failed to pass yesterday's veterinary examinations for the Badminton three-day event, but a large field of 76 is still in the contest that begins today with the first of two days of dressage.

Jacquie Toogood's Finisterre and Lucinda Henson's Eagle, were the horses "spun" by the vet.

More significant absentees are Lucinda Green, who gave birth to a son earlier this month, and Robert Lemieux, reserve in the Los Angeles Olympics, who was forced to withdraw The Gamesmaster on Tuesday morning. Capt. Mark Phillips has also withdrawn his only entry, Fieldsman.

Vintage event

It will still be a vintage Badminton with riders from eight nations, among them the top four individuals in Los Angeles—New Zealand's Mark Todd, America's Karen Stives, Britain's Ginny Holgate and Torrance Watkins-Fleischmann, also of the United States' gold medal team.

Todd, who won his two pre-Badminton outings on Charisma, must have a fine chance of repeating his 1980 victory. But Miss Holgate has also won with both her horses, Priceless and Night Cap, and must be Britain's main hope for keeping the Whitbread Trophy at home.

Miss Holgate, 30, won the last two Burghley three-day events, but has yet to win at Badminton. She will ride last year's Burghley winner, Night Cap, in the dressage this morning and her Olympic mount Priceless tomorrow afternoon before tackling the 35 cross-country fences with both on Saturday.

Phillipa Magill and Rachel Hunt, individual silver and bronze medallists in the Young Riders European championships last year, will be among those aiming to impress the senior selectors.

There are several other exceptionally-talented young riders competing and they will all be aiming for a place in September's European championships.

London Marathon

GRATTON SETS HIS TARGETS

Mike Gratton has set himself a double target for Sunday's Mars London Marathon. He aims to re-establish himself with either a fast time or a high placing in the world's biggest race which is being contested by a field of 22,000.

He hopes it will put him on the road to the Commonwealth Games title in Edinburgh next year. Gratton, 30, was third in the 1982 Games in Brisbane and went on to win the London race the following year.

Now he is free of back trouble, running well and looking forward to proving he is still a force to be reckoned with.

W. INDIES WIN BY 10 WICKETS

By TONY COZIER in Port-of-Spain

NEW ZEALAND were routed for 116 in 43·2 overs in their fourth one-day international against the West Indies in Port-of-Spain.

By lunch, the West Indies were well on their way to their fourth consecutive victory in the five-match series at 38 without loss from eight overs.

Eventually, Haynes and Richardson steered West Indies home by 10 wickets without trouble, Haynes scoring 85 not out.

Although the outfield was far drier than in the first Test almost two weeks ago, the pitch carried a layer of grass enough to worry the team whose captain lost the toss.

It happened to be New Zealand, and they were 25 for five by the 14th over, a situation that offered them little hope.

Garner was almost unplayable. He made the ball lift smartly from his Himalayan height and cut both ways. By the time he was changed, after six overs, he had dismissed Wright, Martin Crowe and Howarth for 12 runs.

Davis provided him with accurate support, conceding eight runs from his six overs at the opposite end. New Zealand got relief only when Baptiste came on to be hit for 31 in five overs by Coney and Hadlee.

They added 58 from 15 overs before Coney tried to run the ball through Richards at third man and was caught behind for 33.

Cairns lifted a big six off Harper, who then promptly bowled him, leaving Hadlee with the responsibility of guiding the tail through the alloted 50 overs, which proved beyond him.

ADELAIDE IN TOP GEAR

Adelaide is preparing for the first world championship Formula One Grand Prix race to be held in Australia.

More than 100,000 spectators, including an estimated 5,000 from overseas, are expected to watch the Nov. 10 race over a circuit constructed on city streets.

All accommodation within a 65 miles radius of the South Australian capital is already taken and officials yesterday launched a scheme to persuade residents to let their homes and spare rooms.

The South Australian Government has a contract with the Formula One Constructors' Association to host a Grand Prix for each of the next seven years. Work on track construction and safety barriers is under way and the final racing surface will be laid in June.

JOHANSSON IS SOON TESTING

Stefan Johansson, the Swedish driver who was signed by Ferrari on Tuesday, was yesterday testing the new 156-85 racing car at *the Fiorano track, near the fac*tory in Italy.

A replacement for Rene Arnoux, who blamed his physical problems for his split with the Italian team, Johansson will team up with Michele Arboreto, who was second in Rio, for this weekend's Grand Prix in Estoril, Portugal.

Though the Italians will be hoping to edge out last season's champions, Marlboro McLaren, the JPS Lotus team will be anxious to build on the success of Elio De Angelis in Brazil, where he steered the black Lotus into third place.

Australians set tour deadline

AUSTRALIAN cricketers chosen for this year's England tour will be replaced if they refuse to sign a compulsory declaration by next Tuesday, the Australian Cricket Board chairman Fred Bennett said in Perth yesterday.

"The Board is taking seriously the strong rumours that a number of Australian cricketers will undertake a tour of South Africa in November 1985," Bennett said in a statement after the first day of a three-day board meeting.

Bennett refused to give any details of the declarations' contents but earlier this week cricket sources said any player who signed a reclaration and then toured South Africa could be banned from playing for Australia for an indefinite period.

"At today's meeting, the Board reaffirmed its responsibility to ensure the future of Australian cricket," the statement said.

"The matter is being investigated thoroughly and the Board will take whatever action it considers necessary in consultation with its legal advisors."

"All players conditionally chosen for the 1985 tour of England have been asked to complete a statutory declaration by Tuesday, April 23," the statement added.

"In the event that any player is unable or unwilling to complete this declaration and the appropriate contract, he will be regarded as ineligible for this tour and the selectors will be directed to select a replacement."

Mr Bennett would not say what other options the Board would be raising with its solicitors. He was queried on the contents of the statutory declarations and replied: "That is a matter which, at this stage, is confidential. That is all I want to say now. One could be involved in this discussion ad infinitum.

"This is as far as we have moved. It's dealing with the immediate matters. Subsequent matters will be dealt with at the appropriate time," he added.

MIDDLESEX SPURRED BY DOWNTON

By RACHAEL FLINT at La Manga, Spain

PAUL DOWNTON guided Middlesex to a five-wicket victory in the second game of the three-match one-day series against Lancashire at the La Manga club, Spain, yesterday.

Middlesex levelled the series 1-1, but they looked in trouble at 58 for four in the 26th over, chasing Lancashire's 50-over total of 139 for nine.

Downton's appearance considerably livened the tempo; he added 64 in the next 15 overs with Brown, who eventually fell for a solid 58 to Watkinson. Downton finished on 48 not out.

Stronger side

Downton struck the winning boundary in the 45th over by guiding a bouncer from Patterson straight over wicketkeeper Maynard's head.

Middlesex, who strengthened their side after the eight-wicket defeat on Monday with Gatting, Cowans and Downton, put Lancashire in and restricted them to 97 for four off 38 overs.

La Manga (50 overs): Lanca 139-9 (J. Abrahams 48; N. F. Williams 4-25; G. D. Rose 4-26); Middlesex 141-5 (44·5 overs: P. R. Downton 48 not, G. Brown 58). Middlesex won by 5 wkts.

FELTON INJURED

Somerset are likely to be without Nigel Felton, their left-handed opening batsman, for the first two weeks of the season. He broke a finger of his right hand while practising fielding at Taunton.

'Neutral umpires' for World Cup matches

By MICHAEL CAREY

ALL countries taking part in the next cricket World Cup, to be held in India and Pakistan in 1987, are being invited to send one leading umpire to join the panel of local officials for the competition.

This move, agreed by the International Cricket Conference at a recent meeting with the respective boards of control in Bombay, will be watched with interest in view of regular demands, from some quarters, for "neutral umpires."

Jack Bailey, secretary of the ICC, said yesterday: "It seems a worthwhile experiment, but no one is suggesting that it is going to lead to independent umpires for Test cricket."

Even the term "neutral *umpires" causes offence to mem*bers of that honourable fraternity. The trouble is that in some parts of the world, umpires are less experienced and therefore less efficient than others, which sometimes gives rise to suspicions in the minds of players.

Obvious irony

This has particularly been the case in both Pakistan and India recently. Thus the indication may be interpreted as resulting from concern that such an important occasion as the World Cup might be devalued by umpiring problems.

The irony, of course, is that an influx of outside umpires would on the one hand, tend to deny some of the locals a rare opportunity to sample the experience of officiating at this level.

As it happens, standing in one-day cricket, though not of course without its problems, especially in view of the pace of the game, is arguably not as stressful as a five-day Test where the activities of close fielders often make life difficult for the umpires.

On the other hand a relatively inexperienced umpire could probably learn much simply from standing with someone of the status of England's Dickie Bird, Barry Meyer or David Evans, not only on the field but off it.

Worthy experiment

So the experiment seems worthy enough. In any case, some might say, why should not the world's best umpires share some of the perks and kudos of such a great cricketing occasion with the players?

There may be snags, of course. As England discovered in Sharjah recently the novelty of independent umpires quickly wears off when they are as accident-prone as the two gentle*men from foreign parts who* officiated in one of their games.

Then there will be the undoubted problem of appointing the umpires for the final. Would local officials feel affronted if the honour went to two "outsiders" who were better known —and what if they were from the two countries taking part?

As I happens in Sharjah England opted for Dickie Bird and Mel Johnson, of Australia, to take the final — though they themselves failed to make it.

DRUG HEADACHE FOR TCCB

Codeine, the every-day pain-killer, is giving the Test and County Cricket Board a headache. It is one of 100 or so illegal drugs on the International Olympic Committee's banned list issued by the Sports Council.

The TCCB have agreed to support the Council in a campaign against drug taking and will make random tests, but the list is too long and does not apply to cricket in many respects.

Mike Gear, a TCCB spokesman, said yesterday: "It includes things like hay fever sprays and regular pain killers like codiene. There will be a meeting on Friday to modify the list."

Nottinghamshire are to set up a section for young cricketers and spectators called "Trent Bridge Juniors," following a sponsorship deal with the Not*tingham Evening Post and Apollo* Soft Drinks.

PHADKAR DIES IN MADRAS

By BILL FRINDALL

Dattaray Gajaran Phadkar, the Indian Test all-rounder, has died in Madras. He was 59.

An aggressive, right-handed middle-order batsman and fast-medium swing bowler, who could revert to off-spin on a turning pitch, Phadkar appeared in 31 Tests from 1947-48 until 1958-59, scoring 1,229 runs (average 32·34), including two centuries, and taking 62 wickets (average 56·85).

At Headingley in 1952 Phadkar joined Hazare, his captain, with the second innings in ruins at 26 for five, the first four wickets having fallen for no runs in 14 balls to Trueman and Bedser. The pair added 105, Phadkar's share being a defiant 64.

Allison an inspiration to Brize Norton

By MICHAEL AUSTIN

R A F Brize Norton ... 16pts, R A F St Athan ... 7

RICK ALLISON, the former Combined Services wing switched productively to scrum-half to inspire Brize Norton, the hosts, to win the R A F Cup Final, sponsored by Whyte and Mackay yesterday.

Allison linked smoothly with Mike Evans, who has played for Gloucester this season, and St Athan, four times champions in the previous five seasons, were out-run and out-manoeuvred.

The match, a niggling, unruly affair, alas provided an inappropriate climax to a competition involving 76 stations as far apart as Saxa-Vord in the Shetlands and St Mawgan in Cornwall.

St Athan, of South Glamorgan, trailed by 13 points in 26 minutes on an afternoon borrowed from June before losing by a goal, a try, a dropped goal and a penalty goal to a try and a penalty goal.

Devout tackling

Brize Norton thrived on Jones and Burn, the Gloucester lock, in the line-out and they prospered in the scrum. Their backs, notably Blain, jarred St Athan's ambition with devout tackling.

A bruising second half was eminently forgettable, but Brize Norton had poached two earlier opportunist tries by Allison and Iggledon, who both exploited St Athan's line-out laxity.

Mike Evans had dropped a goal and converted Allison's try before adding a second-half penalty goal. Coppack's try, from Sheppard's break, and Rhodri Evans' solitary penalty goal from six attempts, offered St Athan scant consolation.

HOLMES IS CONFIDENT

TERRY HOLMES, the Wales captain, believes that his team has a great opportunity to answer the critics when they face England in the rearranged international in Cardiff on Saturday.

"We have had an indifferent season," admitted Holmes, yesterday, after the team had completed a two-and-a-half hour workout at Bridgend. "We do seem to have lost the art of scoring tries, but perhaps that will come back to us on Saturday.

"Wales have not played as badly as some of the critics have made out, and if chances against France and Ireland had been taken we might have been in a different position."

Holmes, who will play against England with two stitches in a cut below his left eye, added: "It has been a very disappointing season, but we will be aiming to salvage a bit of pride against England."

Surgery for Ring

Mark Ring, who was injured in Cardiff's match against Swansea last Saturday, has undergone another operation on his injured knee, following initial surgery to remove a cartilage.

The operation was necessary to "relieve a build-up of fluid on the knee," said Alan Priday, the Cardiff secretary.

He added: "It certainly looks like it will take Mark a year to recover from his horrific injury."

Lord's lure for 1,125 'grass roots' teams

By JOHN FOGG

FOR the "grass roots" cricketer the game holds one irresistible lure — the chance to play at Lord's.

Some 1,125 teams will start this season determined to star at Lords on Aug. 31 or Sept. 1 in the final of either the William Younger Cup—the senior club's event—or of the National Village Championship.

Old Hill, from the Birmingham League, begin the defence of their Younger title with a first-round home match against Worcester Old Elizabethans. Victory then could well see the holders severely tested by West Bromwich Dartmouth—also of the Birmingham League—they first need to win at Ludlow.

Bishop's Stortford lost last year at Lord's by five wickets, but only three balls remained of Old Hill's 45 overs. No bowler is allowed more than nine overs, and in Stortford's defeat, Surridge, their spearhead, bowled only eight.

There are 486 clubs in this season's Younger Cup, which will bring a cheque for £1,000 to the champion club's funds. The runners-up receive £600 and there are considerable added benefits as teams progress to the final at Lord's, where the Burton Group will fit out each player with the smartest of blazers and slacks.

No sponsor

The championship, organised from Lord's by the National Cricket Association, is no tipster's dream. So many good club sides stumble from the path to Lord's. But Scarborough have won the event four times, and could well do so again.

Marchwiel, from North Wales, won the National Village Championship last year, beating Hursley Park, of Hampshire, in the last of six years' sponsorship by Whitbread. Marchwiel also won in 1980.

This year the competition is without a sponsor, but The Cricketer magazine, organiser since 1972, has bridged the sponsorship successfully once before. Ben Brocklehurst, The Cricketer's managing director and a former captain, of Somerset, sees few, if any, problems until the next sponsors come along. And come along they will.

With 659 village clubs entered, from the north of Scotland to the south of Cornwall, the eventual winner is anybody's guess. But the prize is £500 and The Cricketer Trophy.

Village cricketers everywhere were saddened by the sudden death in August of Findlay Rea who ran their competition for six years and loved every minute of it. Jeffery Murrell has taken over.

LANGER TAKES HIS TIME ON PARADISE ISLE

By MICHAEL WILLIAMS in South Carolina

BERNHARD LANGER'S telephone has not stopped ringing since he won the Masters. The only way he could get away from it was to go out and play golf again, back to the drawing-board and his yardage for the Sea Pines Heritage Classic, which begins at Harbour Town today.

Langer does not pace out his distances. He has a little wheel that he pushes round to measure the length, one which folds up easily.

Spectators clapped him and some shook him by the hand. Other players congratulated him and not obviously through gritted teeth; four times in the past eight years the Masters has been won by overseas players. Gary Player in 1978, Seve Ballesteros in 1980 and 1982 and now Langer.

One American writer even asked me: "What has gone wrong with American golf?" The answer is nothing; it is just that the rest of the world is catching up.

Langer will be playing wearing a wrist-watch again—the first time he has done so in the Masters, and the result of a new contract signed with Ebel.

It was pure coincidence that the deal closely followed his being fined for slow play in the Tournament Players' Championship.

Shady lagoons

The other man of the moment on this picturesque holiday island of luxury yachts and golf courses and condominiums beside shady lagoons is Nick Faldo.

He won last year and they are not letting him forget it.

Part of the tradition of the Heritage, all 17 years of it, is for the defending champion to play himself into offic as "Captain of the Gentlemen Golfers."

It starts with a parade round the harbour at the foot of the red-and-white lighthouse, bagpipes skirling, and ends with the driving-in ceremony by the 18th green, complete with Civil War canon and gunpowder.

Faldo, resplendent now in a red tartan blazer the Americans so adore, was handed one of the old "play clubs," had his tee of sand made for him, and struck a fine shot out to sea. Unfortunately, the cannon failed to go off and he had to do it again.

It was all typically American, proud of a heritage that goes back nearly 200 years to the South Carolina Golf Club, its home once at Charleston, and now at Harbour town.

The Harbour Town course, one of 19 on the island, is nothing like as old. Pete Dye was the architect and it was opened in 1969.

It measures 6,788 yards, has a par of 71 and is unusual for the smallness of the greens.

Twisting fairways

Faldo likes it that way, or, certainly, last year he did. Then, he went out, attacked and prospered.

Amid the oaks and pines that border narrow, twisting fairways, he has to manoeuvre the ball both ways and play for position.

"It's a case of getting it altogether," says Faldo. For most of the year, his long game has been more reliable than that around the greens.

It is a problem that he has not often encountered, and it irritates.

Sleepered bunker

But it is easy to be optimistic in such surroundings and one might even be back in Britain, at Prestwick or Brancaster, as one comes across the odd sleepered bunker and, at the 13th, a drive, and then second shot across marshland to a green on a small headland.

With the sun shining, and splashes of silver sand on distant islands in Calibogue Sound, there are certainly worse places in the world in which to earn a living.

Lee Trevino, who was yesterday named by Benson and Hedges as their 1984 Player of the Year for his victory in the American P G A championship. He will appear in this August's Benson and Hedges Open tournament at Fulford.

Scores soar on eve of Tunisian Open

By RICHARD JAMES in Sousse, Tunisia

SCORES soared into the high 70s and 80s in yesterday's Pro-Am on the eve of the £70,000 Tunisian Open, which launches the £5 million P G A European Golf Tour at El Kantaoui, Sousse.

As chill winds off the grey Mediterranean buffeted the panoramic 7,000-yard course, Paul Way took 78, Howard Clark and Gordon Brand Jnr 79, Michael King 80, Mark James and Eamonn Darcy 81 and Tommy Horton, a renowned wind player, 84.

The professionals are being permitted to pick, clean and place on the fairways, but last year's six-below-par winning aggregate by Sam Torrance, absent this week, looks like being hard to beat.

Statistically, Clark, who finished third in last year's Order of Merit with winnings of £120,000 after two victories and three seconds, starts favourite for an £11,660 first prize, but he admits to being "a little rusty."

Plans to play in Hongkong and Malaysia fell through, and he has not played competitive golf since the Spanish Pro Ams, two of which he won, eight weeks ago.

James, Tunisian champion in 1983, would like to make amends for squandering a four-stroke lead with a disastrous eight at the par-four seventh in a last-round 78 in 1984, after he had opened with a 65.

Victory would bolster his hopes of a return to Ryder Cup action in September at The Belfry, after missing the 1983 matches.

James plans to return next autumn to the U S Tour School, where he failed to qualify two years ago. He believes inconsistent playing conditions and inadequate practice facilities in Europe are restricting his development.

SCOT IS TWO IN FRONT

By ELIZABETH PRICE

JILL NICOLSON, the Scottish international, has just got the better of her friend and rival Curtis Cup player, Jill Thornhill, in the Surrey Championship. Twice in the last four years, she has reached the final, only to lose to Mrs Thornhill.

Yesterday she led the qualifiers for the match-play stage at Walton Heath with 75 and 76 to equal 151, five-over-par.

Mrs Thornhill is now two shots behind in this event.

Thick heather

Playing together they were level after the morning round on the Old course with 75, two-over par.

Mrs Thornhill was one ahead after 15 holes on the New in the afternoon, but then she faded her second shot into thick heather and failed to get out.

A seven reversed the positions and Mrs Nicolson rubbed in her advantage with a good eight-iron to the 17th, from which she holed out for a birdie.

Her new clubs are working well, though she has not had much chance of getting used to them. She played some well-judged irons to the greens, however.

Sandy Cohen, who reached the semi-final last year, had the best round of the day, 74 on the New.

151—J. Nicolson (Worplesdon) 75, 76.
153—J. Thornhill (Walton Heath) 75, 78.
155—S. Cohen (Coombe Hill) 81, 74; W. Wooldridge (Wentworth) 78, 77.
158—C. Bailey (Tandridge) 79, 79.
161—S. Prosser (Burhill) 80, 81.

HOLE-IN-ONE TEAM TAMED

By MAURICE HART

A hole in one by David Baxter gave his father Deric Baxter sheer delight during a 6 & 5 victory in the Father and Son matchplay foursomes at West Hill, Surrey, yesterday.

Alas, after the usual celebrations, all went wrong in the afternoon and they were eliminated.

It was at the 13th that David's eight-iron shot landed a foot past the flagstick and rebounded into the hole. The Baxters, of Lincolnshire, won the trophy in 1970 and looked like making another strong bid, especially after defeating C. J. and P. Freeston of Woburn and Leicestershire, after only 13 holes.

However, it was not to be. Their game fizzled out, especially on the greens, and Terry and Richard Betts, a Sussex pair, seized on their unexpected luck and won by 4 & 3.

The Betts thus qualified for another interesting clash in which they will meet Bill and Adam Tillman of Addington. The Tillmans looked a useful combination, especially in the third round against G. and M. Burridge, of Ealing who were beaten 5 & 4.

The surprise of the second round was the defeat of past winners Wilfred and Keith Gallon, of Farnham and Sunningdale, by W. and P. Pearce, of St Mullion, 3 & 2.

But still going strong are Tom and Martin Evans, who, having defeated the holders early on, advanced into the last 16.

Later in the third round there was another hole in one, this time by H. Webb, an entry from New Zealand, but he and his son lost to the Pearces by 5 and 4.

Johnston recoups some of his loss

By JOHN PARSONS

PETER JOHNSTON, 24, an Australian making his final overseas tour as a player, yesterday recouped a little more of the £1,000 he lost before even hitting a ball in the British Home Stores Tournament at the Cumberland Club at Hampstead.

His hard fought 6-7, 6-4, 8-6 victory over Denmark's Morten Christiansen, which carried him into the quarterfinals of this first event on the LTA's international spring circuit, guaranteed him a modest £150.

Johnston is trying to trace the London taxi in which he left a travel bag when he arrived on Monday containing his cash, traveller's cheques, credit cards, passport and air ticket.

John Feaver, the tournament director, said: "He's reported his losses to the police, the taxi company and the Australian Embassy. He's more distressed than a dying dingo. He's here at the start of a six months tour before going home to start work for the Victoria State LTA."

Qualifier wins

Unless the missing bag is found, fourth-seeded Johnston, who now plays Sweden's Peter Lundgren, a 7-6, 6-3 winner over Britain's Robin Drysdale, is bound to be out of pocket. The first prize is £671.

Drysdale's defeat meant that four former champions had been beaten. The others were Chris Bradnam, who went out to Northamptonshire's Mark Blincow, the surprise winner over Stuart Baile at the Refuge National Championships in October, Sally Reeves and Kate Brasher.

Miss Brasher lost to Switzerland's Celine Cohen, a qualifier, after taking the first set 6-0. Later Suzie Mair, who is in the middle of school examinations, went out to Sweden's Karoline Karlsson after winning the first set 6-1.

The principal upset in the women's singles, however, was the defeat, also over three sets, of top-seeded Australian Annette Gulley by French qualifier Pascale Etchemendy.

Two other Australians, top-seeded Simon Youl and world junior champion Mark Kratzman, reached the last eight of the men's singles at the expense of British qualifiers Michael Walker and David Felgate.

Three British players remain in the men's event. Jeremy Bates, the second seed who now meets Blincow, and Derbyshire's Nick Fulwood who will meet Johnston.

Bates, hoping to regain some of the financial loss he suffered from a disappointing month in Brazil, was pressed surprisingly hard by Berkshire's Paul Hand, 19, though the extra class and experience of Bates told emphati*cally in the ninth game of the* second set with two splendid passing winners and then a lob which so demoralised Hand that he then double-faulted.

VILAS FEELS THE HEAT

Guillermo Vilas, of Argentina, overcame the Texas heat as well as Vijay Amritraj, of India, for a 7-5, 6-2 first-round victory in the River Oaks men's tournament.

Vilas, ranked number 33 in the world, fell behind 4-1 in the first set before finding his groundstrokes and serve as the temperature soared to the mid-80s. "It will feel like Heaven when I go back to Europe," he said.

In other first-round matches, Ramesh Krishnan, of India, made Sammy Giammalva a 6-0, 6-4 loser in his hometown, and in a battle of 17-year-olds hard-serving West German Boris Becker defeated John Boytim, a top U.S. junior player, 6-4, 6-4.

Ueberroth is bringing sense to baseball

BASEBALL lovers were somewhat shocked this week when the new commissioner, Peter Ueberroth, former Los Angeles Olympics chief, donned an overcoat as a cold wind sliced through the Cincinnati stadium on the season's opening day.

Mr Ueberroth's predecessor, Bowie Kuhn, never acknowledged that the game was ever played in less than perfect conditions and he consequently risked pneumonia on a regular basis in places like Montreal and Pittsburgh and Chicago.

Any criticism of the new commissioner's break with tradition is thus powerfully countered by his showing a much firmer grasp on reality than Mr Kuhn.

Mr Kuhn was once described by an irate lawyer as a 19th-century man with an 18th-century mind. What is cer*tainly true is that under Mr* Kuhn's leadership America's summer game drifted into all kinds of confusion.

Huge wages

It was splintered by disarray among club owners, bizarre escalation of players' wages to a current average of around £275,000 a year, a bitter strike and feeble attempts to deal with a gathering tide of drug scandal.

Now under Mr Ueberroth's business-like touch, the game is taking a stance which prompts some observers to hope for a period of relative stability, one which might just see owners and players step back from financial disaster.

Mr Ueberroth recently headed off the prospect of the game's second strike in four years when he ordered clubs to open their books to players' union officials.

This meant that the players would have to face the fact that the game is haemorrhaging money at a time when a top player curls his lip at a million dollars a year.

Leading question

The players' willingness to withdraw from their strike position after Mr Ueberroth's intervention prompted the much-respected Thomas Boswel lof the WASHINGTON POST to write, "now that artificial turf, domed stadiums and free agents, arbitrators super television stations two-million dollar annual contracts and drug abuse, competitive balance and imminent expansion, record attendance and record red ink are all here what do we do with them?

"The 1985 season should provide some answers and perhaps even mark the start of a new age of baseball sanity. . . ."

Certainly the presence of Mr Ueberroth, who made sense of the modern Olympic movement and produced a stunning profit in Los Angeles last year, augurs well.

Recognising that it gets cold in Cincinnati in April was at the very least an encouraging start.

SHOULDER SNAG FOR MOORE

By BILL EDWARDS

FOOTBALL came to the aid of tennis in the Anglian Windows Tournament at Norwich yesterday. Ken Brown, the Norwich City manager, was there when Peter Moore, the favourite, had trouble with his shoulder and was beaten 6-2, 5-7, 6-1 by Les Davies.

Moore was unable to play his backhand, and so Mr Brown took him off to see Tim Sheppard, his club's physiotherapist, who diagnosed pulled ligaments and advised him to rest at least five days.

"I did the damage while practising yesterday and could not hit a backhand at all," said a disappointed Moore.

A former Prudential British Junior champion, he has just returned from a long spell in the American universities and is attempting to fight his way back into the British rankings.

Mr Brown was at the tournament watching daughter Amanda, the favourite in the women's singles, ease her way through 6-1, 6-2, against Belinda Welt.

Miss Brown, whose tennis is sponsored by the tournament's promoters, is playing in Norwich for the first time in three years and using it as a fill-in, having, like Anne Hobbs, been left in the cold by the cancellation of the South African Open.

"I'm hoping to hear later this week that I've been accepted for Australia," said Miss Brown, who has won that country's junior championship for the past two years.

Ian Currie ended the overseas challenge for the singles when he beat Pat Mangan, of the United States, 6-3, 6-1.

The picture is different in the women's singles, where only three home players—Miss Brown, Valda Lake, the Torquay junior, and Joy Tacon, of Norfolk—have survived to the last eight.

NEW YOUTH TOURNAMENT

London is to be the launching pad for a new junior event which it is hoped will eventually encourage thousands of fresh recruits into British tennis, writes John Parsons.

The competition, sponsored by the Wall's meat company, will run throughout London's 32 boroughs and will be open to boys and girls aged 16 or under.

Prizes range from a day's coaching with Virginia Wade and a John McEnroe Dunlop racket for the most highly-rated 32 boys and girls at the end of the circuit, to a week's professional coaching at the David Lloyd Centre in Portugal for the overall winners.

First chance

Administration of the event, which involves eight tournaments in each of four circuits spread among the boroughs, is to be handled by the Sports Council. They, Wall's and the Lawn Tennis Association hope to attract many entries from those who have not taken a serious competitive interest in tennis.

Dan Maskell, who attended the launch in London yesterday, said the competition reminded him of the old EVENING NEWS tournament which was instrumental in giving many young players their first tournament chance.

"Fred Perry always says that one of the main reasons he became such a fine match player was because of the early experience he gained in that event," said Mr Maskell. "It would be marvellous if this new competition ultimately discovered another Fred Perry for British Tennis."

NANCARROW IN TROUBLE

Tristan Nancarrow's membership of the International Squash Professional Association has been suspended for just under five months, following frequent complaints against the young Australian champion for misbehaviour on and off the court at various tournaments around the world.

Nine other players received shorter, suspended sentences, and one of them, Egyptian Gamal Awad claims that he has been unjustly punished and has stated that he will resign his membership if he is not exonerated. His appeal has already been heard.

Nancarrow's punishment spans the lucrative and busy South *African circuit two major tourna*ments in Pakistan and one in Hongkong.

He can play in them and collect prize money but, without ISPA affiliation, cannot be seeded, nor can be accumulate points for his world ranking.

Roger Eadie, the secretary of ISPA, said: "They're anxious to preserve the image of our members as worthy professionals and are concerned that they take a responsible attitude towards promoters and sponsors.

World Snooker Championship

Stevens edges in against Edmonds

By JANICE HALE

KIRK STEVENS, whose manager issued a statement on Monday refuting allegations that his client may be involved in the misuse of drugs yesterday reached the second round of the Embassy World Snooker Championship with a narrow 10-8 victory over Ray Edmonds at the Crucible Theatre, Sheffield.

Stress, be it on the table or away from it, usually adversely affects any player's performance. Stevens, from Canada, was not at his sharpest and, but for Edmonds missing the difficult brown in the 17th frame, the match would almost certainly have gone to a decider.

The foundation of Stevens's victory was laid in the first session on Tuesday which he won 6-3 helped by breaks of 43, 42, 47 and 77.

As an amateur, Edmonds excelled as a snooker player, winning the orld Amateur hampionship twice, but since joining the professional ranks in 1978 he has achieved far greater success as a billiards player — winning the World Professional title last month.

Safety tactics

Yesterday afternoon, he applied his experience and acumen in slowing the Canadian down with some thoughtful safety play. These tactics enabled him to level the match at 7-7.

Breaks of 46 and 35 helped Stevens draw away again to 9-7, two up with three to play, but Edmonds displayed great determination to win the 17th frame and pulled up from 8-44 to 39-44 on the green in the next.

The possibility of a frame-winning clearance was there, but he missed the brown and Stevens doubled it as he went on to clinch the frame and the match on the pink.

The details

1ST RD.—B. Werbeniuk (Canada) bt J. Johnson 10-8. Frames: 55-64, 78-1, 16-57, 61-31, 84-6, 35-66, 68-28, 74-0, 66-48, 145-0, 35-59, 88-25, 59-50, 54-74, 85-47, 0-67, 19-65, 59-50.

K. Stevens (Canada) bt R. Edmonds 10-8. Frames: 43-86, 62-41, 56-6, 60-9, 21-71, 72-13, 53-33, 78-21, 41-91, 59-68, 60-35, 2-58, 29-65, 39-54, 76-3, 63-36, 18-73, 59-42.

M. Hallett (Leeds) bt C. Thorburn (Canada) 6-3. Frames: 57-14, 66-39, 78-36, 43-82, 80-46, 80-33, 66-24, 19-71, 28-76.

2ND RD (best frames).—T. Knowles level with D. Mountjoy (Wales) 4-4. Frames (Knowles first): 45-67, 79-9, 80-40, 29-64, 118-3, 16-85, 87-1, 1-60.

TODAY'S ORDER OF PLAY.—All 2nd Rd (25 frames): 10.30: S. Davis v David Taylor; J. White v T. Meo; 2.30: A. Higgins (N. Ireland) v T. Griffiths (Wales). Mountjoy v Knowles. 7.30: Davis v Taylor (to finish); White v Meo.

In the first round match, Doug Mountjoy and Tony Knowles are locked at 4-4 going into this afternoon's middle session. Knowles led 2-1 with breaks of 76 and 62 and 3-2 with a clearance of 117, while Mountjoy levelled at 2-2 with the aid of a fluked green when snookered and at 3-3 with a break of 59.

Knowles retained the lead by making breaks of 42 and 44 in the seventh, but it was Mountjoy's turn again in the last frame of the day as he put together a 45 which forced Knowles to concede with three reds still remaining.

Late on Tuesday, Bill Werbeniuk, the hefty Canadian who can still quite legally consume the large quantities of lager he needs to control the shaking in his cue arm, made a break of 145—the third highest in the championship's history—in beating Joe Johnson, of Bradford, 10-8 in the first round.

Davenport wears down battling Naylor

By D. J. RUTNAGUR

STUART DAVENPORT, the lanky sixth-seeded New Zealander, received a stern opposition from Yorkshireman Ashley Naylor before winning their second round match of the Davies and Tate British Open Squash Rackets Championship at Dunnings Mill, East Grinstead, yesterday.

Naylor took the third game, over-setting, and pushed Davenport to the limit in the fourth, but lacked the steam o offer further resistance.

The fact that his stamina was exhausted was apparent from the fact that he did not win the fourth set at 8-8.

For a place in the quarter final Davenport today plays Gwain Briars, the pick of the home challengers, who will have taken heart from Naylor's temporary ascendency; though he must wish that Naylor had taken further toll of Davenport's energy.

Briars impresses

Briars himself played with impressive authority to beat Sohail Qaiser, of Pakistan, who has often troubled him in the past.

Qualser, who sometimes can be frivolous, played determinedly, as if he believing he had a realistic chance. But he failed to gain more than four points in any one game.

England's Bryan Beeson, the only unseeded survivor in the top half of the draw, scored his second win in a month over the Australian old stager Frank Donnelly, this time at the cost of only six points, all of which Donnelly took in the second game.

Jahangir cruises

Thus Beeson, a Geordie, has got his longstanding wish of a match against Jahangir Khan, the holder, who showed no mercy to an ageing star Ahmed Safwat of Egypt, and won 9-1, 9-0, 9-0 without breaking sweat.

In the women's event the seeds at last began to encounter stiffer opposition. Liz Irving, Australia's No. 6, runner-up in the Greater London Championships, was taken to five games by a South African Bonne Caldwell.

Sue Cogswell, of England, runner-up to three different Australians between 1974 and 1980, made heavy weather of beating Michele Toon, 23, a bar attendant from Brisbane.

MEN

2nd Rd.—Jahangir Khan (Pakistan) bt I. Ahmed Safwat (Egypt) 9-1, 9-0, 9-0; B. Beeson (Northumbria) bt F. Donnelly (Australia) 9-0, 9-6, 9-0; Maqsood Ahmed (Pakistan) bt D. Spanjer (Canada) 9-5, 10-8, 9-7.

FA Cup Semi-Final Replay

ROBSON AND HUGHES BEAT LIVERPOOL

By DENIS LOWE

Liverpool ... 1 Manchester United ... 2

TREMENDOUS finishing by Bryan Robson and Mark Hughes brought splendid goals for Manchester United early in the second-half of last night's F A Cup semi-final replay at Maine Road to put them in the final for the 10th time, against Everton on May 18.

United, twice ahead in the 2-2 draw at Goodison, launched early raids through Hughes and Olsen, and Lawrensen did well to make a last-ditch tackle when Hughes tried to exploit MacDonald's error.

Liverpool, without Rush, their renowned Welsh striker, called up Walsh, the substitute who rescued the Anfield side in the last minute of extra-time in the first match, as his deputy.

Determined midfield work by Whiteside and Robson, and Gidman's strong overlapping runs, enabled United to raise the tempo, but Liverpool, often outplayed on Saturday, looked more confident.

Bailey's dash

Bailey, who had difficulty in keeping out MacDonald's powerful long-range shots, then had to dash quickly from goal to foil Wark while Gidman robbed Whelan in the nick of time.

United were close to scoring in the 23rd minute when Grobbelaar, under pressure in the air, dropped Gidman's free-kick.

Stapleton pounced on the chance as Liverpool looked in vain for a free-kick, but Neal cleared off the goal-line.

McGrath, a recent United success in central defence, brought off two timely interceptions as Liverpool applied greater pressure, with Nicol and Whelan pushing forward menacingly, and the Merseysiders took the lead in the 38th minute.

Nicol, sent clear on the right by Dalglish, cut in to put over a well-placed cross. Wark went up with McGrath and the ball appeared to be headed past Bailey by the United defender.

Nichol's miss

A minute later, Liverpool should have been two up. Wark found Nicol unmarked eight yards out with the Manchester defence caught flat-footed, but the Scot's shot ended wide.

The pace was hectic and the challenges vigorous and ocasionally, late. Keith Hackett, the Sheffield referee, had a word of warning with players on each side before booking Dalglish for a foul on Whiteside in the 43rd minute.

United were level in the 46th minute through a splendid goal from Robson, their captain and England midfielder.

Robson picked up a loose ball in the middle of the pitch and set off on a strong run which ended with fierce left-footed drive into the top corner from 25 yards.

Bailey had to stramble to keep out Hogg's back-pass as Liverpool retaliated and then saved from Dalglish, but United, stretching Liverpool with their punch and determination, went ahead after 57 minutes.

Strachan beat Liverpool's offside trap with a perfectly judged through-pass, and Hughes raced clear to hit a fine right-footed shot past Grobbelaar.

MacDonald, still to score his first Liverpool goal, tested Bailey with a cunning lob, tipped over by the United keeper.

Dalglish, troubled by Saturday's ankle injury made way for the substitute, Gillespie, after 79 minutes.

Manchester United.—Bailey; Gidman, Albiston, Whiteside, McGrath, Hogg, Robson, Strachan, Hughes, Stapleton, Olsen.

Liverpool.—Grobbelaar; Neal, Beglin, Lawrenson, Nicol, Hansen, Dalglish, Whelan, Walsh, MacDonald, Wark.

Scottish Cup

CELTIC AND UNITED WIN

Dundee United and Celtic will fight out the Scottish FA Cup final at Hampden Park on May 18 after winning their semi-final replays last night.

Paul Sturrock and Stewart Beedie scored for United against Aberdeen at Tynecastle. Aberdeen replied through Ian Angus, but had Neale Cooper sent off around the hour.

Celtic were well in command and finished up 3-0 winners over First Division Motherwell at Hampden. Aitken and Johnston twice scored for the Glasgow club.

GREEN DEAL AGREED

Ron Green, the Shrewsbury goalkeeper, is to join Bristol Rovers permanently in a £12,000 deal once he has agreed terms. He has been on loan since losing his first team place to Steve Perks and in 12 games for Rovers has kept a clean sheet nine times.

COVENTRY HEAD FOR SURVIVAL

By DEREK HODGSON

Newcastle United 0 Coventry City 1

JANGLING nerves in both teams made this match resemble 90 minutes in the detnist's chair without an anaesthetic. The result, however, could mark the start of Coventry's escape from the relegation zone.

Almost from the kick-off, Ogrizovic had to take the ball off Cunningham's foot near the base of the post.

Yet, after only four minutes, City were ahead as Newcastle revealed that they needed no coaching in offensive colliwobbles, either. Coventry's first attack ending with Hibbitt's seizing on to an attempted back-pass and then shooting.

The ball flew off a defender into ennett's path and he fired coolly across Thomas into the far corner.

Lack of composure

Newcastle should be safe now, but when they play with such lack of composure, the apprehension can be felt in Whitley Bay.

Coventry did, at least, show some conviction when they were allowed to go forward, and Thomas read the line well when Carr, cruising in behind, fired in a low hard shot.

Roeder's well-timed header, from six yards brought a splendid tip-over from Ogrizovic.

Another tip over, again from Reader, and a point-blank stop at McDonald's feet emphasised the goalkeper's contribution to a notable victory for the Sky Blues.

Newcastle Utd. — Thomas; Brown, Wharton, McCreery, Anderson, Roeder, Megson, Cunningham, Reilly, Beardsley, Heard.

Coventry City.—Ogrizovic; Stephens, Pearce, Hibbitt, Butterworth, Peake, Bennett, McGrath, Regis, Gibson, Barnes.

World Cup

Switzerland hold USSR

In a surprise upset Switzerland held the Soviet Union to a 2-2 draw in a world qualifying match in Bern.

The Russians took the lead after 57 minutes in a fast game when Gavrilov slipped the ball past goalkeeper Engel.

Bregy scored equalised six minutes later from a penalty kick after he was fouled by the Soviet goalkeeper Dassrev.

Demianenko put the USSR ahead again 10 minutes from time but defender Egli, who had moved up for a final Swiss assault, scored from a scramble in the box seconds from time.

Hungary triumph

Hungary, in a Group Five qualifying match in Vienna, proved too good for the home country and cantered to the top of the group with a 3-0 victory.

They were two goals through Kiprich, up at the break and added the third from Detari in the second half despite some determined assaults from the battling Austrian side.

Hungary have won all their five world cup matches this campaign.

Oxford's hit-men tighten grip

By ROGER MALONE

Oxford ... 3 Huddersfield ... 0

OXFORD'S lively attack hammered three first-half goals against Huddersfield Town at the Manor Ground last night and they were enough to consolidate United's lead at the head of Second Division.

McDonald, a defender with wide First Division experience, was on the spot a yard from goal to turn the ball home after Trewick's shot had bit the post.

Hudersfield replied with right-wing progress from Pugh, resulting in a diving header from Lillis going fractionally wide and a sprawling Hardwick saving Robinson's shot with his legs.

Oxford benefited from stronger attacking support and McDermott fastened on to a loose ball, following a 30th minute corner, to score strongly from an angle.

Oxford attacked in well organised triangeles down ech fink—McDonld prompting Brock and Jones on the left, Langan liaising with Trewick and McDermott on the right. Aldridge floated around, looking to fasten onto the variation of sudden through-passes down the middle.

Aldridge's search was rewarded after 39 minutes when he fastened on to a pass from Hebberd for his 28tht goal of the season.

Oxford were less impressive in the second half and defensive flaws provided Cowling with a close-range opportunity which be booked wide. Allardyce was allowed to climb unchallenged at a corner but he headed over.

Hebberd wasted a glorious chance when he sliced wide from Langham's skidding free-kick. Briggs and Shotton, a pair of no-nonsense central defenders reminded Huddersfield who was in charge with bone-jarring tackles on Lillis and Robinson.

An attendance figure of 9,149 — by no means the biggest at the Manor Ground this season — suggested that the promotion fever has scarcely reached epidemic proportions. The locals probably feel that promotion is assured.

Substitute Rhoades-Brown was brou—ght on for McDermott for the last 12 minutes and ought to have improved the score a minute from time. He drove hurriedly over the crossbar after being allowed clear by an errant back pass.

Oxford: Hardwick; Langan, McDonald, Trewick, Briggs, Shotton, McDermott (Rhoades-Brown 78), Aldridge, Jones, Hebberd, Brock.

Huddersfield: Cox; Measham, Carmody, Doyle, Webster, Allardyce, Lillis, Pugh, Robinson, Wilson, Cowling.

SPANIARDS ARE SUSPENDED

Two forwards from Real Madrid were suspended by their club after allegations of misconduct after their 3-0 defeat in a U E F A quarter-final match against Inter Milan.

Juan Lozanzo, who cost £1·4 million two seasons ago from Anderlecht, and Juan Gomez, who has won 34 caps, were ordered to leave the club pending an investigation, while two other players have been fined heavily for staying away from their hotel.

Referee steps in to save Watford fighter

By A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

PAT CLINTON, the first of three Los Angeles boxers to enter the ring for the George Wimpey A B A semi-finals, brought Scotland an opening success at Preston last night. The reigning flyweight champion again reached Wembley, flooring Mark Smith from the Watford Club Callowland with the referee intervening after two minutes two seconds of the third round.

The home counties youngster was disgusted with the decision. He angrily demonstrated and pulled out his gumshield kicking them out of the ring. He should have been thankful for the mercy shown.

Clinton, far more experienced and with a better range of shots, had him under the hammer from the opening seconds. The southpaw Scot sent Smith staggering with a right to the chin and forced him to take a standing in the second round.

No escape

Clinton will meet Leigh Williams of Battersea in next month's final. Williams gained a majority decision over Welsh youngster John Pardoe who had little to offer other than a few wild swings.

Scotland's light flyweight hope, Andrew Doherty of Cumbernauld, a member of Croy Miners, tried to use the ring but could not escape from the two-handed barrage that brought Yorkshire's Mark Epton a majority decision.

WARREN ANGRY WITH BOARD

Frank Warren, the promoter, has launched another attack on the British Boxing Board of Control over George Collins, who is only 17.

Warren had matched Collins with Andy Roberts, 25 who is licenced to box six and eight round contests, while collins is only allowed four at the moment.

The fight was to go ahead on next Wednesday's British middleweight title show, featuring Herol Graham and Jimmy Price, at Shoreditch. But the Board have rejected Roberts as being an unsuitable opponent:

Warren said: "I'm going to make the strongest possible protest. It does not make sense. Why have they licenced Roberts for six and eight rounds and yet they won't let him in the same ring as Collins, who can only box four?"

McGUIGAN DATE

Barry McGuigan, the Belfast-based featherweight, will learn today when and where he can challenge Eusebio Pedrosa, the W B A world title holder of Panama, in the champion's 19th defence, a fight expected to nett £1·7 million.

The contest, which should take place before July 10, could be staged at either Queens Park Rangers' Loftus Road ground, or at Earl's Court, last used for the Frazier-Bugner match in 1975.

FOUR ANGLING RECORDS

By DEREK FLETCHER

Four angling records have been broken for freshwater and salt water fish over the last few days.

A 326lb Porbeagle shark caught off Padstow, Cornwall, by Clive Taylor, of Potters Bar, Hertfordshire, is being claimed as a world record, and a 7lb 7oz Sandy Ray landed off Swansea by Bryan Stanton, of Birmingham, as a British record.

Alan Bolton, of Tiverton, Devon, has landed a 11lb 2oz rainbow trout from Clatworthy Reservoir, near Wiveliscombe, Somerset; and a 4lb 13oz roach, caught from Pitsford Reservoir, Northamptonshire, by Graham Palmer, of Sandy, Bedfordshire, is another national record.

The roach, after being weighed and witnessed, was returned to the water.

FORMAT CHANGE FOR CHAMPIONS

The English Women's Indoor Bowling Association is discarding tradition in the inaugural Harnessport women's Champion of Champions tournament, due to finish this week-end at Teeside.

Eight players have battled through to the quarter-finals in a regional knock-out. Now the association have changed the format and are staging two groups of four, where all-play-all, whre all-play-all, with the two group winners contesting the final.

Nicholas exposes Spurs' problems

By MICHAEL CALVIN

Tottenham Hotspur .... 0, Arsenal 2

CHARLIE NICHOLAS, Arsenal's enigmatic Scottish striker, last night scored the decisive goal which condemned Tottenham to the indignity of conceding the League title with a home defeat against their most enduring rivals.

The hopeful mathematics of Spurs' increasingly desperate pursuit of Everton were merely a side issue in one of the most passionate occasions on the capital's football calendar.

The hooligans who fought as the teams filed on to the pitch had their own warped idea of local pride. But beworthy a product of the more sedate world of the Southern League, refused to be intimidated by the ugly atmosphere.

His control and attacking awareness belied the fact that he was making his Tottenham debut and as early as the 15th minute he set Falco up for a low shot which cannoned to safety off the foot of Lukic's right hand post.

Clemence stranded

Although Arsenal have been guilty of some undistinguished football this winter there was no answer to the individual brilliance which enabled them to take the lead eight minutes later.

Rix profited from Bowens misplaced clearance by ending Williams whose pass was received by Nicholas on the edge of the area. Nicholas accelerated the instant he played the ball into space and then left Clemence stranded with an angled shot.

Spurs' response was predictably furious, but even with Arsenal having to reorganise to minutes from the interval there cope with the loss of O'Leary two was an ominous anxiety about their play.

Such over-eagerness exposed the heart of Tottenham's recent problems. Any team with only one previous home win this year cannot hope to be considered relevant challengers for the game's major pjrizes.

Anonymous Hoddle

Hoddle a largely anonymous figure among the bustle, was frustrated in his attempts to wrest the initiative away from their most traditional rivals, although two typically well-struck shots caused Lukic some discomfort.

But Arsenal were prepared to protect their own European ambitions with a remarkable intensity. Rix and Williams were both booked and subsequently had to separated by their team-mates when the questioned one another's defensive commitment.

Allinson's speed on the break represented Arsenal's major threat in the later stages of the game, but they had cause for relief 10 minutes from time when Roberts thundered a penalty — awarded against Anderson—onto the bar.

Therefore, it was no surprise when Talbot broke clear in the final seconds to beat Clemence with a low shot on the run. It was the final kick of a fateful match.

Tottenham. — Clemence; Thomas, Bowen, Roberts, Chiedozie, Perryman, Ardiles, Falco, Bewsorthy, Hoddle, Galvin.

Arsenal.—Lukic; Anderson, Sansom, Williams, O'Leary, Caton, Robson, Rix, Allinson, Talbot, Nicholas.

LUTON MUST WAIT FOR REVENGE

EVERTON and Luton, concentrating on the contrasting targets of success and survival, are likely to extend the domestic season until May 27, writes Michael Calvin.

The clubs, who provided a memorable F A Cup semi final, have re-arranged their First Division match at Kenilworth Road for May 13.

It will be rescheduled a fortnight later if Everton eliminate Beyern Munich and reach the European Cup-winners' Cup final in Rotterdam on May 15.

Luton, whose manager David Pleat can be forgiven for stressing "those next few weeks are going to seem like a lifetime," have also made their home match against Arsenal on May 4 a morning kick-off to help prevent crowd trouble.

Luton's confidence that relegation can be avoided was enhanced yesterday by the knowledge that Mirk Harford, their influential striker, is likely to overcome his ankle injury before Sunday's televised visit of Manchester United.

But Norwich, defeated at Kenilworth Road on Tuesday, insist that their Milk Cup triumph has not been responsible for the decline of their League form.

Ken Brown, their manager, believes the absence of Peter Mendham from midfield has been more damaging than any exaggerated sense of satisfaction. He hopes Mendham will be fit to face Leicester in a critical match at Carrow Road on Saturday.

Portsmouth, pushing for promotion, must cope with Crystal Palace without the suspended trio of Mick Kennedy, Kevin O'Callaghan and Mick Tait.

BAN ON BOSTON MAN

Clive Atkinson, who has been banned from football administration for 15 months by the Lincolnshire County F A for attempting to poach players from other clubs, was chairman of Boston F C, the Northern Counties (East) League club and not Boston United, the Gola League club, as reported yesterday.

NEWPORT SPRING SURPRISE

By DAVID GREEN

Newport ... 12 pts, Pontypool ... 10

NEWPORT, to the delight of their spectators, ended a 15-game losing sequence against Pontypool with this victory at Rodney Parade last night.

Pontypool, weakened by international calls, scored two tries to nil, but lost to a dropped goal by James and three penalty goals by Parry.

Newport were without Waters, who is playing for Wales B tomorrow, a game which deprived Pontypool of Lee Jones and Moseley. Pontypool also lost Perkins, Bishop and Brown, who are involved in Saturday's international against England.

Pontypool particularly missed the skills of Perkins and Moseley at the line-out, where Widdicombe and Perry did much as they pleased. In the set scrums Newport held a marked advantage.

Relentless drives

Pontypool were for once deprived of the platform from which they mount their relentles forward drives, but where they could engineer broken fields, the powerful running of Squires, Huish, Mostyn Davies and Price gave Newport real problems.

For all the energy and bravery of Collins, Powell and Pocock, Pontypool's superior technique gave them the advantage at the rucks and mauls and enabled them, particularly in the second half, to spend long periods in Newport territory.

Pontypool went off at a great pace, and strong runs by Squire and Huish paved the way for a blind-side try by Bidgood, Lewis's conversion attempt from wide out just sliding past the far post.

Newport, prompted by lovely line-kicking from James, struck back when James himself dropped a neat goal and Parry kicked a penalty. Pontypool regained the lead when Squire drove over from short range for Lewis to convert.

Parry kicked a second penalty just before half-time when Pontypool collapsed a scrum. Newport then soaked up pressure until Widdicombe, Rawlins and Powell broke out, Pontypool transgressed at the ruck and Parry's penalty from fully 50 yards, sealed the sweetest of victories.

Newport.—A. Parry; C. Wood, C. Williams, P. Daniel, D. Pitt; R. James, A. Coombs; J. Rawlins, M. Watkins, R. Morgan, J. Widdicombe, A. Perry, R. Collins, R. Powell, A. Pocock.

Pontypool.—P. Lewis; G. Davies, L. Faulkner, R. Bidgood, B. Taylor; M. Goldsworthy, C. Morgan; Staff Jones, Steve Jones, G. Price, R. Moreton, A. Carter, J. Squire, C. Huish, M. Davies.

Referee: C. Norling (Birchgrove).

ATLANTIC WEATHER—Noon April 17

Low "B" will move east with no change in pressure. High "M" and Low "M" will drift a little east. Low "O" will move north-west, filling.

NEW JOBS BRING HOPE OF LOWER UNEMPLOYMENT

By STEVEN WARD Industrial Staff

THE number of people in work increased by 340,000 last year to 23,627,000, figures released yesterday by the Department of Employment show.

But so far the number of new jobs created by the economic recovery has done no more than absorb most of the extra people coming on to the jobs market, because of changes in the age profile of the working population and because of married women returning to work in greater numbers.

Over the past two years the number of people working has risen by 613,000: and in the last three months of 1984 alone 142,000 people were added to the employed labour force, the biggest quarterly increase for six years.

Unemployment figures released at the start of this month showed 3,267,592 people out of work, and an underlying rate of increase in the jobless total of between 10-15,000 a month.

However, if Department of Employment's projections about the future size of the pool of people seeking work are correct, and new jobs continue to be created at the same rate as this year, unemployment should start to fall during 1985.

The White Paper last month on employment policy forecast that the labour pool would rise by 120,000 a year until 1987, much less than the rise in the labour market last year.

Largest growth

However, the number "in work" is collected from employers, and is to some extent an estimate, while the number "out of work" is collected from Jobcentres, and is an exact headcount, so it is conceivable that both will continue to increase.

The largest growth area for employment is in service industries, where the employed labour force has risen by 240,000 to 13,482,000.

More than half the 1984 increase was made up by 187,000 extra part-time women workers.

The biggest increase in the employed came in the south-east, with a rise of 90,000. There were smaller rises in the south-east Scotland, East Anglia an dthe north-west, and falls in Yorkshire and Humberside, the North and Wales.

PAY RISES 'STILL TOO HIGH'

By Our Industrial Staff

EARNINGS are rising at an annual rate of 7·25 per cent., the lowest level since 1967, according to figures published by the Department of Employment yesterday.

But the increase, which covers the whole economy for the year to February, is still much higher than many competitors.

In West Germany wages are increasing at 3·4 per cent. a year, in Japan at 4·1 per cent., France 6·7 per cent., and the United States 3·5 per cent. Italy's 12·2 per cent. wage inflation is markedly worse.

Mr Tom King, Employment Secretary, cautioned that the increases in British wages were "still too high."

"The message is clear," he said. "Unless we can keep to a more reasonable level of increase in earnings, our unit labour costs will continue to rise and we shall become steadily less competitive."

The latest figure for rising earnings, of 7·25 per cent., compares with an underlying rate of increase of 7·5 per cent. in each of the previous seven months.

Britain's wage cost per unit of output, the best guide to productivity, rose by 3·9 per cent. in the last quarter of 1984, underlying Mr King's message that higher wages are not being earned by higher productivity.

Unit wage costs in the United States are increasing by only 1 per cent. a quarter, and are falling by 3 per cent. a quarter in Canada, 4 per cent. in Japan and 2 per cent. in West Germany.

INTEREST RATES PLEA

'Threat to recovery'

OUR BUSINESS CORRESPONDENT writes: Substantial cuts in interest rates were urged last night by the Confederation of British Industry after business leaders expressed fears about the threat to the recovery.

Sir James Cleminson, president, said many firms, particularly small and new businesses, were deferring new investment becaus of borrowing costs.

PENSIONS AXE

By FRANCES WILLIAMS

the Government could reap as much as £3 billion from ending the reduced rate of National Insurance contributions paid by the 10,300,000 workers contracte out of SERPS.

This would go almost all the way towards meeting the Treasury's demand for cuts of between £2 billion and £4 billion in the £40 billion a year social security budget which it wants the Fowler reviews to deliver. Mr Fowler, however, has been battling to keep any savings to raise basic benefits.

Savings of £3 billion a year would finance an increase in the basic pension of 20-25 per cent. or enable National insturace cotributions to be reduced by one to two per cent.

Housing benefit to be cut

The Government plans to legislate on social security in the next session of Parliament. Apart from abolition of SERPS, the Green Paper proposes large cuts in housing benefit, saving several hundred million pounds, and simplification of the supplementary benefit system, involving the sweeping away of many discretionary payments in favour of a higher basic benefit.

But the present child benefit system will be left intact. Ministers have decided that the political and practical problems of means-testing or taxation, the two canvassed options, rule out changes for the time being.

Job losses as dockyards are privatised

By DESMOND WETTERN
Naval Corespondent

THE Government plans to switch the management of Devonport and Rosyth Navy dockyards to commercial contractors by 1987. Redundancies are predicted.

Mr Heseltine, Defence Secretary, said yesterday it was hoped to seek tenders from commercial companies interested in running the dockyards by the middle of next year.

Although commercial management was only one of at least two options, the pricipal alternative was setting up a trading fund so the overall control and management remained in the Civil Service.

Mr Heseltine made it clear that while the Government was prepared to look at proposals for a trading fund, his preference lay in commercial running of the dockyards.

He hoped to complete consultations with the unions and management before Parliament rose for the summer recess, and to make his recommendations by then to the Cabinet.

Absenteeism 'too high'

He gave a number of reasons for the Government's desire for a change, such as the need to give greater autonomy to the dockyards' management and to separate the customer, the Navy, from being largely tied to the dockyards as their only suppliers of services. But the level of absenteeism was the main one.

Absenteeism among the 20,000 workers in the two dockyards is running at 40 per cent. over the national average, equivalent to a month's extra time off for every employee. "It has got to stop," said Mr Heseltine.

He believed commercial management would not be able to accept and absorb such a level to the extent that it was possible under Civil Service management.

But the Ministry of Defence Council of Civil Service Unions attacked the plans, saying the proposal for commercial management had been rejected by every review and inquiry on the dockyards over the past 15 years.

The Government was acting before it had garnered all the facts of its internal studies, and "no evidence of inefficiency in the current operation of the Royal Dockyards has been presented."

'30 p.c. redundancies'

The council said the proposals would be likely to lead to 30 per cent. redundancies in the workforce at the two dockyards.

Mr Heseltine said the mostly-voluntary redundancy figures were likely to be 15 per cent. at Devonport, which employs about 12,000, and 5 per cent. at Rosyth, which employs 8,000 and is epected to expand it workforce under a £200 million investment programme.

Admiral Sir John Fieldhouse, First Sea Lord, said yesterday the Navy supported any moves which would help to save money.

TEAR GAS FIRED IN SOUTH AFICA

SUSPICION OVER MILD HESELTINE

By EDWARD PEARCE

THERE was a time in the memory of this House when Mr Michael Heseltine would swing from tree to tree making ululations while the natives took cover, cowered in terror or shot poisoned darts, according to temperament.

These days you would hardly recognise him. The style is demure, the words do credit to Mr Philip Habib on one of his peace missions and the policy, to the casual onlooker, is tentative and empirical—somewhere on the spectrum between agnosticism and "pick and mix."

We were on to the dockyards, Devonport and Rosyth. The old Heseltine would have been either closing them or doubling their capacity, according to immediate requirements, in the approved dynamic way.

The new Heseltine seemed to be peering with myopic scruple at "a range of possibilities" and, with all the dynamism of an ear muff, looking forward to "a wide, constructive and fruitful discussion over the next two or three months."

He had a range of options and wished to listen thoughtfully to the possibilities before saying anything. Consequently "I am not today announcing a way forward . . ."

Such shattering restraint did not impress Mr Denzil Davies, Labour's strong minded, if faintly disoriented, spokesman on Defence.

Purely cosmetic

The caution and option-juggling left Mr Davies as cold as properly served lager. This was to be a privatisation. The consultation was pureup cosmetic (political mascara as it were). Furthermore, the scheme which would be accepted had come from Peter Levene.

Now the name of Mr Levene (how shall we put it nicely?) —once a munitions merchant now a civil servant, has the effect upon Labour of President Pinochet squared.

Clearly it was the intention of the Ministry of Defence, with Mr Heseltine fronting as a legitimate laundry in the front room, to drive a low commercial deal with people better handled only with fire tongs.

Mr Gordon Brown, one of Labour's very best accessions of talent and a man with dockyard interests, got brutally specific.

"They are the discredited proposals of a discredited adviser who spent much of last year hawking the Royal Dockyards round to his friends in the private sector."

With no very great conviction Mr Heseltine denounced "the scurrilous language" used about Mr Levene, for whose former company the former Permanent Secretary at the Ministry of Defence now works.

Labour, who know a good thing when they see it, are after this one like a fox terrier with a spare pair of trousers.

Contorted nostrils

Mr Davies got particularly dismissive in the high Confucian style of those disdaining commerce in the Services and, being a Welshman, generally put on the hwyl (Welsh rhetoric) about the suggestion, much identified with Mr Levene, that privatisation should be run over a limited period by way of franchises.

"Perfectly suitable," he remarked through contorted nostrils, "for a fast food operation running a burger bar but not appropriate for Her Majesty's Navy."

The thought does occur that if the Navy is ever run with a quarter of the cost efficiency of Macdonalds, the Chancellor will be knocking threepence off standard rate.

There was a number of interesting questions about British contrlol of any prospective sublet docks to which Mr Heseltine responded in the same spirit of meretricious patriotism.

But pressed by Mr Campbell-Savours about the definition of British (another specific to suck you down) and whether it just emant 51 per cent. of the equity, the Minister grew oddly philosophical and open minded.

"Well it can work in many ways. I won't pretend to the House that I have worked out the precise forms."

Such mildness chills the blood. Perhaps they have a prospective taker for Devonport Dockyards in New Jersey!

HUNGER STRIKE BY SCOT IN INDONESIA JAIL

An engineer from Scotland, William Braid Anderson, 44, was refusing to eat or drink because of bad jail conditions in the small Indonesian island of Karimun, where he and six friends had been held for four months, his wife, whose name was given as Vera Vambo, said in Singapore.

She added: "My husband has lost all hope of leaving the island alive." Anderson, from St Andrews, was arrested with five othe Europeans, including James Carlton, also from Scotland, and an Australian when they tried to tow away a Singapore-registered drilling barge on which an Indonesian firm was said not to have paid charter fees for two years.

The seven were remanded in custody on May 6 by a court in Karimun, 20 miles southwest of Singapore, on April 19 after being charged with illegal entry and threatening behaviour, diplomats who visited the men said.—Reuter.

fitted the rich, official statistics showed that only one family in four with a home loan earned more than £15,000 a year.

"Mr Meacher wants to see home buyers claiming housing allowances through the Post Office," he said. "He ought to visit a few Post Offices to see the existing queues before forcing millions of mortgage payers to swell their numbers."

Commending the Alliance's plans to integrate tax and social security and make housing allowances more selective, Mr Cartwright argued that £180 million could be switched to helping to needy by confining mortgage relief to the standard rate of tax.

Last night's statement from the Shadow Cabinet said that Mr Meacher's document had "neither been approved nor examined by any party committee."

"A Labour government will certainly continue mortgage interest tax relief," it promised.

Mr Meacher was present at last night's meeting and helped draft the statement.
